Expedient to amend Ordinance.	Resolved — That it is expedient to amend the Ordinance of the 3d VICTORIA, Cap. 31, to provide for turnpike roads in or near the City of Montreal .
Bill to amend Ordinance relating to Montreal Roads brought in and read.	Ordered — That Mr. Holmes have leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Ordinance of the 3d VICTORIA, Cap. 31, for the improvement of the roads in the neighbourhood of, and leading to the City of Montreal . He accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received and read for the first time.
Second reading Friday 6 August.	Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Friday , the 6th of August next.
House goes into Committee of whole on Imports.	The Order of the day for the House in Committee to consider the expediency of enquiring into the several laws levying duties on the imports into this Province, and to consider the propriety of amending and consolidating the same, being read, The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee. Mr. Parke took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.
Resolution reported.	And Mr. Parke reported, that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —
Resolution.	Resolved — That the duty of two and a half per cent, now by law levied upon the importation of copies of the Holy Scriptures into this Province, by navigation from Sea, under and by virtue of the Act 53, GEO. III, Cap. ii., Section 1, ought to be repealed.
Bill brought in to exempt from duty the Holy Scriptures im- ported into this Pro- vince, read first time.	Ordered — That Mr. Holmes have leave to bring in a Bill to exempt from duty all copies of the Holy Scriptures imported into this Province by navigation from sea. He accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received and read for the first time.
Second reading 6 August.	Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Friday , the 6th day of August next.
House goes into Committee of whole on Feudal Tenure.	The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the laws of that part of the Province heretofore known (246) as Lower Canada , touching the tenure of lands, and commonly known as "Feudal Tenure," and to consider the expediency of altering and amending the same, and the best and most equitable mode of effecting the alterations that may be deemed necessary, being read, The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee. Mr. Woods took the chair of the Committee, <sup>21</sup>
Mr. Dunscomb said that in submitting the (( )) Resolution to the Committee, that of the ((many)) subjects that agitated the public mind in that ((part)) of the Province heretofore called Lower Canada, there was none, not one, of more importance than that for which he now claimed the consideration of the Committee. It was of the first importance — important, as affecting the value of every ((man's)) property and welfare in the country — as affecting the prosperity and advancement of the country — and as affecting the very construction of society. (Hear, hear.) The origin of the Feudal Tenure was under circumstances, and under necessities ((which)) no longer existed ; a junction, in the barbarian ages of the poor and the rich, the weak and the strong — for their mutual protection — those circumstances, those necessities no longer existed ; and there was no longer any occasion for this species of Tenure. The Government that we had the blessing to live under, protected all her subjects alike, whether serf, Censitaire or Seigneur, (hear, hear,) and so ((very)) true was this, that the object of this species of ((tenure)) was now totally lost sight of. — Instead of the ((Seigneurs)) living on their Seigniories, and in accordance with the philosophy and spirit of the seigniorial system, extending paternal protection and acts of ((goodness)) to the Censitaires, in return for the numerous fines, rights and substantial privileges exacted ((by him)) from the Censitaire — in many instances the Seigneur had never seen his seignior (Hear.) In ((the)) County which he (Mr. Dunscombe) had the honour to represent, what was the state of things there? ((Why)) the Censitaires positively did not know who the Seigneur was! (Hear, hear, hear.) They ((were)) ignorant who was this Seigneur, who took their ((dues?)) — exacted everything ((sic)) to the last penny. (Hear.) ((They)) knew not to whom they should address themselves for relief, if required for protection, in return ((for)) those exactions. It was notorious that the Seigneur of Beauharnois had by means of a lottery, or ((some)) such modern invention passed into the hands ((of a)) speculative body of Englishmen — enterprising ((men)) was ((sic)) willing to grant, and men who would ((advance)) the interest and prosperity of the country — but not men who could sympathize with their Censitaires; they had but one object in view in purchasing this Seignior, and that was a palpable and ((particular)) object — to realize all the money out of it that ((could)) by possibility be made out of it. (Hear, hear, hear.) They valued not certain privileges in the ((system)), providing for the honor of the Seigneur — no, ((they)) required money — profit — and they were determined to obtain it. (Hear.) In this way, a system framed for the protection of the people had become burthensome — had become oppressive — had become hateful to the people and repugnant to English and French feelings. (Cheers.) He (Mr. D.) ((addressed)) himself to the Committee in hope of obtaining their concurrence to measures that might be ((productive)) of relief, and to the promotion of the welfare and prosperity of the Province. (Hear, hear.) ((He)) did not wish any hasty legislation on this important subject. — He did not advocate any measures of spoliation, nor did the people of Lower Canada advocate such measures — it was a foul libel ((on)) honest yeomanry to say so; — they desired a ((change)), but one on fair and equitable principles, ((on)) such terms as this House might think ((proper)) and just to all parties; — and surely this House ((would)) never deny them so reasonable a prayer? The people wanted something better adapted to the ((present)) circumstances of the country, and in unison ((with)) English laws; and to be released from a system detrimental to their prosperity, and an incubus on their industry, and to their advancement in Society. Mr. Dunscombe then read the following Resolutions and moved their adoption...<sup>22</sup>

M. Neilson dit qu'il ne pouvait s'empêcher d'exprimer ses doutes, si la chambre était compétente à décider sur une semblable question qui affectait si essentiellement les droits de propriété d'une grande partie de la province. Il est vrai, dit M. Neilson, que nous avons par devers nous des pétitions se plaignant de cette tenure; pour ma part, j'admets qu'il existe des abus dans ce système. Cependant les résolutions proposées me paraissent contenir une contradiction. On ne peut assurément dire que les abus originent de cette tenure, lorsque nous voyons qu'il est au pouvoir de chaque individu d'obtenir des terres. Les droits exigés pour ces terres sont bien moindres que leur valeur. Cette chambre composée comme elle l'est, n'étant pas familière avec le système de tenure du Bas-Canada devrait hésiter avant d'adopter aucune conclusion qui puisse l'affecter en quelque manière que ce soit; ne publions pas à la face de l'univers qu'il existe des abus dont nous ne connaissons rien. Les droits acquis des individus doivent être considérés comme il convient: c'est une chose bien dangereuse que d'intervenir dans ces droits lorsqu'il n'y a aucun tribunal qui puisse facilement décider de cette intervention. Certainement si les habitants de toute la province sont mécontents de cette tenure, c'est pour nous un sujet bien digne de nos investigations; mais on ne doit pas oublier que les plaintes contre ce système doivent être reçues avec beaucoup de précaution et de défiance. Toutes les fois qu'un certain nombre d'individus se plaignent de lois dûment établies, ces plaintes ne doivent être admises qu'avec une bien grande prudence. Si on peut établir que ces plaintes sont bien fondées, personne n'est plus que moi disposé à leur donner toute l'attention possible; mais vraiment, je pense que pour le moment, cette chambre ne doit point agiter une question de cette nature.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Viger. Les hbles Messieurs ont parlé de tenure féodale; mais je leur demanderai de vouloir m'expliquer quelle analogie existent ((sic)) entre la tenure féodale et la tenure en usage dans le Bas-Canada? Le fait est qu'il n'existe rien de semblable à la tenure féodale dans cette partie de la province. Je sais que des usurpations ont été faites sur les droits des censitaires; mais si la loi était strictement suivie, il n'existerait aucune autre espèce de tenure plus favorable à la classe commune. Dire que cette tenure est oppressive, c'est dire quelque chose plus qu'absurde, c'est injuste. Il y a une chose oppressive: et ce n'est pas la loi des tenures, mais la décision des cours de justice au sujet de cette loi. Je n'hésite pas à dire que les décisions données par les Cours de justice sont contraires à la loi. Je ne désire pas entrer dans une longue discussion à cet égard; mais je remarquerai seulement qu'aujourd'hui dans le Bas-Canada, un cultivateur paie un sol par année pour une étendue de terre qui, en Angleterre coûterait un livre sterling. Le sujet de plainte est le droit de lods et ventes; mais on doit se rappeler, que tant qu'une terre demeure en la possession du même propriétaire, ce droit n'est pas exigible. Si elle est léguée par testament, elle est exempte de ce droit. Il y a des terres dans l'île de Montréal qui depuis 150 ans n'ont jamais payées (sic) ce droit de lods et ventes; et qui depuis la même époque, ne paient que sept chelins et demi par année. On parle d'abus! si ces abus existent, qu'on nomme un comité chargé de s'en enquérir, et j'y concourrai volontiers. Il n'est pas prouvé qu'il existe des abus dans tous les cas. Les rentes que paient les cultivateurs anglais, écossais et irlandais sont exorbitantes (sic) au plus haut degré, comparées avec celles demandées par les seigneurs du Bas-Canada. Je connais un Monsieur qui perçoit une rente de £15,000, pour un circuit de terre qui en Canada ne coûterait que £300 à £400. Est-il possible de dire qu'un semblable système est oppressif? Il n'y a pas de pays mieux peuplé ou mieux cultivé: regardez le district de Québec, qu'un de vos célèbres écrivains déclare être égal à aucune partie de l'Angleterre. Chaque homme, de fait est propriétaire du sol et ne paie que quatre ou cinq livres de 20 sols par année. Peut-on appeler cela un système d'oppression? Nous voyons d'autres propriétaires retirer de leurs terres autant de guinées que nous percevons de sols; ils vivent dans un luxe qui rivalise celui des princes, tandis que le cultivateur est couché sur la terre nue. Quelqu'un ignore-t-il les horribles misères qu'endurent les pauvres irlandais? Et est-ce le système suivi dans ce malheureux pays, que les hbles messieurs désirent introduire dans le nôtre? j'espère que non. Je pourrais m'étendre sur cette partie de mon sujet, et fournir (sic) des faits incontestables pour prouver que si notre système n'est pas supérieur aux autres, il est au moins des grands désavantages que les hbles. messieurs veulent bien lui accorder. Il est vrai, nous payons des redevances, mais elles sont minimales: il est vrai, nous payons des lods et ventes, et ce serait une absurdité que de dire que nous voulons bien les payer; personne ne désire voir sur sa propriété une redevance de quelque nature que ce soit: mais d'un autre côté, nous devons nous rappeler que quelque considération est due aux droits du censitaire; nous devons nous rappeler que si nous détruisons le château la chaumière sera bientôt détruite. La propriété étant la base (sic) sur laquelle la société est fondée, si nous ne protégeons les droits des riches, nous verrons bientôt les liens de la société s'affaiblir, et les droits, les privilèges et les libertés des pauvres se trouver sans garantie. Je suis persuadé que l'hble membre a exprimé ses sentiments, lorsqu'il a déclaré qu'il ne désirait faire d'injustice à personne; mais il devait prendre garde que son zèle ne lui cache les maux qui pourraient surgir d'une intervention subite et imprudente dans des droits depuis longtemps établis. Qu'on fasse une investigation, mais qu'on ne propose pas abruptement un acte de législation qui sans aucun doute ne produirait que des maux. Les hbles. messieurs, peuvent tant qu'il (sic) voudront parler de l'iniquité du système; j'ai moi-même été l'ennemi de ce système, mais l'expérience et mes observations m'ont convaincu que j'étais dans l'erreur; et je n'ai pas honte de l'avouer.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Holmes said that he had listened to the hon. learned, and venerable member for Richelieu, with all the attention, and all the respect due to the eloquence and the experience of that hon. gentleman — but certainly had he (Mr. H.) no other evidence upon which to rely as argument against the Feudal Tenure, than what had been uttered in its defence by the venerable member, he (Mr. Holmes) would be quite content to leave it — even upon the hon. member's own showing — to the decision of that hon. House with a confident reliance — that its condemnation would be almost unanimous. The hon. and learned member in his endeavour to sustain that odious tenure, what had been some of his arguments! — He had endeavored to shew that in Europe — nay, even in England, the Feudal Tenure existed, and in a more detestable shape, but even admitting this, which he (Mr. Holmes) denied, was it a sufficient reason why we should maintain and cherish Laws and Institutions in Canada, which were found to be injurious to the public weal in England, and which in Hungary protected the pampered aristocrat to the detriment of the middle classes, while it crushed the energies of the industrious poor? — (hear.) By the hon. member's own admissions, the system has been divested in Lower Canada of all the attributes which recommended it in former times, the motives for its continuance no longer existed, the country was populated, but instead of the Seigneurs dispensing a paternal guardianship over their censitaires, and carrying out of the beneficent intentions of the Crown, in originally creating the Seigniories, there was now a system of extortion practised from one end of the land to the other, and when the unfortunate peasant sought redress from the Courts of Law, the hon. and venble. member himself, has said, he got no redress, because says the hon. member, the verdict of the Courts of Law is based on error! "The decisions were contrary to Law." Why was this? He (Mr. Holmes) would tell him why — the Judges were themselves Seigneurs, and loudly complained of as bad and exacting Seigneurs too, — (order, order, & hear, hear,) — justice was not to be expected under such circumstances. (Hear.) It has been said the majority of the Seigneurs were not French Canadians, admitted, but he (Mr. Holmes) had never insinuated that the French Canadian was a worse Seigneur than the Englishman, or the Scotchman, the English and Scotch bought their Seigniories on speculation, and like other speculators they would make all they could out of their investments, their object was to make money, and make it they would if the system was not changed, and that too to the detriment of the Country at large, however beneficial to individuals, and injurious to the poor habitant. The hon. member from Quebec had eulogised the system, that hon. member eulogises every thing complained of in Lower Canada by the British population, and condemns every thing they desire to see established, he would stand still, stay all improvements as dangerous innovations, if his advice be followed on this and other subjects, the British population of Lower Canada, will have but little to attach them to the Country of their adoption, and those of the same origin in this section of the Province, will look in vain for that community of feeling which should exist between the two sections of the Province. (Hear.) The hon. members from Upper Canada did not understand, they did not feel the burdens of the Feudal Tenure, and notwithstanding what had been said by the ven. member from Richelieu, and the hon. member from Quebec, he (Mr. Holmes) would fearlessly assert, that so far was it from a fact, that the French Canadians were satisfied with that antiquated system, that from the Bay of Chaleurs to Coteau du Lac, the Feudal system was condemned, nay execrated, — (hear, hear, hear,) — but even admitting for the sake of argument that in the Country, and for a rural population this tenure might be admissible, what was its effect in Villages, Towns and Cities! — (Cheers.) What was its effect on commerce! It was a bar to improvement, a tax upon industry, a direct tax — (hear, hear.)<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Neilson said no, not a tax, a droit.<sup>26</sup>

((Mr. Holmes :)) The hon. member says it is not a tax, he (Mr. Holmes) did not understand the difference attempted to be drawn by the hon. member, but he persisted in saying it was a tax, a most enormous, burdensome, and unjustifiable tax too. What was it? An emigrant, or a merchant, or any other person, bought a vacant lot of land for, perhaps, £100, or £500, no matter, on the purchase money was paid 8 per cent, — he improved the property, erected buildings, a palace if you will, expended thousands upon it — a circumstance induced a change, a desire to sell, misfortunes compelled the improver to part with his property, — it is sold, the Seigneur comes in and lays his hand upon the twelfth part of the product, thus taxing industry, and this beautiful and boasted right of the Seigneur is repeated at each transfer, (hear, hear,) each sale of the property. — In some instances the claims upon the property swallowed up the whole product, — and were hon. members to be told that this was a good, a paternal system (Hear, hear). The Droits de Banalette (sic) too — another beauty of the system — what would farmers in this section of the Province say if they, like the serfs of Lower Canada, were obliged to carry their corn to be ground at the seigniorial mill, no matter how distant nor how miserable or bad that mill might be? Then he would not be permitted to erect a mill upon his own lands, even had he the most splendid water privileges at his door; oh no, those are the seigniorial rights; and what does the Seigneur give to the Censitaire in return? The privilege of eating black bread, for the mills of the Seigniories, with three or four exceptions, are unfit to grind provender for cattle (Hear, hear, hear). — The hon. member for Richelieu has contrasted the Canadian habitant with the peasantry of Ireland, — that gentleman is fond of drawing comparisons of this kind. He (Mr. Holmes) admitted that so far as comfort went the habitant had greatly the advantage, and he deeply felt for and regretted the misery to which the people of his native land were subjected, but these misfortunes were not to be attributed to the difference of tenure, but to injustice and bad government, to mismanagement, the lording it over the many by the few (Hear, hear.) Let us take example, however, and avoid what is bad in Ireland, and not maintain a system quite as bad, if not worse, in Canada. Those who complain, and seek this change, have no desire, no wish to infringe upon the rights, or touch the properties of their fellow subjects without making adequate provision for remuneration. They seek for the change because their demand is just, and they must have it, if not granted upon equitable and fair conditions it will lean to violence, and thus those who are now unwilling to relinquish anything will lose all (hear).<sup>27</sup>

M. Neilson, dit qu'il ne convenait pas d'attribuer de mauvais motifs à ceux qui administrent la justice.<sup>28</sup>

M. Quesnel observa que la même imputation pourrait être faite aux censitaires s'ils étaient Juges. Peu importerait que les juges fussent seigneurs; ils étaient tenus à rendre justice avec impartialité.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Holmes (continuant) il n'était pas partisan d'aucune mesure qui aurait pour effet d'attaquer les droits de quelque personne. Mais il était convaincu qu'il existait des griefs très graves auxquels il désirait voir remédier. Il admettait avec le savant monsieur que les propriétaires d'origine anglaise étaient plus disposés que les autres à mettre des impositions sur leurs censitaires; ils n'achetaient ordinairement que pour spéculer. Il admettait aussi avec son hble. et vénérable ami du comté de Richelieu que le contraste entre les paysans irlandais et les censitaires du Bas-Canada, était en faveur de ces derniers. Ils sont plus riches, plus contents, plus heureux; mais parce que les paysans irlandais sont dans une misérable condition, il ne s'en suit pas que nous ne devons pas améliorer la nôtre. Tout ce qu'on demandait était une commutation juste et raisonnable.<sup>30</sup>

M. Armstrong, comme seconneur de la motion dit, qu'il était extrêmement peiné de différer d'opinion avec son honorable, savant et vénérable ami du comté de Richelieu. Il ne discuterait pas la question de nom sous lequel le système des tenures est désigné dans les résolutions, le nom n'y faisant rien; il ne discuterait pas non plus la beauté de la théorie du système féodal, mais il se bornerait à examiner les effets pratiques de ce système dans le Bas-Canada. L'hble. membre (M. Viger) a admis qu'il y avait des abus infâmes; que depuis quarante ans il a été témoin de ces abus, qu'il s'était en vain efforcé de s'opposer à ce torrent. Si l'hble. membre insiste avec tant de force sur un système qu'il appelle abominable, un système produisant d'aussi mauvais effets, peut-il être bien bon? une telle masse de corruption peut-elle être produite par un bon système. A son avis, il ne le pensait pas. Mais pourquoi s'opposer à une investigation? pourquoi ne pas s'en occuper de suite? Après cela si ce système est mauvais, nonobstant (sic) toute sa beauté théorique, il sera aboli. Quant à l'avancé de mon hble. ami que le seigneur n'a pas droit à la banalité, c'était la première fois qu'il l'entendait dire et c'était pour la première fois que ce droit était mis en question et devant cette chambre. Peut-on croire que si c'était le cas dans la pratique l'on ne verrait qu'un moulin où douze pourraient être bâtis? Le censitaire parcourrait-il 15 à 20 milles pour faire changer de son bled en farine noire? Il pourrait nommer vingt ruisseaux se déchargeant dans le St. Laurent sur lesquels ne se trouvait qu'un seul moulin, lorsqu'on pourrait en bâtir des centaines. Mais quelque chose de plus encore. Par le renouvellement des terriers, il est stipulé dans les titres-nouveaux que le censitaire n'aura pas le droit de construire aucun moulin à vent ou d'autre description. En réponse à l'hble. membre du comté de Québec qui a dit que le pays ne demandait pas une réforme dans la tenure, il dirait que c'était son opposition (sic) déclarée (de lui M. Armstrong) contre le système actuel, qui avait engagé ses contituants (sic) à le choisir pour représentant. On parle d'un sou par arpent; mais cela est ridicule. Depuis longtemps (sic) ce sol par arpent n'existe plus. Quoi de plus vexant pour un censitaire que devoir (sic) le seigneur couper du bois sur sa terre, du bois qu'il réservait pour son propre usage. Bien plus, par les derniers titres-nouveaux, les seigneurs se sont réservés le droit de couper des piquets pour leur usage sur les terres de leurs censitaires. Je pourrais, M. le président entretenir cette chambre la nuit entière, si je voulais entrer dans les détails des abus de cette abominable tyrannie qui pèse sur le Bas-Canada; mais comme ce sera la matière d'une investigation, j'observerai en finissant que si nous sommes gouvernés par les vœux bien entendus du peuple, cette investigation doit être stricte et sévère; et je déclare hardiment devant cette chambre que je soumettrais la question des teneurs aux constituants de la province depuis le lac des Deux-Montagnes jusqu'à celui de Kamouraska, sans craindre nullement le résultat d'un semblable examen.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Johnston dit que l'hble. et vénérable membre du comté de Richelieu était toujours opposé à toutes les mesures propres à produire quelque bien (Ordre, ordre). Il n'a introduit aucune mesure bénéficiaire au pays (Ordre). Je ne me tirai point. Chaque fois que l'hble.

monsieur a une mauvaise cause à soutenir il fait toujours allusion à l'état de l'Irlande (Rire.) Je lui serai très obligé s'il ne veut plus à l'avenir faire de semblables allusions. Le plus pauvre paysan en Irlande, est cent fois plus heureux que ne l'est le censitaire canadien sous la tenure seigneuriale (Eclats de rire). L'opposition de l'hble monsieur à (sic) quelque chose de factieux ; c'est une opposition sans motif. Si la tenure seigneuriale était abolie, mais le pays prospérerait ; à présent il est impossible d'engager les émigrés à s'établir dans le Bas-Canada. Le Bas-Canada n'a jamais rien fait pour encourager l'émigration : Les lois du Bas-Canada ne contiennent rien autre chose à ce sujet, si ce n'est l'imposition d'une taxe sur le pauvre émigré.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Viger l'hble membre est très heureux dans le choix de ses exemples, et il jette beaucoup de lumière sur tous les sujets, particulièrement quand il parle de l'Irlande.<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Turcotte (En français) dit qu'il regrettait pour rendre justice à une question aussi importante, d'être obligé de s'exprimer dans une langue qui n'était point comprise par tous les membres du comité. Cette question était pour le pays d'une importance vitale. On avait l'intention d'altérer, peut être même de détruire un système que plusieurs hbles membres paraissaient disposés à défendre comme bon, par la raison qu'il était en usage depuis longues années. Il n'hésitait pas un instant à décider qu'il considérait ce système comme injuste, inique, disgracieux pour un peuple civilisé du 19<sup>e</sup> siècle, et il ne fallait pas le souffrir plus longtemps. Il regrettait beaucoup de différer d'opinion avec son hble. et vénérable ami du comté de Richelieu. Cet hble. membre avait admis qu'un grand nombre d'abus existait dans la pratique de ce système, mais il (Mr. Turcotte) était préparé à montrer que ce système en lui même était injuste et intolérable. Il désirait être bien compris : il n'entendait pas détruire ce système d'un seul coup. Une telle démarche serait extrêmement dangereuse (sic) et demande beaucoup de sagesse et de prudence ; mais on devait prendre ds (sic) mesures pour changer ce système (sic). Il y avait une grande différence entre la tenure féodale proprement dite, et notre tenure. Les Seigneurs du Bas-Canada n'étaient pas Seigneurs féodaux mais seulement Seigneurs censiers. Il désirait donc que les mots de tenure seigneuriale fussent substitués dans les résolutions à ceux de tenure féodale qui comporte avec elle l'idée d'un honteux esclavage. Puis que l'on admettait les abus pratiques de ce système, il était inutile de s'en occuper plus longtemps. Il attaquerait donc le système lui-même. Quels étaient les principaux droits des seigneurs ? ce sont ceux de lods et ventes de Banalité, et de Retrait. Il avait entendu avec surprise, l'hble membre du comté de Richelieu dire que les lods et ventes n'étaient pas une taxe imposée sur le vendeur. L'hble membre ne voit-il pas que dans la stipulation du prix de vente, l'acheteur considère qu'il aura à payer en sus au seigneur un huitième et un tiers, qu'il payerait au vendeur, si ce droit de lods et ventes n'existait pas. Le vendeur fera donc ce qui est payé au seigneur ; car ce droit de lods et ventes fait que l'acquéreur achète pour un moindre prix. Est-il juste, qu'un homme qui prend possession d'une terre non défrichée qui n'est comparativement d'aucune valeur, qui par ses travaux en élève la valeur, à £500, s'il est ensuite forcé de la vendre, soit obligé de laisser au seigneur un douzième de la valeur de cette terre. Ceci est plus vivement senti dans les grandes villes, où un individu bâtissant une maison sur un morceau de terre ne valant que 50 schellings sera forcé de laisser au seigneur un douzième de cette maison, par ce qu'elle est construite sur un morceau de terre sujet au droit insignifiant de lods et ventes. Cette partie du système était injuste et absurde. Le droit de retrait était également injuste et encore moins supportable. La vérité, la seule idée qu'un homme ait le droit de dire à un autre dans un tems fixé : vous avez fait là un marché très avantageux : je veux en profiter ; voilà votre argent et cette propriété est à moi ; ou bien payez-moi telle somme pour que je n'use pas de mon droit ; cette idée ne pouvait être considérée sans indignation par tout homme capable d'apprécier ses droits sociaux. Le droit de banalité était encore pire. On pouvait le définir, un droit par lequel le seigneur "peut obliger ses censitaires à manger du pain noir," par ce qu'il a le droit de les obliger à faire moudre leurs grains au moulin seigneurial et de retenir un quatorzième de tout ce qui est moulu. Ce droit est une gêne (sic) imposée, sur le commerce de bois et les manufactures. Il regrettait qu'à sa connaissance un seigneur (et ce seigneur était notre Dame la Reine) avait dernièrement fait condamner divers individus à détruire les moulins par eux établis sur une petite rivière dans la seigneurie de Batiscan. Sont-ce-là les conséquences d'un bon système ? En vain l'hble. membre du comté de Richelieu met-il en question l'existence des droits de Banalité et de Retrait ; ils existent non pas tels que les cours de justice l'ont décidé, quant au droit de Banalité, c'est à dire comme inhérents au droit de fief, mais comme droits résultants des conventions des parties auxquelles les censitaires sont forcés d'accéder s'ils veulent obtenir des terres. Il demanderait maintenant à l'hble membre pour Richelieu, ce qu'avaient à faire avec notre système, les tenures d'Angleterre, de Hongrie etc? Parce que ces tenures sont mauvaises, s'ensuit-il que la notre soit bonne; ou que si elle est mauvaise, nous devons adopter l'une d'elles? certainement non. Il voterait pour les résolutions maintenant devant le comité; mais avec la condition expresse qu'on aura égard aux droits acquis des intéressés.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Quesnel, dit que dans l'origine de l'établissement du pays, ce système avait été avantageux. Maintenant il s'agissait de législater (sic) pour l'avenir. Si cela pouvait se faire sans attaquer les droits des intéressés. (sic) ce serait rendre au pays un service éminent. Si on peut trouver un mode de se débarasser de ce système, sans aucun dommage quelconque aux seigneurs actuels, on aura des titres à la reconnaissance de la postérité.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Christie said, that under the existing tenure, what with the crown, and the seignior together, the poor censitaire was similarly situated to the man, who married two wives, who on the one side pulling out the grey hairs, on the other the black were in a fair way of leaving him bald altogether. Whenever property was sold under this tenure, if it was for the fiftieth time, each time the crown came in for a share — then came the seignior with his eight per cent not only upon the land, but upon all improvements on it!! (hear.) — Where two or three francs only had been paid originally — now the claim had advanced to as many pounds (hear, hear) such was the pursuing nature of this course of things that a farm taken under it could not by any means be extricated from this accumulation of exactions.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Morin made a long and able speech in favour of the resolutions now before the committee, calling upon the legislature to provide a remedy, with a due regard to the rights of all. In byegone (sic) years when the system had been established it might have been suitable to the times, but now such a plea could no longer be urged. Among the abuses that were merged in seigniorial claims, he enumerated reservations of timber, of ground for erecting mills, of rights to a certain amount of labour (amounting to a principle of slavery,) reservation of saw-mills (sic), and a right of venality which compelled any party purchasing at a low rate, to resign his bargain upon such purchase money being paid to him.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Parent also spoke in favour of the resolutions, and trusted that parliament would not allow the present session to go on without legislating upon the evil.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Neilson, taking the same view of the subject as Mr. Viger, affirmed, that seigniorial tenures were not burdensome to the people. He had, he said, visited a great many countries, and had found none where the people were so happy and contented as they were on the lands where this state of things prevailed. He declared the present attack was against right and property that ought to be held sacred, and although advocating the abolition of the present system had been made an article of independence by one of his own name in Lower Canada, he maintained that the dues exacted were only such as the seignors were lawfully entitled to, — as such he had always cheerfully paid them — and was willing to continue to do so. These seigniorial rights, he said, had sprung out of the sacrifices that had been made by the seignors in settling the country, at a time, when he remembered it was necessary for the censitaire to take his musket with him when in pursuit of his daily labour — and the aim that was now taken at their destruction, he pronounced to be a principle in its very nature, revolutionary.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Moffatt was of opinion that the change was necessary, and that it could be produced by a change in the Canada Tenures Act. He was an advocate for a voluntary measure, and not compulsory. The hon. member explained that if the Seigneur was allowed first to commute with the censitaire and then with the Crown, that the change would soon be required. He deprecated any time being lost in further enquiries. If the hon. member for Richelieu wished an enquiry, why did he not make it? — why had he done nothing during his long parliamentary career? The hon. member then proceeded to show how the system operated to the prejudice of the country, and particularly the towns.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Viger explained — that 30 years ago a remedy had been proposed — and that whenever an abuse had been decried, his voice had always been exerted for its removal.<sup>41</sup>

Mr. Day spoke at some length in favour of the resolution, diverging from the high road to Lower Canada to the middle ages.<sup>42</sup>

Several Resolutions reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Woods reported, that the Committee had come to several resolutions, which resolutions were again read at the Clerk's table, as followeth : —

Resolutions on "Seigniorial Tenure."

1st Resolved — That from the increasing improvement of the Country, and from the abuses which have grown out of the operation of the Tenure of Lands, now existing in that part of the Province heretofore called Lower Canada, commonly known as the "Seigniorial Tenure," the said Tenure has become less adapted to the wants, prosperity and advancement of the Province, and in many instances burthen-some and oppressive to the people.

2d Resolved — That the different Legislative enactments passed in the Parliament of the United Kingdom, touching and concerning the said Tenure, have not attained the end sought for by their framers — and that it is expedient to adopt other efficient and equitable means for relieving the people from the above difficulties, and of gradually substituting for the Seigniorial system, a Free Tenure more consonant to their condition, interests and wishes.

3d Resolved — That in the changes to be made in the Laws of Tenure — due regard should be had to the vested rights of all parties concerned, and provision made for ascertaining the same with a view to an equitable adjustment.

Ordered — That the question of concurrence be now separately put upon each of the said Resolutions.

And the first and second of the said Resolutions being again severally read, and the question of concurrence being separately put thereon, the House divided upon each, and the names being called for, they were taken down as followeth : —

Order of day for 3rd reading Civil rights Bill read.

The Order of the day for the third reading of the engrossed Bill to secure to and confer upon certain inhabitants of this Province the civil and political rights of natural born British subjects, being read,

Mr. Cartwright moved, seconded by Sir Allan McNab,

That the said Order of the day be discharged, and that it be—

Motion for discharging said order.

Resolutions on same subject moved.

Resolved—That on the ratification of the Treaty of 1783, by Great Britain, and the United States of America, the bond of union between the inhabitants of the two countries was for ever cancelled, and the constitutional obligations on both sides were, by this concurrent Act, as completely dissolved as if they had never existed.

1st Resolution.

Resolved—That since the ratification of the said Treaty the external and internal policy of Great Britain and the United States, has proceeded upon the principle that the Inhabitants of each Country were Aliens to those of the other.

2nd Resolution.

Resolved—That the Province of Quebec remained faithful to His late Majesty King GEORGE the Third, and to the supremacy of the Imperial Government during the American Rebellion.

3rd Resolution.

Resolved—That the said Province was made an Asylum by His late Majesty GEORGE the Third, for His Loyal Subjects who during the American Rebellion adhered to their allegiance.

4th Resolution.

5th Resolution.

Resolved — That while every encouragement was given, by His said late Majesty's Government, for the admission of all Persons from the United States who had manifested their loyalty during the Rebellion, no encouragement was ever given or held out to Citizens of the United States to come into the Province of Quebec, either by Imperial or Colonial Governments.

6th Resolution.

Resolved — That notwithstanding the want of such encouragement, many Persons have continued to gain admission in this Province who, instead of being attached to British Laws, are either hostile or totally indifferent as to what Government they live under, provided it suits the present convenience.

7th Resolution.

Resolved — That the experience of the last four years has proved the hostile disposition of the People of the United States to the British supremacy in Canada, and that it is neither desirable or expedient to encourage emigration from those States into this Province.

8th Resolution.

Resolved — That this House is anxious that Her Majesty's Government should encourage emigration from the United Empire as the only means of ensuring the permanency of that connection between the Parent State and this Province, which is so essential to the prosperity of both.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Cartwright ... for one would not be instrumental in bringing about such a state of things as they had already sufficiently experienced the sad effects of, and which the bill was well calculated to do — that state which these united colonies had but just emerged from — a state of anarchy and rebellion. (Hear, hear.) It had been asserted by an hon. member in that house yesterday that the greater part of the Americans who came to this country are good and loyal subjects. He (Mr. Cartwright) would assert, & fearlessly assert, that they are disloyal! (Hear, hear) The feelings by which they were actuated had been sufficiently portrayed (sic) when the standard of rebellion was raised within these Provinces. He would never consent that the privileges of British subjects should be conferred upon them. The present situation of the country was such as would prevent him from recording his vote in favour of naturalizing any citizen of the United States until we have some better assurance that they will make good subjects. He was desirous that his vote should be recorded on the journals of the House, and he would therefore move that the order of the day be discharged.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Durand said he hoped the motion would be rejected and that the bill would pass. They had no reason to suppose that the Americans who settle in this Province are disloyal; on the contrary, he (Mr. Durand) was convinced that they were for the most part better subjects than those of British origin. (Hear, hear.) The mismanagement of the affairs of government in this colony had brought discredit upon the country, and stopped the tide of emigration. It was not the admission of American citizens to become subjects of this Province which injured the Province, but it was the declaring those who had been foremost in defending the country, to be aliens, as was done a few years ago by the famous or rather infamous Alien bill. His (Mr. Durand's) late lamented father, whose loyalty no one could question, had been designated as an alien.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Hale. — The hon. gentleman has told us that no one could question the loyalty of his late lamented father. I am afraid this could hardly be said with regard to his father's son. (Hear, hear) However, I find myself in this instance compelled to vote with that hon. gentleman, though I am happy to say that I am not often on the same side with him. (Hear, hear.) I am from a part of the country which is almost entirely settled by persons who are Americans by birth, and Canadians by adoption. Among them so much as a whisper of rebellion was never heard. (Hear, hear) On the contrary, ninety-nine out of every hundred had been in arms in defence of the country. It would be extremely ungrateful, therefore, to refuse to admit them to the same privileges which we ourselves enjoy. (Hear, hear.)<sup>6</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said he did not suppose that any thing which he could say would have the effect on changing the determination of the House; but he did not desire to shrink from declaring his opinions upon the important question — upon one of those great measures which have been promised to us by the government; a measure which affects the rights of from five to ten thousand persons in this Province; a measure expressing the views of government; confirming all the advantages as well as the proud honor of being British subjects, upon people who have not even made application for that purpose, and without any recommendation from the home government. All who then heard him must admit that he (Sir Allan) had never hesitated to extend this advantage to all who apply for it by petition; but he could never satisfy himself that it was proper to pass a measure of this description, throwing open the door to all, even the convicts in the Provincial Penitentiary, who as soon as liberated would be entitled to claim the rights of subjects. After what he had witnessed within the last few years he could not believe it was right and proper, by one sweeping measure, to naturalize all, without exception, who are within the Province, and who are so strongly imbued with republican feelings and prejudices that they desire nothing more than to assimilate (sic) our noble institutions to those of the United States. No man can hide from himself the fact that we have, with some few worthy exceptions, the very dregs of society coming from the United States, and a measure of this kind, therefore, though no doubt will be exceedingly popular, will be exceedingly injudicious. If I oppose the measure, I believe it will be admitted that I do so from no other than a good motive. I believe the bill is fraught with danger to the safety and welfare of the country, and for this reason I oppose it.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. J.S. MacDonald said he was opposed to a general measure of this kind. He could not exactly discover the reason why it had been made so comprehensive unless it were that the learned gentlemen were anxious to avoid the numerous applications which would be made to them for separate acts of naturalization. He (Mr. McDonell) was opposed to opening a door for the admission of all Americans indiscriminately for he was perfectly satisfied that they would as soon find the River St. Lawrence turn its current towards Niagara, as they would find Americans become good subjects of this province. (Hear, hear.) Where the greatest number of Americans were settled, there had been the very focus of rebellion; in the Eastern District on the contrary where there were no Americans there was not the slightest suspicion of disloyalty. He believed this bill was calculated to do a great deal of harm in the country and he would therefore vote against it. He was not in favor of making subjects of those who had never asked for the boon, he would at all events allow them to petition the legislature before he granted them the privilege of becoming subjects of this province.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Simpson said he had but one thing to object to, which was, that instead of five years residence as the bill provides, the period should be seven. If it required seven years to learn a simple trade, he thought there should at least as long a probation be required before a foreigner could be endowed with the highest attributes of a British Subject.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Merritt said it was amusing to hear the apprehensions which are expressed by hon. members concerning Americans. There were, he was happy to say, in that house some living witnesses of the conduct of those very people, who had been so mercilessly traduced on occasion of the late war with the United States in 1812. And who were the originators of the late rebellion! Were they Americans? No. They were the English, Irish, and Scotch! — (Hear, hear.) When hon. gentlemen talk of the Americans disseminating their republican principles in this country he really thought it was very like a tacit admission that their institutions were better than our own else, where could be the danger to be apprehended from their attempts. He (Mr. Merritt,) would be ashamed to make such an admission particularly as we have now responsible government. (Hear, hear.) He hoped the bill would pass and more than that, he would have been better pleased if the government had sent down a measure which would have embraced foreigners from all parts of the earth! He thought it was high time that they should abandon the Chinese policy hitherto pursued and adopt a more liberal and extended policy. (Hear.)<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said he believed that the gallant and learned Knight said on a former occasion been in favor of a measure of this description which was introduced in the house of Assembly of Upper Canada by the learned and gallant Colonel from Essex. He (Mr. Cartwright) was in a minority upon that question, but subsequent events had justified the vote he then gave.<sup>11</sup>

Colonel Prince said he only regretted that this bill does not go to the same extent as the one to which the hon. and learned member had just alluded. But he (Col. Prince) was one of those who was willing to get half a loaf if he could not get a whole one. He was astonished to find the gallant Knight from Hamilton so strenuously opposing this bill. He was quite at a loss to imagine by what consideration he was actuated, whether it was because the bill emanates from the government, (hear, hear,) or whether the events of the last four years have changed his opinions — those events which have conferred upon the gallant Knight a great deal of renown at very little inconvenience to himself. (Hear, hear.) If it could be ascertained, the gallant Knight would discover that the majority of the individuals for whom this bill is intended are those who stood by us in the time of our difficulty, not those who annoyed the government of this country during the four years of rebellion. He would acquit the Americans, as a nation, of having been instrumental in putting the government of this country to the expense it had been put to. The revolution of 76 to which hon. gentlemen seemed to attach so much importance as exhibiting the ingratitude of the American nation, he (Col. Prince) contended was an honor to that nation: he declared they were perfectly justified. (Hear, hear.) The individuals for whom the bill is intended are those who have sought our protection, have lived under and obeyed our laws, and the very least we can do is to hold out the right hand of fellowship to them. — (Hear, hear.)<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Hale said he thought there was some consideration due to the remark of the gallant Knight from Hamilton, that the bill comprehends also those who remain within the Province by compulsion — men suffering punishment for crimes. He thought this should not be overlooked.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Hincks expressed his strong approbation of the bill and was satisfied that the hon. gentlemen on the Treasury benches would receive the thanks of the country for it. He remarked on Mr. Hale's eulogium on the American settlers in Lower Canada, who were loyal & contended, because it had been the policy of the government in that section of the Province to treat them well. In this part of the Province on the contrary their just demands had been slighted, their grievances remained unredressed, and they found themselves while nominally in the enjoyment of representative Institutions without any influence whatever over the government. This had rendered many dissatisfied and a few perhaps disaffected, but if they were secured in the enjoyment of their rights no class of the population would be more loyal, and he maintained that there was not in the Province a more sober, well conducted, and respectable population than the American settlers both in the Home District and that which he had the honour to represent, and who had been repeatedly and grossly libelled to her Majesty's Government. He would give his most cordial support to the bill.<sup>14</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said he would reply to one observation of the learned gentleman from Essex, who said that he considered the Americans were perfectly justified in their revolution. He (Sir Allan) believed if this were admitted that upon the same rate of reasoning we should all be rebels in this province. (Hear, hear.) The learned gentleman might be assured that he (Sir Allan) had no particular desire to oppose the government or to support it (Hear, hear.) So long as he considered the government to be right he would of course support them but no longer. (Hear, hear.) He (Sir Allan) was not to be driven from his position by ridicule or by the terror of being thought an opposer of the government.<sup>15</sup>

Petitions to Her Majesty, reported.

To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY :

Petition to Her Majesty on the subject of duties on Timber and deals, on importation into the United Kingdom, from the Colonies.

We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, in Provincial Parliament Assembled, most humbly represent that we have learned, with serious apprehensions, that Your Majesty's servants have recently proposed to the Honorable the House of Commons an alteration, unfavorable to the Colonies, in the relative scale of duties levied on Foreign and Colonial

Timber and Deals, on their importation into the United Kingdom, which scale has remained nearly the same during the last thirty years.

That the discriminating duty in favor of Colonial Timber and Deals was originally established without any solicitation, on the part of the inhabitants of the Colonies, and was considered by them as connected with objects of national policy, and therefore likely to be permanent, and they accordingly embarked their capital and industry in the Trade of preparing and bringing to the Home Market the produce of the Forests of Canada; which trade, during the continued encouragement of the relative scale of Duties, has grown, from the loading in part of a few vessels frequenting the Saint Lawrence, to the loading of more than a thousand ships annually.

That the competition in the Trade, in Timber and Deals in the Colony, is free to all Your Majesty's subjects, and that under an unfavorable alteration of the existing duties, the Trade must almost altogether cease, and a great part of the capital vested in the Trade, and in Lumbering Establishments, be lost, while a very large portion of the Inhabitants must be deprived of their usual employments — the Agriculturists be, to a great degree, deprived of a near and advantageous market for their produce, Importations be greatly diminished, and the Province left without a sufficient revenue for the support of its local Government, the discharge of its existing engagements, and providing for the public wants.

Wherefore Your Petitioners humbly pray that Your Majesty will be graciously pleased to maintain the Inhabitants of this Province in the privileges and protection which their Trade now enjoys.

And Your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

An amendment was proposed to the 2nd clause, imposing a fine of £20 upon not making the necessary return.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Draper, to justify the propriety of this, said, to such a degree had those fines been misappropriated, that he knew, from personal experience, where the fines in a district had amounted to more than had been returned for the whole province. (Hear, hear.)<sup>19</sup> on repealing Laws for disposal of Public Lands.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the expediency of repealing the law of that part of the Province heretofore Upper Canada, for the disposal of the Public Lands of the Province, and providing by a law applicable to all parts of the Province for the disposal of Public Lands therein being, read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Armstrong took the chair of the Committee,<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Harrison proposed to convert land rights into scrip, transferable; all agents transacting land business, to be subject to Commissioners, the latter to the Legislature. The Hon. Secretary disapproved of making wild land a source of revenue, and considered that, in order to carry out a wise plan, the first object should be, the settling of it — then revenue.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Harrison stated that the object was to do away with the auction system entirely and to provide for sales being made at fixed prices in every district, and also in certain cases to make free grants in small lots of 50 acres to actual settlers.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Baldwin enquired whether land claims would be received in payment in future at a fixed price.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Harrison explained that the reason why these claims had been refused in payment of Clergy Reserves, was that the Crown fund had become largely indebted to the Clergy fund, owing to the amount of these claims paid on account of the Clergy Reserves.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Hincks remarked on the great loss and inconvenience to which the people were subjected, owing to the vacillating conduct of the Executive Government. He knew an instance where a poor man had sold his team and waggon to procure land claims to pay on account of his Clergy Reserve lot, and afterwards they were refused. He also expressed a hope that some means would be taken to prevent the mistakes which too frequently occur at the Crown Land Office. He had that morning had occasion to go to the Crown Lands Office on behalf of one of his constituents who had about two years ago bought a lot at auction and paid for it in full. When the patent came to be made out it was ascertained that the lot had been already granted, and the other half of the lot was supposed to be the one intended to be sold. A patent was made out accordingly and was now in possession of the party, but he was written to a few days afterwards to say that this also was a mistake and he must surrender his patent or be brought into Chancery. The party interested, a highly respectable freeholder of the Brock District, was still without relief, and he (Mr. Hincks) was informed that he had written several letters to the Hon. Secretary which had not been attended to. He hoped that in this instance he should be able to procure redress, but such mistakes ought to be guarded against. He (Mr. H.) highly approved of the principle of selling lands at a fixed price by private sale, and should therefore support the resolution.<sup>29</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Chairman reports a Resolution.

And Mr. Armstrong reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —

Resolution.

Resolved — That it is expedient to repeal the law of that part of the Province called Upper Canada, regulating the sale of Public Lands, and to provide, by a law applicable to all parts of this Province, for the disposal of Public Lands therein.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Tuesday next.

Committee of whole on Small Debts Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to repeal the laws now in force in that part of this Province formerly called Upper Canada, for the recovery of small debts, and to make other provisions therefor, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thompson took the Chair of the Committee.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Durand shortly after the commencement of the discussion moved that the committee rise and sit again this day three months.<sup>31</sup>

This was supported by Messrs. Merritt, Roblin, Thorburn, Cook and a few others. These gentlemen stated that public opinion was entirely against the bill, that the people liked the present system of local commissioners with some amendments.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Hincks thought the great objections entertained by the people were to the details of the present measure, to which he was also opposed, but he was happy to find that the gentlemen opposite had consented to a most material alteration by conceding the jury clauses. He (Mr. H.) desired to give the people a system by which their disputes could be fairly settled by their neighbours, and he would rather they should have a jury of 5 neighbours at their discretion than commissioners who had always been badly appointed, and he feared would continue to be so. There was great difficulty in selecting men that would command public confidence. As the Judges of the District Court are also to be the Division Judges, there would be no increase of government patronage. The bill might not be perfect, but it would be improved hereafter, and at any rate it would at once sweep away all the present commissioners. The bill was to be only for 4 years, and if it did not give satisfaction would not be renewed. He (Mr. H.) had several amendments to propose to the details, but he would accept the bill as the best measure that could at present be procured.<sup>33</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

amended.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thompson reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill and made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Order of day Committee of whole on District Court Law of U. C. postponed.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the District Court Law of Upper Canada, as regards the payment of Judges and Clerks, being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed until to-morrow.

Order of the day for Committee of whole on purchasing private Stock of Welland
Canal, postponed.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the expediency of granting a sum of money to purchase the private shares in the Welland Canal being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed, until to-morrow.

Order of the day for Committee of whole on Mill dam Bill postponed.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to settle, by a more easy and less expensive mode than now by Law exists, the damages which have been, or may hereafter be, sustained by the Proprietors of Land overflowed by means of the erection of Mill Dams, being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed until to-morrow.

Then on motion of the Honourable Mr. Viger, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

The House adjourned.

Two commentaries on the debate are given below, as well as a reconstructed report of it. BRITISH COLONIST, 4 August 1841 : "The debate on the bill in committee, it would not be very instructive to give, a disgraceful dialogue of personality and recrimination pervading it throughout. — Indeed to such a height was this indecent conduct carried, that the speaker was obliged to take the chair, and establish something of that decorum which is expected to prevail among an assembly of gentlemen. To say that he failed may be easily anticipated, and to say any more would be equally useless." The EXAMINER, 4 August 1841 : "On the division for the committee to rise, the opponents of the bill were left in a very small minority, and they afterwards with a few exceptions left the House. The details were discussed in a very thin house, but we are bound to state that Mr. Draper appeared willing to assent to all the reasonable suggestions offered. Mr. Durand wished to increase the jurisdiction of the court to £20, but it was argued that as it was an experiment, it would be better not, besides which it would require an entire alteration in the District Court law. Mr. Durand also wanted the court held once a month instead of once in two months. This was thought impracticable, but I am able to state pretty confidently that if on trial it is found possible to do so, the law will be amended."

Committee to prepare and report Statements of the grounds on which the Bill for presenting failure of Justice at Elections, was founded, presents report.

Sir Allan MacNab, from the Special Committee to which was referred the Message from the Honourable the Legislative Council, of the 21st instant, relating, to the Bill intituled "An Act for preventing any failure of justice in respect of complaints of undue elections or Returns of Members of the Legislative Assembly of this Province at the last general election," with instructions to prepare and report with all convenient speed, a statement of the grounds upon which this House proceeded in passing the said Bill, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"The grounds and evidence upon which your Honourable House proceeded in passing the said Bill were derived, some of them, from the records of the Imperial Parliament, some from those of the Provincial Parliament of Lower Canada, some from the Journals of your own House, some from public notoriety, and others from the information of those Honourable Members who had charge of the several Petitions referred to in the said Bill, and who had presented such Petitions to your Honourable House; and that such grounds and evidence were as followeth : —

That certain Acts of the Provincial Parliament of the late Province of Lower Canada, to regulate the trial of contested elections in that Province, were, by an Act of the said Provincial Parliament, passed in the 4th. year of the Reign of His late Majesty King WILLIAM the Fourth, continued until the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and thirty six and thence, until the end of the then next session of the Provincial Legislature, and no longer; that after the said first day of May, in the year aforesaid, the Provincial Parliament of the said Province was duly convened by Royal Proclamation on two several occasions at the City of Quebec in that Province, and on each of those occasions continued sitting for several days, and was, on both occasions, duly prorogued; on the first, by the representative of the Sovereign in person, and on the second, by Royal Proclamation: that as well in common parlance, as in the published Journals of both Houses of the said Provincial Parliament; in one of the speeches from the Throne delivered to such Parliament; in the addresses of both Houses to the Governor General; in the Journals of the Imperial House of Commons, and in the official correspondence of the secretary of state for the colonies, in reference to the proceedings at such meetings, the said meetings were called and spoken of as sessions of the said Provincial Legislature. — That in consequence of the said Acts to regulate the trial of such contested elections not having been further continued by any Legislative enactment made at either of the said meetings, such Acts had, in the common estimation of the Public, been looked upon and esteemed as having expired, and as being no longer in force at the time of the passing of the Act of the Imperial Parliament for suspending the constitution of the said Province of Lower Canada, and that consequently the said Acts were not continued by the Provisions of the Act of the Imperial Parliament for reuniting the Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada; an impression strengthened by the circumstance of the Special Council having deemed it expedient to pass an Ordinance for continuing an Act of the Parliament of Lower Canada, which had a similar tendency to that of the Acts before mentioned. — That in consequence of there having been no Act of the Provincial Parliament passed, nor any judgment given at either of the said meetings it has been deemed by Your Honourable House that the said meetings, were not either of them sessions of the Provincial Legislature, within the meaning of the Legislative provision for continuing such Acts, and that consequently the same are in force at this day.

Report.

That the Petitions referred to in the said Bill, although unaccompanied with the formalities required by those Acts, were, during the early part of the present session, received by Your Honourable House without the circumstance of the said Acts being still in force having been brought under the consideration of Your Honourable House. — That those petitions contain allegations of the occurrence of outrages of the most aggravated and atrocious character, which, if true, are not only most injurious to the peace of the country, but destructive of the character of Your Honourable House as being a true representative of the people.

That in consequence of the said Petitions having been so received, the Petitioners were left under the misapprehension that the said Acts were not in force, and Your Honourable House not having come to a contrary decision until after the period of presenting such Petitions according to the said Acts, the Petitioners were thus deprived of the opportunity of presenting new Petitions accompanied with the proper formalities, which they might have done, had Your Honourable House rejected those said Petitions in the first instance as not complying with those Acts.

That from the want of such formalities, Your Honourable House, without such authority as is provided by the said Bill, is precluded from proceeding upon the said Petitions under the provisions of the said Act, a course which, from the protection it affords to the sitting Members from unfounded complaints, is more beneficial to them than to any other."

Report, with copies of Petitions referred to, to be communicated to the Legislative Council.

On motion of Sir Allan McNab, seconded by Mr. Neilson, Ordered — That the report of the Special Committee to which was referred the Message from the Honourable the Legislative Council of the 21st instant, relating to the Bill intituled "An Act for preventing the failure of justice in respect of complaints of undue elections or returns of Members of the Legislative Assembly of this Province at the last General Election," together with copies of the several Petitions therein referred to, be communicated, by Message, to the Honourable the Legislative Council.

Ordered — That Sir Allan McNab do carry the said Message to the Legislative Council.

Mr. Durand, from the Special Committee, to which was referred the Bill to repeal a certain Section of an Act of the Legislature of Upper Canada, relative to macadamized roads, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table.

Ordered — That the said Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Monday next.

Mr. Morris, from the Special Committee appointed to superintend the Printing of this House during the present Session, with power to report from time to time, presented to the House the third report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, as followeth : —

"Your Committee having fully considered the subject matter of their second report, which was, by Your Honourable House, referred back for consideration, have now to state, that nothing has been elicited to induce Your Committee to believe that a combination existed between the Printers, or that the prices at which the Printing is offered to be performed is excessive. Your Committee have therefore respectfully to recommend that the daily printing of Your Honourable House, together with the printing of the Journals and Appendices of the present Session, be given to Messrs. Desbarats & Cary, who have tendered for the work at the following prices : —

Daily Printing in the English language, per 1000 Ems, 2s 6d.

Do. in the French language, per 1000 Ems, 2s 9d.

Journals and Appendices in the English and French languages, per 1000 Ems, 2s. 3d.

Your Committee have also to report that Richard Brewer has offered to bind the Journals and Appendices of the Legislative Assembly, at three shillings per volume of not more than 550 pages, and three pence per volume for every additional fifty pages ; and the price, in the opinion of Your Committee, being exceedingly moderate, the tender is humbly recommended for the adoption of Your Honourable House.

Ordered — That the said report be now referred to a Committee of the whole House.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Cameron took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Cameron reported, that the Committee had come to several Resolutions, which he was directed to submit to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

the expediency of altering, rescinding or amending, any of the Rules of this House, lost by the adjournment of the House of Friday, the 16th instant, be revived, and that this House will, on Wednesday next, resolve itself into the said Committee.

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

Ordered, accordingly.

Justices convictions agreed to.

Mr. Powell, from the Committee of the whole House on the Bill to require Justices of the Peace to make returns of convictions and fines, reported, according to order, the amendments made by the Committee to the said Bill, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House.

Small debts Bill reported amended.

Mr. Holmes, from the Committee of the whole House on the Bill to repeal the Laws now in force in that part of this Province formerly called Upper Canada, for the recovery of small debts, and to make other provisions therefor, reported, according to Order, the amendments made by the Committee to the said Bill, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table.

1st to 29th amendment agreed to.

And the 1st to the 29th of the said amendments, inclusive, being again severally read, and the question of concurrence being separately put thereon, they were agreed to.

30th amendment read.
Amendment proposed.

The 30th of the said amendments being read,

Mr. Hincks moved, seconded by Mr. Price,

That the words "five pounds" be struck out of the said amendment, and the words "fifty shillings" substituted.<sup>1</sup>

He ((Mr. Hincks)) had, he said, supported the principle of the bill, but it was solely on the ground that the jury clauses would be satisfied, that without them, the people would not be satisfied.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Secretary Harrison stated that he would cheerfully consent to the alteration: he thought it might tend to give greater confidence to the Court.<sup>3</sup>

((Mr.)) Parke ((was)) pro — <sup>4</sup>

Mr. J.S. Macdonald was opposed to the amendment, because he thought the majority of cases were between £2 10 0 and £5 and it would take away from the jurisdiction of the judge.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Smail also opposed the amendment: he thought if a Judge could not decide in all cases under £5, there had better be no Courts at all.<sup>6</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was entirely opposed to the alteration.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Hincks said, that if the principle were a good one for sums over £ 5, it was equally good for sums under that amount. The argument of the honorable member for Glengarry (Mr. McDonald) only made him more determined to press his amendment; for if the majority of cases were between £50 and £5, he would like to protect the people by giving them juries. If the Judges gave satisfaction, there would be no juries required by the suitors.<sup>8</sup>

(264)

Division on motion.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported amended.

And Mr. Barthe reported, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made an amendment thereto, which amendment was again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill, as amended, be engrossed.

House goes into Committee on Report on Currency and Banking.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the First Report of the Special Committee on Currency and Banking, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Morin took the chair of the Committee.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Holmes introduced these resolutions<sup>10</sup> with a lucid speech, shewing the injury that had been long sustained by the commercial community, owing to the derangement of the currency in both sections of the Province, and the necessity for an assimilation (sic). He was opposed to every thing like protection to the Banks, and in favour of a sound currency, of equal value to that in the adjoining States.<sup>11</sup> The proceedings of the Legislature of Upper Canada had raised the British coin to 12½ per cent above its real value, while the proposed Bill tended to an assimilation of the currency within the Province and with the United States.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Cartwright regretted much that so much apathy should be evinced on this very important subject. He was surprised that the benches should be almost empty. The honorable and learned gentleman gave an interesting account of the origin of Banking institutions in Canada, and pointed out the impropriety of tampering with the currency. Mr. Cartwright did not offer any amendment to the resolutions; but it was evident that he was in favour of the British shilling being retained at its present value.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Hincks concurred with the hon. and learned member in regretting that the house should be so thinly attended on a question so deeply interesting to the community. He was as unwilling as that hon. gentleman to tamper with the currency and as ready to admit the impropriety of doing so, — the currency, however, had been already most unfortunately tampered with by the Parliament of Upper Canada, and as it was on all hands admitted that an assimilation must take place on the standard in both sections of the province, it became a question whether that standard should be sound or depreciated. The act giving a fictitious value to British silver coins was in his (Mr. Hinck's) opinion a most fatal error. The real standard of value in Canada was the silver dollar, and a more convenient one could not be found. — Where the Halifax currency was established it was evidently desired to retain the British money of account, viz. pounds, shillings and pence, but as the circulating medium was the silver dollar and its parts, the pound Halifax was fixed at four dollars, so that the shilling was exactly one fifth part of the dollar. At this time the silver dollar was worth 4s 6d sterling, which is to this day our nominal par of exchange. Since that time the silver dollar has been reduced in value, and is now worth only 4s 2d sterling, so that the real par of exchange is 8 per cent premium. The Legislature of Upper Canada, without altering the standard, gave a fictitious value to the British shilling, fixing it at a rate equal to 12½ per cent premium. — Thus, though a dollar in England was worth 4s 2d, we attempted by act of Parliament to make it worth only 4s. Now, the effect of this has been exactly what might have been anticipated. The silver dollars have all left the country, and our Exchanges have been regulated by the British shilling. But the absurdity of the enactment must appear still greater when it was recollected that the British shilling is itself only a token in England, and not worth intrinsically more than about 11d. The people in England were protected from this depreciated coin, 1st, by its being only a legal tender to a very small amount; 2d, by the precaution taken to prevent an excess of coinage, the mint being limited to a certain amount, viz., that absolutely necessary to supply the circulating medium. These guards have not existed in Canada. British silver has been a legal tender to an unlimited amount, and the mint supply, although it produces no effect on the circulating medium, is sufficient to enable the Canada Banks to import what supplies the whole currency of this country, and regulates our exchanges. The consequence is, that there is no certainty whatever as to the rate of exchange. The Banks have it in their power to charge much higher than they have done, as Exchange might rise to 15 per cent before British silver could be exported even assuming that it could be parted with at its nominal value in England, and this it is notorious could not be done in large amounts. The object of depreciating the currency was to protect the Banks, but this he (Mr. Hincks) held to be a palpable fallacy. He maintained, and he spoke under the correction of the hon. mem. for Montreal (Mr. Holmes) that the sounder the currency the more extensive would be the circulation of Bank paper — (hear, hear.) — It was most erroneous to imagine that by legislative enactments, we could prevent the regular return of Bank notes for redemption. The great danger apprehended was from the United States. Now, he (Mr. Hincks) would shew how preposterous it was to imagine that we could prevent demands from that quarter by legislative enactments. We purchase largely in the United States, particularly agricultural produce. This is, in a great measure, paid for in Bank notes, which of course find their way back for redemption. They come into the hands of the Buffalo, and Cleveland, and Rochester brokers, who buy them at rates proportionate to the value of coin, and exchange in Canada. The Bank of Upper Canada had parted with 12000 sovereigns this spring; (besides a large amount of exchange), at 25s. 6d. each, in payment of its notes. Now, the brokers in the United States bought Canada bills exactly at such rates as would enable them to realize a profit, getting sovereigns at the Bank price. This rate was latterly about six per cent. If we raised the value of our sovereigns to $6 instead of $5, it would only depreciate our paper, without protecting the Banks in the slightest degree, except in so far as it would enable them to charge exactly what they pleased for exchanges, and thus deprive us of the advantage of a paper currency convertible (sic) into bullion on demand. Having endeavoured to point out the disadvantages of a depreciated currency, to which the large majority of the committee were entirely opposed, he would offer a few observations on the standard of value. After mature consideration, it was not thought prudent by the committee to adopt Sterling money as the money of account. Many objections were made to it : amongst others, one in which he (Mr. Hincks) did not concur, viz. : That it would involve the necessity of a gold standard — the British sovereign, there being no British silver coin, except tokens. It being determined on, for many reasons, to adhere to our present currency, it appeared obvious that no standard could be better than the silver dollar, a coin current throughout the whole civilized world. This, then, had been adopted as our standard, and all gold and Foreign silver had been fixed at their intrinsic value, measured by the silver dollar. It is proposed in the bill, that the value of these coins should be similar to what it is in the United States. He (Mr. Hincks) was decidedly of opinion that the dollar and its parts should be the sole standard of value, as he considered it a fallacy to attempt, by legislative enactment, to have more than one standard. In England, the gold sovereign alone was a legal tender : and he would have been desirous to have carried out the same principle in this Province. But in the United States they had most erroneously in his (Mr. H's.) opinion adopted several standards, and as our Banks are compelled to obtain their supplies of specie from that country, it was thought advisable to put the currency on the same footing. He (Mr. H.) would therefore defer to the opinions of the majority of the committee, the members of which were gentlemen of great experience in such matters, and the more readily as the coins were all fixed at such rates that no inconvenience could result to the public. As to the British silver coins, it was desirable to retain them in the country, as their real value could not be fixed on them without subjecting the public to great inconvenience. It had been proposed to continue their value at 1s. 3d and 7½d, and make them a legal tender only to the extent of 40s, and he (Mr. H.) had at one time thought that this might be safely done ; but it would be recollected that there was a large amount, say £100,000 of such coin in the province, and the consequence would be that the Banks would pay them out and they would ((go)) into the hands of small dealers who would not be able to make use of them at their nominal value. On the whole therefore it was better to fix them at such a rate, say 1 2d & 7d. as would drive them out of the country when their place would be supplied by the American quarters, dimes and half dimes which would be much more in accordance with our standard. — He had troubled the committee with these observations on a subject of paramount importance and one in which the greatest interest was taken by the public in both sections of the Province and more particularly by the commercial community.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Harrison said it had been considered in select committee, whether it would be better to give preference to British currency or to that of the States — our proximity to and numerous transactions with the latter, decided in favour of it.<sup>15</sup>

The committee was subsequently addressed by... Mr. Simpson and the hon. Mr. Moffatt in support of the resolutions.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Buchanan thought that no party would be found to object to making uniform the currency in Upper and Lower Canada, nor to the repeal of all the existing monetary regulations of both provinces as the most convenient means to that end. He therefore would offer no objection to the present bill being introduced into the house ; but at the proper time he would oppose its details ; as by exactly assimilating our currency in value to that of the United States, the bill subjects this province to be legislated for on this vital subject by the neighbouring Republic, and exposes us to all the inconvenience of all the changes in the money market of that country. He contended that unless the Sovereign, (the coin, which in practice, is to be the standard of value) be put at 24s. 6d. as its value laid down in Canada instead of as proposed at 24s. 3d. its legal value in New York, a traffic in specie would be created between the countries at the expense of, and otherwise detrimental to this Province. He did not mean to hold that this country (as being the debtor) could in any way avoid a loss equivalent to the expense of bringing in specie ; all he desired to attain was that we should avoid the actual transportation of specie from the one country to the other as the general rule, because while exposed to a perpetual drain of specie our provincial circulation could not (situated as we are), be otherwise than limited and feverish in the extreme. The effects on the country would be very disastrous. Reduced competition in the purchase of grain would tend to reduce its price, and a great restriction in Bank accommodation to the trade world, by putting down competition, put up the prices of all kinds of imported merchandize. He would advocate the nominal depreciation of 3d on the sovereign, as this would not be so great a loss to the country as must be incurred by employing agents in New York to buy specie, and carriers to bring it into Canada, especially during winter. Our Banks would gain by the depreciation instead of the foreigner and would thus be enabled to get for drafts on New York a small premium sufficient to bring back any specie that they may pay out. The Banks would therefore issue their notes freely, as even in case of a drain of specie occurring, they would be liable only to its inconvenience but not to any positive loss by the transaction. He wished also to make the colony sure of a supply of small change by continuing the value of the English shilling at 1s. 3d., but he considered it not material to however small an amount it should be declared to by a legal tender.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Thorburn proposed that the report should be laid upon the table to give the people time to deliberate upon it. He was also anxious to prevent the loss from depreciation from falling on the poor.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Simpson expressed the same considerate feeling.<sup>19</sup>

The resolutions were adopted without a division, and Mr. Cartwright then moved seconded by Mr. Thorburn. That the several coins heretofore current by law in this Province at a certain rate which are not maintained by the present contemplated alteration, should be called in, and that the actual expense of such calling in & of receiving the same be borne by this Province and that the same be called in within — months after the passing of the said act.<sup>20</sup>

This gave rise to a long discussion. It was on the same hand contended that the faith of the public was pledged to the present value of the coins, while on the other hand it was agreed that a government was only bound to call in coin of its own coinage. If the principle of the resolution were admitted we should have to redeem all the French coin on this or the European continent, and the country would be flooded with British silver sent out from England for redemption at our expense. It was also urged that the Banks had obtained the profit on the silver when it was raised by the former act....<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Secretary Harrison observed that the Banks had a long account to settle with the public for their profits on Bank issues for many years.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Durand said that he had opposed the currency bill when it (sic) was introduced in 1836, believing that it was founded on a most erroneous principle. The bill however was for a limited time, and the Bank had therefore no right to expect its renewal and should not have imported too largely.<sup>23</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Several Resolutions reported.

1st. Resolution.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Morin, reported that the Committee had come to several Resolutions, which Resolutions were again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House, and are as followeth : —

Resolved — That it is expedient to repeal the separate Acts now in force in the several portions of this Province for regulating the rates at which certain Coins pass current therein, and to ascertain what Coins shall pass current, and the values at which they shall so pass, by one Law, common to the whole Province.

Resolved — That it is expedient that the rates at which all Gold Coins, and also all Foreign Silver Coins, shall pass current, should be proportionate to their intrinsic value, and that the standard should be the Silver Dollar, four of which shall be equal to one pound, currency.

3rd. Resolution.

Resolved — That British Silver Coin should pass current at rates proportionate to their nominal value.

Currency Bill brought in and read 1st. time.

House goes into Committee on Road Act of 50. Geo. 3rd.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to consider the expediency of amending the Road Act of the 50th GEO. 3, Cap. 1. of the late Province of Upper Canada, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee,

Mr. Prince, took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,<sup>25</sup>

A Resolution reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Prince, reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —

Resolution.

Resolved — That it is expedient to alter and amend an Act passed in the 50th year of GEO. 3, Cap. 1, relating to the laying out, amending and keeping in repair, the public highways in the Province heretofore called Upper Canada, by altering the mode of serving and affixing notices of alterations in Roads or Highways.

The house concurring in the report, Col. Prince took the opportunity of expressing his personal acknowledgments to the member for Carlton for the introduction of so useful a measure. As a landholder he had reason to complain bitterly of the hole and corner system that had prevailed hitherto ; lands having been got up, and roads forked out, without any notice whatever, having been given to the proprietors of the soil.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Baldwin would like to see the Surveyors paid by the inhabitants themselves. Where roads passed sub silentio, they were paid out of the District Treasury.<sup>27</sup>

Road Act amendment Bill brought in and read.

Ordered — That Mr. Johnston, have leave to bring in a Bill to alter and amend an Act of the Legislature of Upper Canada, intituled "An Act to provide for the laying out, amending, and keeping in repair, the Public Highways and Roads in this Province, and to repeal the Laws now in force for that purpose."

He accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received and read for the first time.

Second reading Friday next.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Friday next.

Order of day for Committee of whole on Bill (N. A. C. Association of Ireland) postponed.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to authorize the North American Colonial Association of Ireland, to loan moneys, and to prosecute certain works in the County of Beauharnois, being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed until Wednesday next.

House goes into Committee on Ballot Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to authorize the voting by Ballot, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Johnston, took the chair of the Committee,<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Small said, in rising to propose the adoption of the first enacting clause of this bill, he would not detain the committee with any lengthened remarks upon it. The principle of voting by ballot had been discussed in almost every session of the Upper Canada legislature for the last ten or fifteen years.<sup>29</sup> The hon. and learned member, read from the Journals of 1835 and 1836, showing at those periods, large majorities had declared in favour of it.<sup>30</sup> The Bill had passed the House of Assembly three or four times, and had as often been rejected by the Legislative Council. The argument generally used in opposition to the measure was that it is republican, and that it was a disgrace to come to the polls and give a secret vote. This latter circumstance, however, of its being a secret vote was the very thing which in his estimation recommended it, because in that very secrecy lay the security. It is calculated to render security to the poor voter, to the tradesman, the mechanic, from the oppression of those who are able to exercise a strong control over him. He Mr. Small had witnessed the ill effects of the open system of voting as practiced in this province. The present system was one which he believed was loudly called for by a large majority of the people of Upper Canada. He had no desire, however, to press forward the measure at present until we see what sort of election law we shall get. (Hear, hear.) But he wished it to be particularly understood that he did not abandon the principle, and he would now take the sense of the committee on the principle of the bill by moving for the adoption of the first enacting clause.<sup>31</sup>

Col. Prince said if this measure had been introduced by any other than a countryman of his own, he would have felt less astonishment. But that an Englishman in an English province should have the temerity to bring forward a measure so completely hostile to British institutions, was a matter not only of astonishment but of regret. The speech of the hon. and learned gentleman has been brief, because he finds that he has leaned upon a broken reed. But brief as the speech of the hon. gentleman has been, mine shall be still more brief. I admit that in the old country the vote by ballot may in some cases be useful, but I am not prepared to say that it is that system of voting at elections which I would vote for; but I am prepared to say that if there is a country in the world where the lower class who possess votes are under the all powerful influence of the wealthy, it is in England. But does this observation apply to this country? Certainly not. Are we so dependant, so ignoble, as to be controlled in the exercise of our franchise? I trust we are not. — Does not this broad, expansive, this beautiful, this fertile country, afford to every human being who is able to raise the hatchet upon his shoulders a sufficient independence? (No.) I say that every man who possesses health and strength may, if he choose, be as independent as the lord of the land. (Hear, hear.) Yes, the backwoodsman of Canada is far more independent than the office holder who relies upon the fleeting fancies of the popular will for his continuance in office. I will never acknowledge that the Canadian freeholder has any necessity for resorting to this underhand mode of giving his vote; no, he may go boldly to the hustings, and defy any human being to injure him if he gives an honest vote. You may talk of Executive influence, but I say if any one allows such influence to be exercised over him he is ignoble. (Hear, hear.) I am aware that in a country where a man is dependant upon a rich, powerful, and sometimes tyrannical landlord, and in manufacturing districts they are sometimes constrained to vote according to the wishes of their employers. There may, therefore, be some reason for adopting the vote by ballot in those countries, but I deny that this applies to Canada. The practice is not British — it is anti-British; and I lament exceedingly that the measure should have been introduced into this house by a countryman of my own. Viewing it in this light as anti-British, and as being inapplicable to this country, I will not allow any part of the bill to be adopted with my concurrence. I look upon it as an insult to the freeholders of Upper Canada. I will therefore move that the committee rise.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Price rose and said it was not his intention to detain the committee with any lengthy remarks, he was called up however, by the remarks of his friend and countryman, the hon. and learned gentleman from Essex, who states that the system of voting by ballot is anti-British. It is a matter of little consequence to this committee whether it be Anti-British, if it be calculated to secure the rights of British subjects; and it is a singular mode of reasoning to say that it is anti-British when in almost every institution in England, it is in use except in the election of members of Parliament; and even in the election of the Scotch and Irish Peers it is practiced, and in choosing committees in the British House of Commons it is also practiced. Now this being the case it cannot be so very anti-British if members were to be elected in the same way. — With regard to individuals not having the moral courage to come up to the polls and vote openly, that is evidence of cowardice on the part of voters. But will not hon. members admit that there are both direct and indirect causes which influence voters, and which in many cases compel them to vote against their conscience? He (Mr. Price) would put the case of a man of family perfectly independent in his own mind, but somewhat embarrassed, as many people are, and that the sheriff has an execution hanging over his head without exercising any other than the legitimate power which he possesses, yet the very knowledge, that he has the power of putting him to great inconvenience will operate materially upon the vote he gives. This of itself is a sufficient consideration to induce this house to adopt some mode of relief to those who have the misfortune to be similarly situated, and the number is not small. At the election of the city of Toronto the Sheriff was himself a candidate in opposition to his hon. friend who originated this measure, and although he (Mr. Price) had not supposed that the sheriff had not exercised his power unlawfully to influence his voters, yet the very consciousness that he possessed that power, was in his opinion sufficient to operate injuriously, whereas if the vote by ballot had been established every man might have voted according to his conscience. Many elections he (Mr. Price) fully believed had been carried in this province contrary to the wishes of the people, (hear, hear,) from the very circumstance of this desirable method of voting not having been adopted. It is a measure which is absolutely necessary to the liberty of the subject. (Hear, hear.) There is a feeling throughout Canada which is disgusting and infamous, there are persons prowling about through the length and breadth of the land denouncing as rebels those who oppose the government. (Hear, hear.) If we are to be coerced in this way and threatened with club law, we might as well give up the idea of responsible government altogether, (hear, hear,) or any any (sic) other government. (Hear, hear.)<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Durand said he must confess he was surprised at the summary and cavalier manner in which the learned and hon. gentleman from Essex had treated this measure. That gentleman had been in Parliament for a considerable time and must be considered to be acquainted with parliamentary usages, but when he reads a lecture to hon. members in this house, he must remember that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones. (A laugh.) If he (Mr. Durand) were to consult his own feelings he would at once say, he was not in favor of the vote by ballot, (hear, hear,) because he did not believe that anything would influence him in giving his vote. He had sufficient command over himself. (Hear, hear, hear, order, go on.) But there were people who were differently situated. He knew perfectly well that influence was exercised, and that not on the right side either. (Hear, hear.) He was perfectly aware that at the late election large sums of money had been laid out; where they come from he was unable to say. (A laugh.) A good deal of chicanery had been used, and no doubt other tricks would still be resorted to. (Cries of "question.") I am not going to be tedious, I shall forego my own feelings and vote in favor of the bill, because I think it absolutely required.<sup>34</sup>

present second report.

Mr. Thorburn, from the Special Committee on the contingent accounts and expenses of the present session, with power to report from time to time, presented to the House the second report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table and is as followeth : —

Second report of Committee on contingencies.

"Your Committee, upon examining the account of Mr. W. J. Coates, find that a sum is yet due to him, of two hundred and sixty five pounds, eighteen shillings, by the late House of Assembly, of Upper Canada, for printing, — principally upon contract work.

Your Committee find, moreover, that he did not receive payment from time to time, on account, as had been usual, for some time past, with persons having contracts with the House, owing to the sum of money placed in the hands of the Clerk having proved insufficient to meet the various demands against the House; and therefore they are of opinion that Mr. Coates, should be allowed an additional sum of fifty pounds in consideration thereof, and have prepared a resolution to that effect: but while your Committee recommend this allowance, they beg that it may be distinctly understood that it must not be taken as a precedent by future contractors.

Your Committee have also examined the following accounts submitted to them by the Clerk of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, and the Sergeant-at-Arms, and find them to be true and correct, viz :

By the Clerk.

The account of Richard Tinning .....	£	3	2	6
John McKenzie .....		17	10	4½
Thomas Carey &amp; Co, .....		2	10	0
Which, with the sum due to Mr. Coates , .....		265	18	0
<hr/>
Will amount to .....	£	289	0	8½

And by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The account of Hugh McLennan .....	£	57	15	0
J. Edmonde .....		15	18	8
W. Bickerstaff .....		6	14	8
Silas Burnham .....		12	12	0
Geo. Denison .....		3	13	8

Amounting to the sum of .....£ 96 14 0 which several sums your Committee recommend to be paid forthwith, and have prepared resolutions accordingly.

£59.16.8. to be paid to Alfred Patrick.

The Petition of Alfred Patrick, praying that his salary, as a copying Clerk, of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, for the past year, may be made equal to the average of former years, has been considered by your Committee, and they find that his pay for the eleven previous years was fully equal to Two hundred pounds per annum; but that last year, although ready and willing to perform his usual duties, yet, in consequence of there being no session of Parliament, his allowance fell short of the usual amount, by £59 16s. 8d. — It is the opinion of your Committee that the difference should be made good to him, and they therefore submit a resolution for that purpose, for the consideration of your Honourable House."

Ordered — That the said report be now referred to a committee of the whole House.

House goes into Committee on foregoing account.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Taché took the chair of the Committee,<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Johnston ... remarked, the loss ought to have fallen upon ((Mr. W.J. Coates)) himself, for making such a contract, as would not enable him to pay even his compositors, a mode of doing business that would suggest to many, the remark — well this man is either a fool and does not comprehend his agreement, or a ——— and does not mean to fulfil it. Mr. Alfred Patrick, an old servant of the house, was recommended to have the deficiency in his salary for last session made up to him, — amounting to some fifty odd pounds, rating the office at £200 per annum.<sup>2</sup>

Messrs. Hincks and Hale warmly supported it.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Johnston also followed on the same side, declaring that if the ignorance or design of a printer, was to have any claim upon them, in a hundred fold proportion were they bound to listen to those of their servants.<sup>4</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Several resolutions reported.

And Mr. Taché reported that the Committee had come to several resolutions which he was directed to submit to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Clerk's Offices present second report.

Sir Allan McNab from the Special Committee appointed to enquire what assistance it will be necessary to afford to the Clerk, and what offices and Departments it will be expedient to establish for the effective and orderly conduct of this House, with power to report from time to time, presented to the House the second report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

"Your Committee have had under their consideration an application from A. Lemoine, assistant French Translator, praying that he be placed on a fixed salary, instead of his present allowance.

Assistant French translator 10s. per day for extra hours.

Your Committee recommend that he be allowed at the rate of one pound per diem of six hours, and at the rate of ten shillings per diem for extra hours.

Also an application from R. Defries, Post-office messenger, praying for a fixed allowance.

Post Office Messenger
10s. per day, no extra.

Your Committee recommend that he be allowed ten shillings per diem for the time he is employed, with no extra allowance.

(271)

Also the Petition of Aneas Bell Chief Messenger of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, and Julia Bell, to be re-appointed to the House of Assembly.

Joint pension of £25,
to survivor.

Your Committee recommend that the House do allow them, jointly, a pension of £25, to continue to the survivor.

Alfred Todd, Thaddeus Patrick & Chs.
FitzGibbon to be continued while there is employment in the office.

And also the Petition of Alfred Todd, Thaddeus Patrick, and Charles Fitzgibbon, Clerks in the office of the Clerk of the late Assembly of Upper Canada, praying to be appointed to the same situations in the present establishment of Canada.

Your Committee recommend that they be employed at the same rate as other extra writers, and continued during the recess while they may be required by the Clerk."

Report referred to Committee of whole
to-morrow.

Ordered — That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

Bench, brought in and read 1st time.

of Loans to Harbour Companies, referred to Select Committee.

Committee formed.

Ordered — That Mr. Hincks, Mr. Merritt, Mr. Neilson, the Honourable Mr. Killaly and Mr. Baldwin, do compose the said Committee.

ment Bill brought in Thursday next.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Thursday next.

Resolution on subject of wages to House of Assembly referred to Select Committee.

Mr. Small moved, seconded by Mr. Parent,
That the resolutions of this House of Monday last on the subject of the payment of wages to Members of the House of Assembly, be referred to a Committee of five members, to report thereon with all convenient speed, by Bill or otherwise; with power to send for persons, papers, and records.<sup>6</sup>

He ((Mr. Small)) declared that he had hitherto delayed advancing this measure, under the hope that the Government would have brought forward some proposition on the subject, after learning the well understood wishes of the House on that occasion.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Hincks was desirous to have the opinions of the crown officers, frankly expressed on the subject.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Baldwin called their silence discourteous.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Harrison said the question was, how was the money to be raised? — there was no unappropriated revenue: — the propounders of the measure had said nothing on this point. It was resolved merely to appoint a select committee to report on the resolution — why was the government to step forward?<sup>9</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab and Mr. Price were for the motion.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Morin saw clearly from the coyness of the treasury gentlemen, that it was a plan not popular with the government.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Thorburn suggested an address to His Excellency in lieu of introducing a bill, which he thought could not constitutionally be sustained.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Buchanan was of opinion that the silence of the ministers was an index of the tone of feeling that prevailed on the subject in a higher quarter.<sup>13</sup>

The words "by bill or otherwise" were then struck out of the resolution, and the committee rose.<sup>14</sup>

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

Resolved accordingly.

Committee formed.

Ordered — That Mr. Small, Sir Allan McNab, Mr. Thorburn, Mr. Morin, and Mr. Neilson, do compose the said Committee.

On motion of Mr. Prince, seconded by Mr. Thorburn,

Resolved — That the Petition of divers electors of the county of St. Maurice, complaining of the undue return of Joseph Edouard Turcotte, Esquire, sitting member for the said county, be taken into consideration on Thursday the 12th instant, at 4 o'clock, P. M., in lieu of Tuesday the 10th day of the same month, as before appointed by this House.

Resolved — That Mr. Speaker do forthwith cause E. Sicard de Carufel, Esquire, of Maskinongé, late Returning Officer for the County of St. Maurice, to be summoned to attend at the Bar of this House on Thursday the 12th day of August, instant, at 4 o'clock, P. M., to give evidence upon the trial of the controverted election for that County.

On motion of Mr. Price, seconded by Mr. Prince,

Ordered — That the sum of twenty pounds, paid to the Clerk of this House by Robert J. Turner, of the Town of Kingston, be repaid to him, the Petition of the said Robert J. Turner having been presented previous to the adoption of the Rules of the House.

Ordered — That Mr. Prince have leave to bring in a Bill for the relief of purchasers at certain Sheriff's sales, made after such Sheriffs had been out of office.

He accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time, on Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Small, seconded by Mr. Raymond.

Resolved — That this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House to take into consideration the propriety of providing for the payment of an annual salary to the Honorable the Speaker of this House.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. McLean took the chair of the Committee.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Hincks ironically remarked, that perhaps the officers of the government would say there was no unappropriated revenue for it.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Moffatt was for an address to His Excellency on the subject.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Berthelot bawled and tired the patience of the house as usual.<sup>18</sup>

Time for considering contested Election for County of St. Maurice postponed till Thursday, the 12 inst.

Returning Officer for Saint Maurice to appear at the bar on 12th instant.

£20 paid by Robert J. Turner to Clerk to be returned.

Bill for relief of purchasers from Sheriffs brought in and read first time.

Second reading Monday.

House goes into Committee of whole on Speaker's salary.

Mr. Morin gave it as his opinion, that the purport of the Union Bill did not at all effect the power of this house with respect to its right to vote a sum to support the dignity of the chair.<sup>19</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Progress.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. McLean reported, that the Committee had made some progress, and directed him to move for leave to sit again.

Resolved — That the offer of Richard Brewer, to bind the Journals and Appendices, at three shillings per volume of not more than 550 pages, and three pence per volume for every additional fifty pages, be accepted.

Mr. Hale, from the Committee of the whole House to take into consideration the expediency of granting a sum of money to purchase the private shares in the Welland Canal, reported, according to Order,

Bill for relief of inhabitants of Saguenay read second time.

A Bill to exempt the inhabitants of the County of Saguenay from the operation of certain Ordinances therein mentioned, was, according to Order, read a second time.<sup>20</sup>

((It is clear from the newspaper comments that several speakers participated in the debate on the winter sleigh question. However, the only direct quotation is that which follows.)) Mr. Holmes stated that on one occasion, a trial was made ... and the French Canadian sleigh in a few hours made the road impassable, the horses being quite knocked up, and ... the sleighs on the plan recommended, continued running with the horses fresh, till 4 o'clock P.M., making a good road ten feet wide, which continued to improve as it was beaten instead of getting bad...<sup>21</sup>

Ordered — That the said Bill be now referred to a Committee of the whole House.

Mr. Borne took the chair of the Committee,<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Merritt was opposed to the measure, as altering the law relating to statute duty.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Durand said, that the commissioners by engrossing all the statute labour, the bye-roads within half a mile of the macadamized roads, were in consequence much neglected.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Merritt. — The District Councils will embrace such matters — it will be better, therefore, to postpone the bill, until the Government measure is before the house.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Johnston thought that Mr. Durand's constituents were happy mortals, the inconvenience of their bye-roads being compensated for, by having macadamized roads within half a mile off ! (Hear.)<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Draper opposed the repeal aimed at, as the statute labour would be taken away from the side roads, fronting the farms, where roads passed, giving the inhabitants nothing in lieu of it.<sup>27</sup>

Some remarks ... ((were made by)) Messrs. Thorburn and Boswell —<sup>28</sup>

The committee rose and threw the bill out...<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Johnston ... observed, is the paltry sum of £5 or even £50 to be considered an equivalent in case of refusal, to protect the land, whose marrow and whose fatness have filled the veins of the very men who flinch from so sacred a duty.<sup>30</sup>

20. "It appears that on account of the infamous state of the roads, in some part of it during winter, an ordnance (sic) was passed, for the shaft to be on one side with some other alteration in the sleigh, that travellers might be relieved from the dangerous heaving and pitching, that they were obliged to encounter, over the cahots or heaps of snow collected at intervals in the roads by the old French Canadian mode of sleighing. It is impossible to say whether it was out of jealousy, prejudice or hostility to British improvements that the French Canadian members supported this simple, delightful, bone dislocating and rupture producing mode of travelling, but ... a number of gentlemen stepped forward and proved that the practice operated actually as a curse in the Lower Province...." commented the BRITISH COLONIST, 11 August 1841, about this measure.

21. BRITISH COLONIST, 11 August 1841. Commentaries on this measure and the discussion on it are also found in : LE CANADIEN, 6 August 1841 ; MONTREAL GAZETTE, 6 August 1841. A long detailed commentary in the BRITISH COLONIST, 11 August 1841, is so virulently prejudiced against French Canadians that it should be suspect in terms of any attempt to discover the real issues involved.

22. The discussion ensuing was reported in : BRITISH COLONIST, 11 August 1841 ; ST. CATHARINES JOURNAL, 19 August 1841, copied from BRITISH COLONIST, 11 August 1841. In the opinion of the extremely opinionated BRITISH COLONIST, the loss of this bill's passage was attributable to Mr. Durand's opponents who were revenging themselves on "his mischievous but futile attempt against the Board of Works and Court of Requests bill."

That the said Order of the day be discharged, and that it be —
- Resolved* — That it is expedient to repeal part of, and amend, an Act passed in the Parliament of the late Province of Upper Canada, intituled "An Act to repeal part of, amend, and reduce to one Act of Parliament the several Laws now in force in this Province for the recovery of small debts, and to extend the jurisdiction of the Court of Requests within the same." required, to hear and determine all matters of debt where the liquidated demand doth not exceed the sum of £12 10s., and the debt or contract on the part of either Plaintiff or Defendant, does not exceed the sum of twenty-five pounds.

Resolutions proposed for amending the Court of request act of U. C.

Resolved—That any Defendant, by consent of the Plaintiff, may acknowledge and sign a confession of Judgment to the amount of twenty five pounds, in any of said Courts, providing he shall, if requested, make oath before said Commissioners that the said debt was just and true, and not given for the purpose of priority over any other demand against him.

Resolved—That on demand of either party for the recovery of, or defence of, any demand over £2 10s., on notice to the Clerk of the Court three days before the sitting of said Court, it shall be the duty of said Clerk to summon a Jury of six Freeholders to determine the same, which said Jury may be sworn by the said Court, and shall be entitled to the sum of            for each verdict given by them, and the decision of said Jury shall be final.

Resolved—That any Person who shall think himself aggrieved by any decision or judgment, under the provisions of the said recited Act, may appeal to the next Court of Quarter Sessions for the District wherein the case shall have been tried: Provided that such Person shall give to the other party a notice, in writing, for such appeal, and of the cause and matter thereof, within six days after the judgment was given, and enter into recognizances, with two sufficient sureties, before said Commissioners, for the payment of all costs which may be by such Court awarded; and that the Court at such Sessions shall hear and determine the matter of such appeal, provided that such decision has not been made by a jury called on the part of such Plaintiff or Defendant as aforesaid.

Resolved—That every person who, under and by virtue of this Act, may be summoned to attend any of the said Courts, either as a Juror or Witness, and who shall refuse or neglect, without sufficient cause, to attend for the purposes for which he or she may be so summoned, shall forfeit and pay not exceeding            as the said Commissioners shall order and direct, and which said fine shall be levied and collected by the same process as any debt recovered in the said Court, and shall, when collected, be, by the said Clerk, paid over to the Treasurer of the District in which such Court shall be situated, to be applied to and for the general purposes of the said District.<sup>1</sup>

He ((Mr. Merritt)) expressly stated he had no hopes of succeeding with his motion, but he wished his views and his votes to appear on the journals.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Thorburn, in seconding this motion, said he would state the reasons why he was opposed to the bill in its present shape. In the first place the bill is calculated to effect a complete revolution in the law relating to these small courts, which have always been emphatically styled the poor man's court it takes away the power of adjudicating from the commissioners and places it in the hands of one man in each district; it changes the time for holding these Courts, making the intervals between its sittings two months instead of a fortnight, as formerly; and making the divisions extend to the limits of each township, which will compel suitors in many cases to travel twenty and twenty-five miles. Business will accumulate within the two months sufficient to keep the court sitting for three or four days, and under such circumstances, how is the poor man to obtain the recovery of his small demands? he is completely deprived of justice! this will be the effect of the bill. It is absurd to suppose that a man can go a distance of twenty miles to attend one of these courts, and remain three or four days for the recovery of a small demand. The expense would be greater than the debt; he is, therefore, virtually deprived of justice. The people have no desire for such a change, as their petitions are coming to this house upon this subject remonstrating against the passage of a law of this kind. They are perfectly satisfied with the system as it is at present. It may perhaps be capable of some light improvement, such as this amendment would have the effect of giving it. But I think it is a dangerous matter for the legislature to force a law upon them contrary to their desire, although it may be a better law: it may be perfectly equitable and just in its provisions: but this is not the question, (hear, hear,) the main point is, do the people require it? — (Hear, hear.) The effect of this amendment will be to extend the jurisdiction of the commissioners to twelve pounds ten shillings, (and in cases of confession of judgment to £25) with the privilege of demanding a jury of six freeholders, and with the power of appealing from the decision of the commissioners to the Quarter Sessions or District Court. With these amendments the present law will be quite sufficient for all useful purposes, less expensive, more expeditious. I hope hon. gentlemen will seriously reflect before they attempt to introduce a new law, which, in its operation, will be at all events doubtful, (hear, hear,) in the place of one which is now I may say, in full operation. (Hear, hear.)<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Durand said he looked upon this measure as one of that magnitude which should not be passed hastily. He was satisfied there had been many complaints with regard to the Court of Requests, and there was no doubt that it required alteration, but to change the whole system at once he thought would be extremely injudicious. He was satisfied that it was not the sort of measure which would give satisfaction to the country.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Moffatt said this is a measure which gentlemen from that part of the province from which I came, can have no particular interest in, beyond a desire to see a measure adopted which will meet the wishes of hon. members who represent the Upper portion of the province, where the law is intended to be applied, and I have, therefore, waited to see what the feelings would be on the part of Upper Canada members respecting it. Upon the decision which took place at the second reading, only five members had stood against it; he (Mr. Moffatt) was led to conclude therefore, that it was not altogether so unpopular a measure as some hon. gentlemen would endeavour to represent.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said he would vote for the bill; if for no other reason at least for this, that by this means they should get rid of upwards of one thousand commissioners, sixty per cent or two-thirds of whom are altogether unfit for the responsible situation in which they are placed. Whether it be attributable to improper appointments or not, persons have no confidence in these courts; they will not go to them because they cannot expect to receive justice. He would support this bill because he believed the principle upon which it was founded was better calculated to promote justice; but he did not entirely approve of some of its details, such as holding the court only once in two months. These details, however, could be amended either now or hereafter, whenever it might be found advisable.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Viger said when a measure of this description was proposed in Lower Canada he had set his face against it, but he had been in a minority on that occasion. He had, however, in some degree changed his mind with regard to it. The longer the system went on the more he had reason to believe that the people were satisfied with it as being a cheap and expeditious remedy for the recovery of small debts. It would seem, however, that the people of this part of the province are desirous of adopting a new measure, at least a majority of their representatives are so, and this being the case, and as the law is only to be a temporary one, I shall of course offer no opposition to it.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Merritt said he was really surprised at the apathy which seemed to prevail regarding this subject. He was completely astonished at the reasons assigned by the hon. gentleman from the city of Montreal, and the hon. and venerable member from Richelieu, for supporting the measure, that because a majority appears to be in favour of it they will go with that majority. Those hon. gentlemen say, we are not by any means satisfied ourselves of the beneficial results to be expected from this measure, but if you desire it we will sustain you. Those hon. gentlemen are no doubt aware that there ((are)) upwards of thirty lawyers in this house, (a laugh) and it affords an excellent opportunity for them to provide Judgeships for members of their profession. (Hear, hear.) I am not a little surprised that hon. members who witnessed the beneficial effect of the present system, should now endeavor to deprive us of those benefits to gratify the wishes of a set of professional men who happen to be members of this house. He (Mr. Merritt) would resist the passage of the bill, though he should stand alone, because he believed it would be unjust and improper, in this hasty manner, to introduce an entirely new system, without giving the country an opportunity of expressing their wishes upon the subject.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Hincks said that with regard to the people not having an opportunity of expressing their wishes regarding this measure, he thought they had had sufficient opportunity; the evil of the system had been found to be so great that it was thought advisable to appoint a commission to inquire into the matter: that commission entered into an investigation & reported upon the subject. That report had been before the house and the country for at least a year and a half. He (Mr. Hincks) had as good reason as any hon. member to know what the wishes and feelings of the people were upon the subject of these courts, and upon the subject of the new measure now before the house, and he was not aware that a single objection had been raised against the principle of this bill, but on the contrary it was generally approved of. The hon. gentleman from Haldimand (sic) had taken rather an extraordinary course. When the bill was before the committee of the whole house, that hon. gentleman declared that the present system was perfectly satisfactory to the country, and now he finds it necessary to propose to amend that perfect system by introducing a jury clause. He (Mr. Hincks) agreed with the hon. and learned gentleman from Hastings that there are probably defects in this bill which require to be amended, but satisfied as he was that the present system is a bad one, he was satisfied they could not take a better course than to adopt the present measure.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Cook said he believed, notwithstanding what hon. gentlemen had said about the Courts of Requests being so obnoxious, that those courts gave general satisfaction. There were a few complaints against that court as against any court in Upper Canada.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Williams said he had already given his opinion upon the subject at the second reading of the bill, and he saw no reason to alter that opinion. The great evil in the old system is, the improper appointments which have been made; but under this enlightenment and liberal administration (hear, hear) it is reasonable to suppose that we shall have no such cause of complaint. The new measure is exceedingly objectionable in one point of view; it will materially increase the costs attending the trial of small cases, and will be exceedingly inconvenient in obliging suitors to travel a great distance. He hoped hon. gentlemen would allow the matter to rest until the next session of Parliament.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Roblin said it was with considerable diffidence he rose, after the divisions which had taken place upon the second reading of this bill, when he had made one of that miserable minority which an hon. gentleman had alluded to, in opposition to this measure. (Hear, hear.) But he had not yet lost all hope that the bill might be thrown out. This bill was intended to do away with the system of jurisprudence which had been in existence for eight years, a system which he would not hesitate to declare had worked well. It was true there had been complaints, and it was not surprising that there had been; in a system so extensive it was perfectly natural. There is nothing of human institution which is perfect; but this does not prove that the system is so very objectionable that it is necessary to overturn it altogether. It is not believed in the country that such a bill as this will pass this house; if it were believed, we would have petitions almost without number in opposition to it. It has been said that the opposition to the measure arises from the selfishness of the commissioners, who wish to retain the petty power which they possess; but hon. members seem to forget that the proportion of the gentlemen of the legal profession in this house is very large, while those whose occupation is to till the ground are few in number. Now, this measure provides a very comfortable living for seventeen of these lawyers; and I will call upon those legal gentlemen who have seats in this house to take care that selfishness be not imputed to them in this matter. (Hear, hear.) The court as at present established may be truly said to be the poor man's court, a more common sense arbitration of differences between neighbors; but when this complicated machinery comes to be substituted, a system of law rules established, it will embarrass the operation of the system, instead of improving it. — I am sorry to see the hon. gentleman from Oxford so much in favor of this measure. I hope he is yet open to conviction, and that he will not so easily be led to sacrifice the interests of the yeomanry of this Province. If there are complaints against the present system let them be remedied, but do not destroy the whole system. (Hear, hear.) I will venture to say there have been more verdicts of juries set aside than there have been complaints against these courts. Then why not do away with the trial by jury? (Hear, hear.) There are now 1060 Commissioners, and you propose to substitute by 17 Judges, one for each District. Now it is possible that one man can perform the duty which it has required the several Commissioners in the District to perform without protracting the sitting of each court to an unwarrantable length of time. You hold your courts but once in two months, you by this means give the Judge four times the amount of business which the Commissioners ((have)) in a single court, and when you multiply ((thus)) the number of divisions in each township which you by this act consolidate, you have nearly twenty times the business which is at present transacted by three or four Commissioners. How, then is one man to get through it? The suitors must be in attendance, the jury must be in attendance, and the witnesses must be in attendance. But the hon. gentleman says the Jury cases will be tried first. Well, ((that)) only makes the matter worse, for the poor man must wait before he can obtain a hearing of his ((small)) claim until the larger ones are disposed of. ((Yet)) another provision in this bill which is highly objectionable, and which deserves particular attention is, that the evidence of the plaintiff or of the defendant is inadmissible. Those small claims, therefore, of which no proof can be brought cannot be recovered. All this bears oppressively on the ((poor)) man, and it also affords an opportunity to men who are rogishly inclined to practice frauds. He (Mr. Roblin) felt very reluctant to question the usefulness of a measure introduced by an hon. and learned member, but he believed he could satisfactorily show to that hon. house that the measure was defective in many respects. He had already alluded to some points which he believed would be found to be exceedingly mischievous in their effects.

Mr. Roblin then proceeded to compare the expenses of the present court with those of the one proposed to be established. It had been shown from the returns which were in the possession of the house that the expenses of the Courts of Requests for the upper province, as at present established, amounted to £10,000, out of which about two-thirds are bailiffs' fees, and the remainder belongs to the commissioners and clerks. The salaries of the judges and clerks, under the new system, together with the percentage allowed to the treasurers, would amount to more than double that amount for the performance of precisely the same duties. You have a jury and that jury is to be paid, which materially raises the amount. All questions submitted to the ((session?)) of the jury will be decided by a majority, and the majority consists of three, only equal to the ((?)) who usually sit in each Court of Request. Another thing which will materially swell the expense is that bailiffs are required to serve all subpoenas. ((But)) the worst feature of the bill is that it does not require an oath from judges and clerks, and it refuses to receive the testimony of the parties on oath so a man who has paid for a piece of work without taking the precaution to provide a witness to the agreement may be sued and obliged to pay over again. (He should take a receipt.) Yes, take a receipt signed with a cross, and go hunting for a witness to the signature, it would be like the Welland Canal accounts! (hear, hear.) There is nothing in this Bill to compel a judge to administer an oath to the jurymen, (very true there is no swearing.) I suppose all parties are to be considered above perjury. I hope hon. gentlemen will reflect well before they adopt a measure so defective as this. (Hear, hear.)<sup>12</sup>

Capt. Steele ... ((said a word or two)) in favour of the new Bill....<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Draper ... ((supported the bill.)) Among other observations, he said that the situation of a representative of the people, could scarcely be considered otherwise than as degrading — if without being allowed to form any opinion of his own, he was to be the slave of any capricious ignorance, that the days past might order him to bow to. What was aimed at solely, was to give to the people educated and efficient men, who were capable of doing the duty required of them, and were entirely free from all prejudices of locality.<sup>14</sup>

Select Com. on Petition of P. A. De Gaspé, presents
report.

Mr. Christie from the Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of Philippe Aubert De Gaspé, late Sheriff of the District of Quebec, with power to report by Bill or otherwise, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, as followeth :—

Report.

"According to the papers laid before your Committee on the part of the Petitioner, it appears that he has been incarcerated since the month of May, 1838, pursuant to a judgment of the 20th. of June, 1834, in favor of the Crown against him, for £1169 14 currency.

It appears to your Committee that Mr. De Gaspé, in May, 1836, made and delivered into the Court of King's Bench of Quebec, a statement of all the property, real and personal, of which he was then possessed, or expected thereafter to become possessed, in order that by delivering up the same, according to the provisions of the Provincial statute of Lower Canada, 6 WILL : 4, Chap. 4, he might be entitled to the limits of the prison, as accorded by the said Act to other insolvent debtors, and which a judgment of the Court of King's Bench at Quebec declared him entitled to.

This judgment was however reversed by the Court of appeals, in the month of November, 1836, it being held by this Court that the benefit of the statute above mentioned did not extend to debtors of the Crown.

Your Committee, without questioning the correctness of the decision of the Court of appeals, views, Mr. De Gaspé's case as one of hardship. The surrender of all his property, present and in expectancy, would have entitled him, were he indebted but to an individual, to exemption from incarceration. — The prerogative of the Crown in the present case is undoubted, — Yet it appears to your Committee that the rigid enforcement of the law, now prolonged beyond three years, in the close confinement of Mr. De Gaspé, without benefit to the public creditor, or any reasonable prospect of it by such a course, ought to have a term, particularly as it appears Mr. De Gaspé's health is materially impaired by his long confinement. Your Committee have had before them ample proof, in a letter from Mr. Civil Secretary Goldie, bearing date at Montreal, 15th August, 1839, of the favorable disposition of the Government to relieve Mr. De Gaspé, on his giving security for the payment of £1170, without interest, which it seems Mr. De Gaspé could not find; and they presume to express a hope that such a disposition still prevails — They are convinced that it is foreign to the views of the executive to give to the Law of the Land and oppressive and cruel effect, or the appearance of it, and that it will concur in any measure of relief that may pass the two other branches.

In this belief, and considering the long period during which Mr. De Gaspé has been imprisoned, his advanced age, and that his health is impaired by his long confinement, and that he has "given into Court, upon oath, a faithful statement in writing of all the property and estate he possessed in the world," with a view to the discharge of his debts, they respectfully recommend that an Act be passed for his relief, and accordingly report a Bill for the purpose."

Mr. Christie then presented to the House a Bill for the Relief of Philippe Aubert De Gaspé, which was received and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Thursday next.

House goes into Committee on Municipal Corporation Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide for the better internal Government of that part of this Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the establishment of Local or Municipal authorities therein, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Cook took the chair of the Committee.<sup>15</sup>

Hon. Mr. Harrison said, previous to moving for the adoption of the several clauses of this bill, it would perhaps be proper for him to make a few observations upon the nature of the measure. The object of the bill is to put into the hands of the people themselves the management of their own internal affairs. To accomplish this object as far as the eastern part of the Province is concerned, an ordinance was passed some time ago, and is just now going into operation. The present bill is intended to place the western part of the Province upon the same footing. There has been no difference made except such as the respective situations in the different parts of the province rendered necessary. The western part having heretofore been provided with township officers, it was only necessary to support the plan which I have now the honor to submit to this committee. In the eastern part, on the contrary, there having been no such thing in existence, it was necessary to give an individual character to the machinery of this measure. It became necessary therefore, that some slight difference should be made in non-essentials; the main features of which are the same. It may become a very material question whether the Bill as it now is will be satisfactory to this house in all its details. That, however, is a matter of future consideration; at present, it is for the house to decide whether a measure of this kind should be adopted and a trial given to it.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Viger said he had been at considerable pains in examining the ordinance of Lower Canada upon this subject, and he was sorry to say it was of such a character as no man could approve it. It had been passed by a set of men who did not represent the people. By it a new machinery of government had been established, for which there was no example in the whole civilized world.<sup>17</sup>

Hon. Mr. Harrison said it was true there were no precedents for these institutions precisely in the form adopted by the ordinance, and that contemplated by the bill. But there were abundance of precedents which were substantially analogous. One he would mention was the vestry system. The great principle of both systems was local taxation and expenditure. The only difference was that the councils were to be made bodies corporate in order to give them an existence beyond the passing year.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Viger. — The vestry system is the parish system, and that is well known in England, Scotland, Ireland, in France, and Lower Canada, but I would like to hear the hon. gentleman point out the analogy between that system and the ordinance of Lower Canada. What are the provisions of this ordinance? I shall not follow the several clauses, but will notice merely the material features. First, the Governor divides the Province according to his own will; he parcels it out in to a district; he appoints certain of the officers of the councils; he controls the meeting of the councils, and he has the power of dissolving them at pleasure and these are called the municipal corporations, institutions for the people's self-government! If this house is ready to swallow so palpable a deception I am very much mistaken. Oh! but it will ((do)) very well for the poor Canadians, hon. gentlemen will say, who are not more than half civilized! ((who)) have no right to govern themselves! I hope at least that the remainder of the province is not going to share the same fate; that although we Lower Canadians have a Special Council made for us, which provides laws for our government, without so much as leaving us a voice either in the making of the laws or the enforcing them; that although we have a government which kindly relieves us from all ((such)) responsibility as looking after our own interests, yet I confess I am so selfish that I do not desire to extend those great advantages to Upper Canada. I do not desire that you shall be told, you shall have the power of regulating your own affairs, you shall elect your councils, but mind you, I shall appoint the officers of those councils; I shall regulate their sittings; I shall assent to or annul such of their acts as I please, and I shall dissolve them when I think proper. And this is giving the people power! ((If)) it be power, it is a strange sort of power; it is certainly the power of doing very little. I will refrain from going more at length into this subject at present, I think I have said enough to induce this ((hon.)) house to pause before they accept this shadow of a power which is professed to be given to the people by the bill now proposed for our adoption.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Durand said he rose merely for the purpose of making a few remarks upon the principle of the bill. It was that prominent and important measure which had been anxiously looked for by the people, he was convinced that it would prove a boon to the country. By it we should recover the advantages which had been lost by the passing of the Union Bill. ("Hear, hear," — laughter.) We formerly had the right to originate money bills: in place of this we are now to have local self-government. (Hear, hear.) As far as regards the principle he fully ((concurred)) in it, he thought the people were perfectly competent to manage their own affairs. (Oh yes.) Nevertheless he believed there were some clauses which were objectionable, and which he hoped would be so modified as to meet the approbation of the people.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said he could not help expressing some little surprise at the manner in which the hon. and learned gentleman had brought forward this measure, which he seemed to consider one of the great measures which the people look for from the government; but he seems to think it necessary to make some sort of apology for its introduction. — He feels that it is not such a bill as ought to be submitted to the representatives of the people (hear, hear:) else wherefore make an apology? I am absolutely astounded that an administration as strong in the confidence of the people, as we are bound to suppose this is, for we have been repeatedly informed that this is the case, should have considered that one of their great measures required an apology for its introduction. It is perfectly well known that I am in favor of establishing municipal corporations, but I certainly feel great objections against the details of this bill, and I came down to to (sic) the house this evening with the expectation of hearing the hon. and learned gentleman propose to postpone its consideration, in order that the existing differences might be reconciled; and I would now suggest that the committee rise, report progress and recommend the measure to be referred to a select committee.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Solicitor General Day rose and said he thanked the hon. and learned gentleman for his extreme good nature, and for this very kind offer to relieve himself and colleagues from trouble. The disposition manifested by the hon. and learned gentleman was highly creditable to him, and exceedingly gratifying to the feelings of himself and his colleagues; however, continued Mr. Day, as the country expects from us these measures, I beg leave to decline the very liberal and kind offers of the hon. and learned gentleman. (Hear, hear.) I view this measure as a measure of immense importance: perhaps it is the greatest political step which has ever been taken by any government in the way of legislation; it is one, however, which ought long ago to have been carried into effect; the people ought to have been long ere this period placed in a situation to manage their own local affairs. It is a measure which I have no hesitation in declaring is calculated to confer great benefits upon the country. It must be borne in mind that the measure is one of a novel character, and I would put it to the good sense of any hon. member whether in the creation of a power of this kind is ((it)) not a matter of common prudence to retain certain checks upon its operation, that the machinery may be put fairly in motion, and when the people have become familiar with the operation of the system, alterations may be made, if found necessary; and I will say with regard to these municipal corporations, they partake of a political character, distinguishing them from mere corporations of an ordinary character. The hon. and venerable member for Richelieu says this bill is unprecedented: it is unprecedented in liberality! (Hear, hear.) The hon. and learned member objects to the power of disallowance of the by-laws of the District Councils being vested in the Executive, and also the power of dissolving the councils; these are not greater powers than exist with regard to this legislature (hear, hear;) and as to the appointment of the Wardens, the appointment of Lord Lieutenants of counties in England is in some degree a precedent. Suppose it should happen, after these District Councils had been elected, one of those changes in public opinion, which is so fluctuating, should occur, and it should become necessary to dissolve the Legislature, unless the power of dissolving the councils also be lodged in the crown, we might have, and undoubtedly would have these councils setting themselves up at variance with the Executive and with one another. (Hear, hear.) — With respect to the Governor dividing the province into districts, according to his own will, I am surprised that the hon. gentleman should object to that: it is strictly a constitutional course. I am quite satisfied my hon. and learned colleague did not intend to be understood as offering any apology for the introduction of this measure; it carries its own analogy; and if it be considered necessary to assimilate its provisions to those of the law of Lower Canada, this does not deteriorate its qualities or depreciate its merits.<sup>22</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said he did not rise to speak as to the merits of the bill, but as to the manner in which the bill had been introduced. The hon. Solicitor stated it was unnecessary that any apology should be offered for the introduction of this bill. He is quite right, after the proceedings of the Special Council in Lower Canada in adopting a measure of this description in obedience to the wishes of the government — a measure which is exceedingly obnoxious to the people. (No, no — hear, hear.) The administration ((is)) now desirous of getting the people of Western Canada into the same boat, and then if you have strength enough to alter the law you may do so. If the Lower Canadians really disapprove of the measure, let them stand forward and assist in preventing it from being thrust upon us. — Will they lend themselves to the administration to force upon the people of Upper Canada a measure they do not want? (No, no.) The object of introducing the bill in the manner it has been introduced, is very apparent.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Hincks said he entirely concurred with the objections of the hon. and venerable member for Richelieu and others, with whom he had generally the satisfaction of acting, as to some of the details of the measure; but he was at the same time a strong advocate for the principle of allowing the people to administer their own local affairs; and he would caution hon. members from Lower Canada against confiding in the assertions of the learned member for Hamilton, that the measure is not desired by the country. He (Mr. Hincks) would assert that the people of Western Canada are most anxious for a measure of this description. This is the great measure which is anxiously desired particularly by the Reformers of Canada with whom he (Mr. Hincks) had the satisfaction to act. He would warn hon. members against being led astray by the assertions of an hon. and learned gentleman who had always been opposed to the principle of allowing the people to have the management of their own affairs. The people of Western Canada, it would be recollected, are subject to taxation, the expenditure of which is managed by an irresponsible Magistracy — a Magistracy appointed by the Executive over whom the people have no control. Talk about the appointment of Clerks and Treasurers! Are they not appointed by the Executive at present? Yet we hear the bill, with all its other excellent provisions objected to because these appointments continue in the hands of the government. Although he (Mr. Hincks) was not in favor of many of the details of the measure, yet he would support the bill ((for)) the sake of the principle which it concedes.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Viger said he did not wish to be considered adverse to municipal institutions; but these were not municipal institutions such as they ought to be. The measure was never submitted to the consideration of the Lower Canadians. Had it been so submitted it would not have become a law, because it was a most iniquitous law — it was one altogether without example. It was an execrable policy that experiments of this kind should be forced upon the people. Instead of being subservient to the good government of the country, it was calculated to destroy the harmony and tranquillity of the country.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Williams — The Hon. gentleman from Oxford (Mr. Hincks) has stated that the entire community are in favor of this measure. I deny this position. (Hear, hear.) I have as good an opportunity of knowing the wishes of the country as any hon. gentleman, and I say the large body of the Reformers of this Province are opposed to the measure. (No, no.) The hon. gentleman has also stated that the expenditure of monies is under the control of an irresponsible Magistracy. I say it could not be placed in better hands. And to convince the house that elective institutions are not in all cases so very desirable, I will merely refer hon. members to an Act which was passed in the Upper Canada Legislature, taking the control of the Statute Labor out of the hands of the Magistrates and placing it in the hands of three Commissioners. What was the consequence? Nothing was done. No Statute Labor was performed. (Hear, hear.) The Legislature were obliged to repeal the law. With regard to the bill there were many obnoxious clauses to which he could never give his consent, nor would he pledge himself to support the bill in any shape.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Johnston was for recommitting the bill. — <sup>27</sup>

Mr. Hincks. — The hon. gentleman from Durham says that the reformers of this province are not in favor of a measure of this description. I can only say I am at a loss to understand what sort of reformers they can be. I am not surprised at the opposition of the hon. gentleman: the hon. gentleman alluded to the township officers' act; that act was passed during the reform parliament. The act worked well; but there was a certain other parliament afterwards, the bread-and-butter parliament, which never represented the people: the very first act of that parliament was to repeal this act, because it gave a little power to the people. (Hear, hear.) And this is what the hon. gentleman calls the sense of the people being against the act. Yes, they were gentlemen of the same politics with that hon. member, who seized the very first opportunity which was afforded them of preventing the people from exercising any management (sic) whatever over their affairs. And as to the magistrates being such excellent guardians of the public money he (Mr. Hincks) could not regard them as being so very immaculate as the hon. gentleman seemed to do.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Cameron said it was certainly very evident that there was a great diversity of opinion both in the country and in that house with regard to this measure. Some hon. members consider it not sufficiently liberal — others that ((it)) is too liberal. The hon. gentleman from Durham has attacked the bill in a very indirect manner. That... gentleman is a Magistrate in the Newcastle District, where, no doubt, they are very honorable and pure. But they are far from being so in the county which I have the honor to represent. The funds of the District are expended in a manner that is not very creditable to them; partially, ignorantly, and injuriously to the interests of the District. And with respect to the statute labor, their conduct has been in many instances unjust and oppressive. And it is upon this ground that the Magistrates are not the proper persons to have the control of the public funds, that this bill is so imperatively required.<sup>29</sup>

Capt. Steele said that the conduct of the Magistracy of the Home District called loudly for amendment; it was rank with abuses. Gentlemen of the Lower Province, beware how you listen to the seductive language of those who have a personal interest in the defeat of this measure. Depend upon it if you unite with the opponents of this measure you will have reason to regret the day you did so. I want to see these Provinces what they have been, united in loyalty. (Hear, hear.) It is only by the adoption of liberal institutions of this kind that the connection of these Provinces with the mother country can be perpetuated. (Hear, hear.) I do sincerely deprecate any thing like the existence of an invidious distinction between the upper and lower sections of this Province. I will unite with you in endeavoring to obtain those liberal institutions with reference to the whole Province which the country has a right to expect from the government. This measure I look upon as one of that description. I am perfectly satisfied that a greater boon could not be granted to the country. The Israelites never looked with greater eagerness for the promised land than the country has looked for this measure. (Hear, hear.) It will be the foundation of our future greatness. The principle of the bill shall receive my most determined support, and if we unite in securing its adoption we shall never have occasion hereafter to envy any nation upon earth. (Hear, hear.) We have now the means within our power of producing a better state of things. But if you look with jealousy upon this measure, if you unite with its enemies, depend upon it, you will lament the course you have taken. — (Hear, hear.)<sup>30</sup> The way in which the district funds had been disposed of, he said, had been from beginning to end, a scheme of smuggling and mal-appropriation, for instance the gaol and court house of Toronto, to which the inhabitants of Simcoe had contributed so much, and which remained in a state that excited general indignation. The plan was Lord Durham's, and would enable the inhabitants to tax the wild lands, which were now lying idle in the hands of drones, and carry out such improvements as would tend to the prosperity and happiness of the people.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Price said he was decidedly in favor of the bill, from knowing that the county which he had the honor to represent was almost unanimous in its favor; and he believed that every thinking man must also admit that it is one of those measures which the country requires. With respect to details of some of them he would feel it his duty to oppose. There was a power given to the Executive which he could not see the utility or the policy of conceding. He was decidedly opposed to the power of dissolving the Council being given to the Executive Government. It might be proper, provided we had got, not in name only but in reality, that system of government which has made Great Britain what she is. But he had yet to learn that in this Province that system exists, or if it exists, that it can be considered secure. We do not know what result the elections in England may produce, (hear, hear,) or who may succeed Lord Sydenham in the government of this Province. (Hear, hear.) I am prepared to place implicit confidence in the stability of responsible government, and I would not therefore consent (sic) that powers such as those expressed in this bill should be placed in the hands of the Executive Government. (Hear, hear.) The people are perfectly competent to manage their own affairs. The learned Knight from Hamilton is perfectly right in giving a strong opposition to this measure. He has ever been a consistent Tory, and it is a principle of Toryism to keep as much as possible all power from the people. (Hear, hear.) But I am satisfied the measure is one which is desired by nine-tenths of the people. A great deal had been said about the conduct of Magistrates. This much he (Mr. Price) would say, if they were as regardless of the public funds as they were of the lives of their fellow-subjects, they could scarcely be considered good and faithful stewards. (Hear, hear.) He could scarcely bring himself to believe that men who would stand calmly by and see their fellow subjects murdered in cold blood without raising the arm of power to rescue them, would be faithful guardians of the public purse. He hoped hon. members would manage to improve the bill so as to give it to the country as a real boon, and it would meet with his decided support.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Boswell. — The matter at present engaging the attention of this hon. committee, is one of very considerable importance, and I regret that my hon. friend should meet it in a spirit of hostility. The question is, is a change necessary? Is it necessary to create any new machinery for the expenditure of taxation throughout the Province? Is it possible for this legislature to attend to all matters great and small which require to be regulated throughout the Province? And let this question be put to every hon. gentleman on the floor of this house: are you willing to entrust the magistrates of this Province with the power of levying taxes and expending them? (No.) The question then will be what sort of institutions shall be introduced? In the consideration of this question it will be necessary to ascertain whether the people are sufficiently educated and enlightened to be entrusted with a power of this description. (Yes.) I have lived among them for twenty years, and I do not hesitate to assert, that there is not a more intelligent people on the face of the earth. (Hear, hear.) If it can be said that they are not to be entrusted with a power of this description, how is it that we have an Assembly of this description? (Hear, hear.) The very existence of this Legislature shows that the people are fitted for the exercise of even higher powers than those contemplated by the bill.<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said he was almost inclined to believe from the manner in which this measure had been introduced that the intention of the government was to pave the way for the introduction of republican institutions into this province. (Hear, hear.) Every one at all acquainted with democratic institutions knows that whenever you make a concession, however slight and unimportant, you may be assured you will have to follow it up with further concession, or else all you have done goes for nothing. (Hear, hear.) It has been said that this measure has long been sought for by the people. I deny it, because if they were desirous of having a measure of this description, we should have had petitions sent to the house praying for the passing of the Bill. The people could not have imagined that such a bill would have been introduced by the government, because the principle was repudiated by the Imperial Parliament. (Hear, hear.) What does this bill propose to do? To establish seventeen subordinate Parliaments in this Province, (hear, hear,) and in a little time these little councils will become great councils, and before ten years, the governor of this province will be elected by the people. (Hear, hear.) Hon. gentlemen may laugh, but we have seen things as strange as this and that within the last few years. I do not think it necessary to go very minutely into the details of the bill: I think there are some which the hon. and learned gentlemen on the Treasury Benches themselves will not support. The bill will virtually prevent any poor man from purchasing property for the benefit of his posterity, because the taxes upon it in ten years would consume the whole. By the operation of this bill taxes will be increased ten fold. (Hear, hear.) The hon. gentleman from Oxford cries hear, I have no doubt he would like to see republican institutions introduced into this province. I give him full credit for sincerity in his support of this measure.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Boswell said it was out of order to question the motives of the hon. member.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Cartwright. — I assure the hon. gentleman from South Northumberland I do not question his motives; they are perfectly apparent; he is looking for something besides the country's good in supporting this ministerial measure. (Hear, hear, much laughter.)<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Boswell. — The hon. and learned gentleman is altogether out of order.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Cartwright continued. An hon. gentleman in the course of the debate made use of this remark — "when I see an organic change about to be introduced I wish that the new system should be as perfect as possible, that it may give entire satisfaction to the people." That hon. gentleman has acted against me not only in this house but in previous Parliaments of Upper Canada; but I entirely subscribe to this doctrine. The present is unquestionably an important measure, because it is a measure which is at variance with the constitution. (Hear, hear.) I think we ought to hesitate before we introduce a measure which has been already rejected by the Imperial Legislature. A good deal has been said with regard to the old system; it is very well known that under the old system, magistrates have very little power with respect to the expenditure of the District funds; and if they do any thing wrong the law is open to the aggrieved party, or to complaint on the part of the public, and I believe you will get more speedy justice against magistrates than you will ever be able to get from the Districts. (Hear, hear.) In the multitude of Councillors there may be safety, but it will be safety for the Councillors themselves and not for the public. You will have seven hundred persons elected in the province of Upper Canada, one third of whom are to be renewed every year; where then will be the peace and quietness and freedom from turmoil and disturbance which was thought so desirable the other day when the bill to naturalize foreigners was under discussion and there was a forcible comparison drawn between our institutions and those of the United States? This bill instead of being productive of those benefits which are so loudly vaunted by hon. members, will be, in my opinion, destructive of the prosperity of the country.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said he could not concur with the hon. and learned gentleman from Lenox (sic) and Addington. Although he was willing to attribute to that hon. and learned gentleman, on all occasions, due credit for candor and sincerity, yet he had drawn such a frightful picture of little republics about to be established by this bill, and of one district making war upon another, that he (Mr. Baldwin) really thought the hon. and learned gentleman must be laboring under some hallucination. If the hon. and learned gentleman would look into the history of municipal institutions as they exist in England, and even in this province; in the city of Toronto, and in the present metropolis, he would have little reason to be apprehensive as to their operation; he would find that the bloodshed and battery which he dreads exists only in his imagination. He (Mr. Baldwin) did not wish to be pressed into a vote upon this bill without full consideration, and until he learned from the hon. and learned gentleman who brought the measure forward what modification he was willing to admit.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Merritt said this was the first measure, local self-government, that was proposed to be instituted by Lord J. Russell. England, he said, looking at its corporate bodies, was composed of an infinity of little republics. Taxing the wild land, he regarded as of great benefit to the roads, and instanced Toronto as having risen from a muddy miserable locality to its present enviable rank of the first city of Upper Canada, by the act of incorporation. He was opposed to the warden being elected by the Governor, and called upon the Lower Canadians to co-operate with them in maturing a good bill, and in return they should cheerfully have their exertions to benefit them in a similar manner.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Morin said it was difficult for him to determine whether to vote for this measure or not, as the Upper Canada members were so much divided upon it; at all events he was not prepared to give his vote for the bill as it stands. He believed it was good in principle, but decidedly bad in its details.<sup>41</sup> Mr. Morin preferred one good bill for the Province generally, instead of that sectional distinction which would leave Lower Canada subject to the Municipal Ordinance which, in opposition to the wishes of the people, still prevailed there.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Neilson said he believed that a majority of that house desired that the power of local self government should be given to the people of both provinces. He confessed however, that the project did not seem calculated to give them that local self government. (Hear, hear.) If they were not to have a free and correct representation it would have an injurious effect; the interests of the many would be sacrificed to the interests of the few. If persons are to be appointed by the Governor to preside at these Councils, and to fill the offices connected with them, there will be want of confidence on the part of the people; and of all things a want of confidence is the most fatal in the affairs of government. Such a system cannot prevail; it will be put down by the force of public opinion. He (Mr. Neilson) was not inclined to say that all the power should be given to the people; it must be only such power as is known to the British Constitution; but as the bill stands it gives a semblance only of self government, while in reality it is a complete system of despotism.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Baldwin moved that the committee rise and report progress.<sup>44</sup>

Mr. Hincks said, before the question was put he hoped the committee would indulge him in replying to some observations which had been made by the hon. and learned gentleman from Lenox (sic) and Addington. The hon. gentleman was pleased to give me credit for candor and sincerity, and at the same time to state that I am in favor of republican institutions. I defy that hon. gentleman to make good his assertion. (Hear.) I have advocated, it is true, the principles of responsible government, but when hon. gentlemen state that I have ever penned a line in favor of the introduction of republican institutions into this country, it is a gross libel. (Hear, hear.) With reference to taxation, I say the people of Upper Canada are willing to be taxed more than they are, provided those taxes are expanded judiciously in public improvements. (Hear.)<sup>45</sup>

Mr. Parent said, although he was not accustomed to speak very often or very long in that house, it might be proper on this occasion that he should express his views with regard to the bill. He would readily have joined with members from the western section of the province in framing a general law, based on liberal and proper principles, which should be applicable to both provinces. He was in favor of municipal government but he was also in favor of equal justice. His ideas upon the subject were based upon the broad principles of an enlightened policy.<sup>46</sup>

Mr. Attorney General Draper, in the absence of his hon. friend who had introduced the bill, assented to the proposition that the committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again....<sup>47</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Progress.

And Mr. Cook reported, that the Committee had made some progress, and had directed him to move for leave to sit again.

Sit again on Thursday next.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again on Thursday next.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Crane took the chair of the said Committee.<sup>1</sup>

House in Com. on exportation of Flour &c. without inspection.

Mr. Moffatt ... admitted that his propositions<sup>2</sup> would create a great change in the export trade of the country, but he believed they would prove beneficial. The existing regulations might have been necessary in the early state of the trade of the country, when it was required to place a standard of value upon articles then annually constituting our staple exports; but now these regulations were no longer needed, and the inspection could be dispensed with.<sup>3</sup> A correct knowledge having been acquired by the best of all tests, experience.<sup>4</sup> The manufacturer thoroughly understands his materials — knows what is wanted in the market, and his interest and his name are bound in the correct preparation of the article he brings into that market. But by law he cannot ship his manufacture without inspection in Lower Canada. He could not ship his produce without paying cooperage, agency, and other expences (sic).<sup>5</sup> Which operates only as a clog upon the freedom of trade.<sup>6</sup> In Ireland, where much packing of produce annually occurred, these regulations were not deemed necessary, the brand of the manufacturer being considered quite sufficient.<sup>7</sup>

With respect to the brand, let the trader use his own brand, and let that suffice. Pot and pearl ashes, he said, deteriorated in value, by being exposed to the air, when the barrels were broken open — although the plea might be urged, that it was necessary, to do so, to ascertain their quality. He did not wish to abolish the law, with respect to inspection; but to permit the buyer and seller to evade it, if they were so desirous. — One argument of the hon. gentleman was, that as the law stood now, the manufacturer of flour would content himself merely with coming up merely (sic) to the inspector's standard, without attempting to go beyond it; whereas, if left to himself, he would supply a better description.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Holmes said he rose with much diffidence, to oppose the measure of his hon. colleague for Montreal; but having a public duty to perform, he felt bound to express his opinion, that the measure now before the House, would injure the interests of the many, and benefit those of the few, (the capitalists,) who would eventually engross the same monopoly as existed in Ireland, where a few leading houses secured to themselves all the advantages of the provision trade — the seller being frequently obliged, in consequence, to accede to terms that deprived him of his just profits, and transferred them to the Bankers of those who had already a profit of their own, that needed no such addition. The

Mutual Insurance Bill
read second time and ordered to be engrossed.

Mutual Insurance Bill
(Sherbrooke, &c.)
read second time, and ordered to be engrossed.

Order of day for second reading Magistrates Clerks' Bill postponed till Friday next.

same arguments that are now used in this House, said the hon. member, were at one period used in the United States, to remove the burthen, as it was considered, of inspection. What was the consequence? the compulsory operation of the law was removed, and by a scheme of fraud and deception, the credit of the American markets became so injured, that they were obliged to go back to the old system, for the protection of the public at large. He repeated his former conviction, that a few houses in Montreal would engross all the trade. They would have their own Inspector, and in the course of time, their name, by their large transactions, would have such a currency in the market, that to insure a good sale, their brand would be indispensable. Commanding the market, therefore, they could fix their own price with the seller, taking at the same time this advantage of the exemption from inspection; that it was a risk how the article might turn out; it might come up to what it was stated to be, or it might not; under these circumstances, at a venture, they would give so much, and no more; thus always placing to their own advantage, the doubts and scruples raised by themselves, which, under the existing law, there could be no deception in — both parties ascertaining by the act of inspection, what the quality of the article really was.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Merritt said, that the price charged upon the barrel, for inspection, of 2*d.*, at Montreal, and 3*d.*, at Quebec, was an imposition on the trade.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Neilson called it the freedom of industry, and the spirit of trade — or phraseology to that effect. He was for optional inspection, as a stimulus to those who were desirous of acquiring a character, by the article which they produced.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb said, in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, whatever inspectors we might have, — they would rely upon their own, what we call fine being branded by them superfine.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Thorburn approved of the resolutions, providing the privilege of inspection might be insisted on, if required. Flour exported from Upper to Lower Canada, much more from this province to Great Britain, might, by damage, effect the test of the brand — but with respect to ashes — if they were found to be mixed with sand and stones, this would reflect either upon the ignorance or dishonesty of the inspector.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said, that ashes were injured by exposure to air. He regarded the proposed measure as a boon to Upper Canada — the expenses that were now unavoidable, operating injuriously to the miller.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Roblin ... ((believed that the measure)) would enable the farmer to get a higher price for his produce.<sup>15</sup>

The resolutions... received the support of ... ((Messrs.)) Neilson, Dunscomb, Roblin, Thorburn ... Thompson.<sup>16</sup> thereof and report thereon with all convenient speed; with power to send for persons, papers, and records.<sup>1</sup>

Sir A. MacNab, Mr. Cartwright and Col. Prince, spoke... in behalf of the introduction of the sacred volume....<sup>2</sup>

((Col. Prince)) had the greatest pleasure in supporting the motion, and he could scarcely trust himself to speak with calmness and moderation upon the conduct of those hon. members who had opposed it. But, the subject was too solemn to be debated with excited feelings. By the vote about to be given upon this question, the character of that house would be stamped with honor or branded with disgrace (hear, hear.) The motion merely asks for reference of the subject to a select committee; if we refuse that motion, we virtually repudiate the admission into our schools of that sacred volume upon which all our hopes in a future state depend. Looking at the Bible as the most ancient book of history — as a specimen of language the most concise and elegant, and perfect, I contend that it ought to be admitted (sic) as a class book for the instruction of our youth, and I feel assured that not one Roman Catholic, of education, in one hundred, will dissent from this proposition (hear, hear.) Then, sir, why hesitate to support this motion? But I put the sacred volume upon higher grounds; I look upon it as the rock upon which our future hopes are built; I consider that part of it called the New Testament as the best and greatest consolation that man can look to for happiness in this life or in the life to come. — And though I am no bigot in religion and will cheerfully concede the point that there are many roads to heaven — (and God grant we may all meet there after the disputes, turmoils, and troubles of this life have passed away) — yet I cannot concede that we should even indirectly cast a slur upon the holy bible by voting against the motion of my honorable friend. What sir, will the country say to us? what will the country think of this the first United Parliament? which deliberately refuses for the first time (and this the only instance on record) to refer to a select committee the petition of any man, and above all the petition of the reverend divine who has so piously, so honorably, so creditably for his own reputation, petitioned us. Sir, I will say no more: by the decision of this question the character of this house will be for ever stamped — will be finally determined. Enquiry and information before a select committee can do no harm, and if you refuse that, you will be justly branded with a cold indifference to the truth of that religion which every christian, be he Roman Catholic or be he Protestant, at least affects to venerate (hear, hear.)<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Morin moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

That it be an instruction to the Committee of the whole House on the Bill to provide for the better internal Government of that part of this Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the establishment of Local or Municipal authorities therein, to enquire whether it is expedient to repeal or amend the Ordinances passed by the Governor and Special Council of the late Province of Lower Canada, of the 4th, VICTORIA, Chapter 3 and 4, entitled "An Ordinance to prescribe and regulate the Election and appointment of certain Officers in the several Parishes and Townships in this Province, and to make other provisions for the local interests of the Inhabitants of these divisions of this Province," and "An Ordinance to provide for the better internal Government of this Province, by the establishment of local or Municipal authorities therein."<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Secretary Harrison rose and said he hoped hon. members were not going to mix up the discussion of the ordinance of the Special Council with that of this measure, which had nothing to do with it. The principle of this measure had been already discussed, and it was admitted on all hands to be a boon which was anxiously desired by the people. It was a measure which created an important extension of popular influence. That extension he (Mr. Harrison) would be most happy to see granted so far as it could be safely done, and so long as it were guarded by proper restrictions. He had brought forward this liberal measure with the expectation that it would become a law. If, however, it were intended by hon. members of that house to embarrass the measure with alterations and amendments, it would have the effect of destroying the munificent intentions of the government. (Hear, hear.) The question seems to reduce itself into a very narrow compass; it amounts to this, whether this house has confidence in the government or not. If not, there is a very obvious course to be taken; if it has, then that confidence should be sufficient to induce the house to adopt the measure as it is proposed. The measure has been brought forward in compliance with the wishes of the people, and if it be now destroyed by this house, the fault must not rest with the government but with the representatives of the people themselves. (Hear.) It is upon these grounds that I shall hold to the bill, the whole bill, and nothing but the bill. (Hear, hear, hear.) I place the responsibility of the government upon this bill. If the house are dissatisfied with it they will proceed in that course which is open to them constitutionally. That the measure will give satisfaction I have no doubt; that it might also be advantageously amended in some particulars I have no doubt, (hear, hear,) but it was not the duty of the government to bring forward a measure different from that which has been provided for Lower Canada; and it is but now going into operation is a sufficient reason why the Legislature should for the present abstain from amending it. When experience has shown that an error has been committed, then come forward and make those amendments which may be considered necessary. With these observations I shall leave the matter to be treated as this house sees proper, and by the vote which will be taken will be determined whether this house has confidence in the government or not. (Hear, hear.) The very fact of a measure of this popular nature being conceded shows that the government is sincere in its determination to meet the wishes of the people, and it only remains to be seen whether the people's representatives will sustain them in these liberal intentions. (Hear, hear, hear.)<sup>5</sup>

The hon. gentleman (Mr. Harrison) said that the bill which he held in his hand, was intended to give the people a wholesome local controul over their own affairs, consistent with such restrictions as were necessary to preserve the power of the executive unimpaired, and that there was every probability of its passing into a law, unless it was so crippled in its leading features in committee, as to preclude all hope of it. The appointment of ((the)) warden by the Governor, was one of these features which he defended, upon the principle of its security to the government, that a veto would be reserved upon measures, that might be entirely out of the jurisdiction of local municipal courts. For instance, a bye law might be enacted by a corporation, which in itself though apparently harmless, might inflict great injury upon a numerous class in the district, and unless a direct communication existed between the government and the warden, how would it be possible to get at the real state of things and counteract the evil? The power which the bill conferred on the councillors, it was not intended to interfere with, and with respect to the priviledge (sic) of voting, the warden would merely have the casting vote.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Viger said he was surprised to hear the hon. and learned gentleman deny the right of that house to examine and compare the measure now proposed with that which was about to go into operation in Lower Canada, and to the provisions of which it professed to correspond. He tells us in as many words, it may be unjust in its operation, it may require amendment, but you cannot examine it because it is but just going into operation; and you must pass a measure exactly similar to it for this part of the Province before you ascertain how it is going to work. The hon. gentleman has not been able to show a precedent for such a measure, and yet we are not to examine it! The proposition is monstrous. But the hon. gentleman says, oh, it is the best law possible and therefore we must adopt it without examination or consideration. It is an excellent law in all things in its provisions, and precisely conformable to the wishes of the people. I have, I confess, very strong doubts upon this point. I deny that the people desire the Governor to appoint the person who shall preside in these Councils, and that he shall parcel out the Province as he pleases, and that he shall appoint the place of meeting of these Councils. I am aware that in some instances very improper places have been selected in Lower Canada. In that part of the Province the people have never been consulted as to their wishes with regard to this law, and will the hon. gentleman say that this is the principle which ought to be adopted in the United Legislature? I wish I could convey my feelings in the English language, I would impress upon this house the abhorrence which I myself entertain of such legislation.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said he had on a former occasion declared his approbation of the principle of the bill. He had been and still was in favor of it; but at the same time he was also in favor of its being placed upon such a footing as would be productive of substantial advantages, and produce satisfaction in the minds of the people with respect to its machinery. He was also in favor of another principle, namely, that the same measure of justice should be meted out to both Provinces. And if ever there was an occasion when a government professing to administer the affairs of this country according to the wishes of the people, should come forward and redeem their pledge, the present is that occasion. (Hear, hear.) I wish to call the attention of hon. members to the circumstances under which this ordinance, which it is now proposed shall be referred to the committee, was passed. It was passed by the Special Council, a body which did not represent the people of Lower Canada, after the Imperial Parliament had passed an act uniting these Provinces, and after striking out from that act of union the clause relating to this subject, with the express view of referring its consideration to the representatives of the people. If ever there was a question therefore, which should be left to the decision of the people it is this question. It is not necessary to our present purpose to enquire whether there were circumstances (sic) which required those in whose hands the power was placed to pass that ordinance. My own opinion is, it was expedient. But it was done, and unless this house have now the power of examining that ordinance, and amending it if necessary, the people of Lower Canada must continue to be subjected to the operation of a law which they had no voice in passing. There may have been a necessity, or an imagined necessity — I am not willing to admit that it was a real necessity. The Union Bill was passed — the government had been strongly established — Lower Canada had been deprived of a large portion of her members — you gave to Lower Canada a law which was unasked for, and which was never consented to by the people of that Province — and you now come down to this house and tell us we are to pursue the same system: that this is the great measure of the session upon which the government rests its responsibility, and that you are determined to have the bill, the whole bill, and nothing but the bill. (Hear, hear.) And you call this popular government, and it is in this manner that you expect to win your way to the hearts of the people. — (Hear, hear, hear.) And I would like to know what confidence the people of Lower Canada can have in that administration of which you form a part? There are none of them among you! (Hear, hear.) And yet you pretend to be strong in the confidence of the people of the Province. (Hear, hear, hear.) I say this is only another step in the course of that injustice towards Lower Canada which I have ever deprecated, and ever must deprecate. If I believed the people of Upper Canada desire to do them injustice, I would scorn to be their representative. — (Hear, hear.) It is in vain for you to tell us you desire that we should go on happily together, so long as you draw these distinctions. I for one will always set my face against it. The learned and hon. gentleman says the ordinance should not be disturbed because it is going into operation. My hon. and venerable friend from Richelieu has already shown the fallacy and absurdity of this argument. If it be inapplicable to the state of the country, the sooner it is remedied the better; the sooner will those learned and hon. gentlemen be relieved from the disgrace attending the failure of a measure which they advocate. (Hear, hear.) But, says the hon. and learned gentleman, it is just going into operation. Well, is this a reason the people should be saddled with a system which is badly adapted to the purposes for which it is intended? (Hear, hear.) This appears to me the worst and weakest of all reasons and such a one as this house will not listen to for a moment. I am in favor of the main principles of municipal institutions, but I would have them placed upon such a footing as will prevent collision between the people and the head of the government, and I would also have both sections of the Province placed upon an equal footing. I would rather have a worse bill which should be precisely similar to that which our fellow subjects enjoy, than have a better bill which shall be different. (Hear, hear.) Upon these grounds I would make a last appeal to the hon. and learned member who brought the measure forward, to withdraw his opposition to the present motion and allow both measures to be considered together by the committee; not to attempt to impose upon either portion of the Province a measure ill adapted to its wishes; and to drop now and forever all invidious distinctions. (Hear, hear.)<sup>8</sup>

Col. Prince regretted that he was absent, when the fountain of Mr. Baldwin's eloquence was falling in such refreshing streams, upon this captivated audience. The latter part however of the learned gentleman's oration he had gratefully been permitted to listen to. As to a distinction being made between Upper and Lower Canada, an invidious distinction, he denied the premises; no such distinction did exist, unless among the phantoms of the hon. gentleman's imagination.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Viger yes — agreed in the imagination.<sup>10</sup>

((Mr. Prince.)) Are we to lose said the gallant Colonel a measure calculated to produce so much good, are we to be deprived of a boon, which has never yet been conferred upon us, and by which we shall be enabled to manage our own affairs because Lower Canada has not a measure equally perfect? are we to be tantalized with prospective benefits within our reach and to be debarred from the enjoyment of them, because impatience is determined to precipitate the violation of that commandment which says "thou shall not covet?" No disposition had evinced itself on the part of Upper Canadian members even to brook an injustice to Lower Canada, much less to except them from an equality of justice. What would the Lower Canadians have said, if those from the upper section of the Province, had clamoured against an ord(i)nance or an act of Parliament coming into operation, because some slight degree of benefit accrued to that portion of Her Majesty's subjects, which was not quite in so great a measure enjoyed by laws which affected the other portion? Where then would have been the powers of speech of Mr. Viger, or the virtuous indignation of the self elected champion of equal rights Mr. Ex-Solicitor General Baldwin? and echo answereth where? The speech of Burke against the Marquis of Hastings would doubtless have been thrown into the shade upon such an outpouring of wrathful denunciation as this would have called forth. — to speculate upon it would therefore prove only a failure — In conclusion the gallant Colonel trusted that no factious opposition would be permitted to mar the Bill but that it would be gratefully accepted as a boon unparalleled hitherto in liberality in Canadian legislation.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Moffatt said it was unnecessary at the present moment to go into a discussion of the merits of either measure. The question to be determined was, whether there was anything unparliamentary in referring to the committee a law which is already in existence in the lower section of the province. (Hear.) He could see nothing unparliamentary in the course proposed, therefore he would support the motion.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Johnston said he was opposed to the measure both in its principle and in its details; he was satisfied that an act of Parliament was not requisite to allow the people to tax themselves. (Hear, hear.)<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Quesnel said he had no objection to the motion as it did not pledge the house to any particular course. If the Upper Canadians desired the adoption of the bill as it stands, he (Mr. Quesnel) would offer no opposition to it; or if they desired to amend it, they should be at liberty to do so; but he would not be in favour of compelling them to adopt a measure precisely similar to that in Lower Canada, which might have the effect of rendering it inapplicable. — (Hear, hear.)<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Cameron said the hon. gentleman who had spoken last had, he thought taken a very fair practical view of the question, and a very liberal view. The ordinance of Lower Canada had been passed it is true, by a body which had not the confidence of the people in the smallest degree, but that ordinance was now ready to be put into operation, the appointments had been made and the machinery perfected previous to the meeting of this Legislature. It was very improbable, therefore, that the same executive under whose direction that ordinance was framed would be willing to make any alteration in it, until it had been acted upon at least, and to bring up the consideration of that law at present, he believed would have the effect of endangering the passing of the bill. The hon. and learned gentleman from Hastings had denounced it as one of the acts of injustice which have been inflicted upon Lower Canada, but he had not pointed out in what way it would act so very injuriously. He hoped the success of this measure which is so justly eulogized for its liberality would not be allowed to be endangered by mixing up with it the consideration of the ordinance of Lower Canada. It might be a difficult matter to obtain from another executive of a less liberal character a measure so popular as the one now offered.<sup>15</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said it appeared exceedingly singular, if this measure were so very popular, that the Executive Government had not waited, particularly as the Union Bill had already been passed, until the people of Lower Canada had elected their representatives, and allowed the question to be submitted to the Legislature for their adoption. If this is so good a measure as the hon. and learned gentleman would have us believe, why is he not willing to leave it in the hands of the representatives of the people? His own opinion was, the people of Upper Canada do not desire the bill, and he thought, therefore, it would be the duty of the house to reject it. (Hear, hear.) He (Sir Allan) had as fair an opportunity of knowing what were the wishes of the people as the right hon. gentleman who cries hear, and who has the honor of representing the town of Kingston. (Hear, hear.) The hon. and learned gentleman declares the bill must pass exactly as it is; the bill he will have, the whole bill, and nothing but the bill. Therefore hon. members who were more desirous of preventing a dissolution of the house than of doing substantial justice to their constituents (sic), would of course vote for the bill, the whole bill, and nothing but the bill. For his own part he would not be deterred from the fulfilment of his duty by any such threats.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Small said he had the honor of holding a seat in Parliament as long as the learned Knight, and he believed he was as well acquainted with the wishes of the people. At all events he believed he spoke the well understood wishes of the Home District when he declared that they were decidedly in favor of the bill. He hoped the members from Lower Canada would not be led astray by any declaration of the gallant Knight, nor assist in depriving Upper Canada of a valuable measure, because they may have had a bad measure thrust upon them. The passage of a liberal measure of this kind in this section of the Province will facilitate the procuring of a similar one in Lower Canada. He hoped the amendment would be withdrawn.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Merritt said this was not the proper time for discussing the principles or the details of the bill. He thought there could be no objection to the adoption of the motion.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. J.S. Macdonald said he should vote for the motion. It would be impossible for the administration to carry the measure through that house unless they were willing to grant a liberal measure to Lower Canada. He was of opinion that the Eastern District does not require a measure of this kind. It would require stronger arguments than he had yet heard to convince him of its necessity.<sup>19</sup>

Hon. Mr. Day said he felt himself called upon to offer a most determined resistance to the motion of the hon. member for Nicolet, because he considered it was an attack upon the bill itself. It appeared to him to be one of those artful strokes of policy which are sometimes made use of in the place of open opposition, to attack in an indirect manner a measure to which an hon. member happened to be hostile (hear, hear.) I cannot without some degree of admiration observe the triple alliance which has been formed in this house (hear, hear.) We find the learned and gallant knight from Hamilton in a state of perfect concord and good understanding with the hon. and learned gentleman from Hastings, and no doubt the reformers of Canada will regard with satisfaction the new combination of parties, and will regard the learned knight, with all that confidence to which the hon. and learned gentleman from Hastings is entitled. But I am persuaded the motion is levelled at the measure itself (hear, hear.) In point of fact, the Ordinance and the Bill are the same (hear, hear.) It is the intention of the administration that the same measure of justice shall be meted out to both Provinces. It is therefore a fallacy to suppose that it is necessary to refer that Ordinance to the committee in order to provide a more liberal measure for Upper Canada. It may be necessary with respect to the ordinance of Lower Canada to make one observation. I cannot believe that any valid objections to that ordinance can be founded upon the source from whence it is derived. I can easily conceive that there should be opposition to it; it is natural to suppose that those who were smarting under the withdrawal of the Constitution should look with distrust upon the acts of the Council. But it must be recollected that that Council sprung from the necessity of the times; that it was created by the paramount power of the realm, and that it was legitimately entitled to the powers of legislation. I do not mean to stand up as the defender of that sort of legislation, but I do say that that body has passed measures equal in their importance and in their beneficial effects upon the community to any measure to be found upon the Statute Book of Lower Canada. — (Hear, hear.) As to the question of order respecting referring this ordinance to the committee for alteration, I will not undertake to decide: but will merely say, in few words, that the new mode is calculated and intended to defeat the bill.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Aylwin said if anything were wanting to show that the motion of the hon. member for Nicolet was a good one, it would be found in the circumstance referred to by the hon. and learned gentleman from Ottawa, of the triple alliance, as the hon. and learned gentleman facetiously designated it, which had been formed in that house by the union of parties of opposite political sentiment. When he (Mr. Aylwin) saw persons of opposite opinions meeting in support of any particular motion, he desired no more forcible reason for concluding that the motion is a good one. (Hear, hear.) He (Mr. Aylwin) might retort the sarcasm of the hon. and learned Solicitor, and say that a much more extraordinary alliance has taken place between that hon. and learned gentleman and some of his colleagues. If there be, said Mr. Aylwin, any union to be wondered at, it is an union which I find in the Ministerial benches: An union of Reformers and liberals with those who are the very antipodes of Liberal. (Hear, hear.) The hon. and learned gentleman has said there has been an attempt to mystify. Now God forbid there should be any attempt to mystify on this subject at all events. I am sorry if I am less cautious than the hon. and learned gentleman, but truth compels me to say that there is certainly mystification on the side of the house to which that hon. and learned gentleman belongs, although, perhaps, it is more properly attributable to the hon. and learned member who brought the bill before the house. Whatever may be the actuating motive of the learned and gallant Knight from Hamilton for his opposition to this bill I can assure hon. gentlemen that my opposition shall be quite as strenuous as that of the hon. and learned gentleman, but my opposition shall proceed from diametrically opposite grounds — upon the ground that the measure is essentially despotic & tyrannical. I invite hon. gentlemen to examine the acts of the Special Council of Lower Canada, and point out, if it be possible half a dozen of their acts of legislation which are above contempt. (Hear, hear.) Let gentlemen who represent our Upper Canadian constituency weigh well the consequences of the adoption of a measure similar to the one which has been enforced upon Lower Canada. Let them hesitate before they accept the supposed boon. They will find it is the wooden horse. (Hear.) There are Simons in this house. I will not now point out who they are. (Hear, hear.) Hon. gentlemen must remember that the power of this house is exceedingly small, and it is perfectly evident that it is the intention of the bill to deprive us of what little remains of power we have. (Hear, hear.) It is a deadly blow aimed at the house itself. We have been told, pass this, give it a fair trial, and if it be not found to work well repeal it. I would put hon. members upon their guard against the fallacy of such a supposition (sic). Why should the people of Upper Canada be subjected to inconvenience until they see the result in Lower Canada? I feel that I have trespassed too long upon the patience of the committee.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Hincks said he could not, after the speech which he had heard from the Solicitor, give a silent vote upon this question. The learned (sic) gentleman had stated that the object of the motion was to defeat the Bill. If he (Mr. Hincks) believed that the hon. gentleman from Nicolet had any such intention, he would be the very first to resist the motion. He (Mr. Hincks) was decidedly in favor of the bill, he would therefore be extremely sorry to see any steps taken which would have the effect of destroying it, or even to embarrass the proceedings; but he was convinced that the best course to be taken was to refer the ordinance of the Special Council of Lower Canada with reference to the municipal institutions to the same committee, because he was determined as far at least as his vote was concerned, to place both sections of the Province upon an equal footing, (hear, hear,) although there were some ((of)) its provisions of which he disapproved, yet he was bound to state that on the whole it must be regarded as a boon, and it was far better to have the bill as it is rather than have none at all. (Hear, hear.) He felt bound to say also, that he had no confidence in the administration as it is at present formed; so long as there is no one belonging to that administration who speaks the sentiments of Lower Canada. If a vote of want of confidence were brought forward he would be disposed to vote for it, but he would prefer that it should be upon any other measure than the one now before them. (Hear, hear.) Believing as he did, that this motion would not prejudice the bill he would vote for it.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Boswell said he should not feel that he was acting right by giving a silent vote upon a question of this kind. Various shades of opinion among members of both sides of the house seem to be entertained with reference to the question now under discussion. But he had not heard, in the whole course of the arguments advanced by hon. members on the floor of that house, any substantial reason why the house should be encumbered with two questions at the same time. (Hear, hear.) There was no one who entertained a higher opinion of the hon. gentleman from whom the present motion had proceeded than he (Mr. Boswell) did; he believed the intention of that hon. gentleman was perfectly pure, but the question with him (Mr. Boswell) was, would the motion impede the action of the house? Is it pretended by any hon. member on the floor of this house that these measures can be so assimilated that they may be included in one act? If it were possible to reduce the two into one act, which should be applicable to both sections of the Province, he (Mr. Boswell) would have no hesitation in supporting the motion; but he believed he would be borne out in saying that it would be impossible to frame such a measure.

A great deal had been said with regard to the Special Council of Lower Canada; hon. members from that part of the Province could of course speak as to the correctness of the complaints which had been urged against the arbitrary measures of that council, but this much he (Mr. Boswell) would say that if the ordinance now complained of was to be taken as a test of their liberality, he thought they had certainly evinced more liberality than the Legislature of Lower Canada itself during its existence had ever exhibited. (Hear, hear.) Yes, he would go further, and say there was no measure of the same liberality on the Statute Book of either Province.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Price. Il est pénible pour moi de m'adresser à cette chambre impatiente de voir terminer cette longue discussion; mais je crois par devoir et pour moi-même et pour mes constituans être obligé de faire quelques observations. D'abord quant à l'avancé de l'hble monsieur qui a parlé de l'union des divers partis de cette chambre. J'admets que ces partis opposés entre eux voteront probablement dans le même sens, mais pour des motifs différens. Je ne puis retenir la surprise que m'a causé la déclaration de l'hble membre pour Oxford qui nous a dit de passer ce bill avec tous ses défauts, sauf ensuite à l'amender; et si nous ne le passons pas aujourd'hui peut-être aurons nous un autre ministère qui ne nous accordera pas une mesure de cette nature. Est-il probable que nous pourrions obtenir le rappel d'une mesure nuisible, ou son amendement plus facilement que d'en faire actuellement passer une bonne? Quelle a été la cause du changement dernièrement opéré en Angleterre? N'est-ce pas le manque de libéralité de la part ((de)) ceux qui autrefois possédaient la confiance du peuple, et se sont laissés égarer par l'influence ambitieuse du pouvoir? Je suis prêt à soutenir le bill pourvu qu'il soit modifié de manière à rencontrer les besoins du pays. Je dois déclarer que je n'ai aucune confiance dans la présente administration qui n'a été formée que par l'abandon des principes politiques de ceux qui la composent; car comment peut-il se faire que des messieurs d'une opinion politique diamétralement opposée, tels que l'hble secrétaire de la partis (sic) Ouest et le savant procureur de la partie Est se trouvent faire partie de cette administration.<sup>24</sup>

M. Durand. Je ne vois pas pourquoi la motion de l'hble membre pour Nicolet ne serait pas adoptée. D'après l (sic) déclaration du moteur du bill, il paraît que son intention est de faire passer le bill tel qu'il est; et dans ce cas il ne remplira pas les vues de la majorité du peuple. Puis, qu'on (sic) veut lui donner le gouvernement local, il serait très- (sic) inconvenant de lui ôter la nomination des officiers de ce gouvernement.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Parke said, that although the bill gave to the people a most desirous supervision of their affairs, the restrictive power of the crown, was a wholesome one, for it was neither to be hoped nor expected that the government would surrender up all and precipitate republicanism. The motive that could have coalesced the parties who were now striving to defeat the measure, was as well known to others as to themselves. Should their opposition prove effectual, it would be felt, sincerely felt by those, whom they affected to benefit: and when the mischief was accomplished, by checking the laudable efforts of a liberal government, they might go home and rejoice at their success, assuring themselves that the triumph they had gained was a triumph over those interests with whose prosperity they ought to be identified.<sup>26</sup>

M. Johnston. Cette discussion est irrégulière, et je n'ai pas la patience d'écouter de longp (sic) discours sur les mérites du bill que nous ne sommes pas maintenant appelés à discuter.<sup>27</sup>

L'hble. orateur ((M. Cuvillier)). Les hbles. membres peuvent sur la motion maintenant devant la chambre, discuter les principes du bill et de l'ordonnance.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Morin was in favour of the principle of the bill, his motion was to widen it. The whole house being in committee on the subject he considered a favourable opportunity to take into consideration the ord((i))nance of Lower Canada to the same purport.<sup>29</sup>

of justice to all, he was desirous that such justice should be meted out. From what had been stated, however, in the news of the day, with a change of men, a change of measures might be expected in the colony; and although the cup might not be so full as they might wish, their moral and social thirst after the measure, ought to induce them to accept of the draught, lest it might pass away out of their hands, and hereafter they might regret their neglect of the opportunity.<sup>30</sup>

Capt. Steele said, a municipal bill similar to the one before them, had been recommended by Lord Ellenborough. The coalition that he witnessed, he pronounced as a triple though not a holy alliance of the parties, who had leagued together to defeat a measure which the country had long been anxious to obtain. Would they, he asked, in the case of the bill being defeated, substitute a more liberal one? No, their aim was not to improve the social condition of the people; they had no sympathy with their interests, but dead to every nobler feeling, they sacrificed at the unhallowed shrine of the demon of party, every generous sentiment, which on such a momentous occasion, ought to have induced them to merge every private feeling, in shewing to the world, they were worthy of the name of statesmen. He appended to the bill the name of the famous charter, which though of no distant celebrity, compared with that which had been immortalized at Runnymede, was a charter, that would stand pre-eminent on the journals of the house, and which would impress a seal upon the liberties of Canada, that might perhaps be broken by the chain of human events, but which would revive again with a more lasting impression, to stand as a land mark for the liberties of posterity.<sup>31</sup>

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Hopkins took the chair of the Committee.<sup>1</sup>

L'hble. M. Harrison se leve pour proposer l'adoption de la quatrième clause qui est comme suit : "Et qu'il soit de plus statué qu'il sera loisible au gouverneur de la Province, d'appointer de tems à autre par lettres patentes émanées sous le grand sceau de cette Province, une personne convenable pour être Syndic (Warden) de chaque district, pour les fins du présent acte ; et tel syndic demeurera en office durant bon plaisir."

Comme le sort de ce Bill dépend entièrement de cette clause, il est nécessaire de la discuter avec calme. Cette disposition a été établie pour correspondre avec celle de la loi maintenant existante dans la partie Est de cette province. En réalité, il n'y a aucune différence entre les dispositions du bill et cette loi, exceptée celles qui sont essentiellement nécessaires pour convenir aux circonstances (sic) des deux parties de la province. Dans le Haut-Canada nous avons la base sur laquelle nous pouvons asseoir cette loi ; dans le Bas-Canada, il en est différemment. C'est là toute la différence. C'est sur ce principe que le gouvernement (sic) a jugé nécessaire de présenter ce bill dans sa forme actuelle et c'est sous cette forme qu'il est obligé de la (sic) faire passer. Il est important dans la considération de cette question de ne pas perdre de vue qu'il y a une grande différence entre un acte et un bill. Le bill peut demeurer bill, et le pays n'en retire aucun avantage. Je suis loin de dire que ce soit le meilleur mode de disposer de ce sujet ; mais un hble. membre pour l'opinion duquel j'ai le plus grand respect, a dit qu'on ne peut citer aucun précédent au soutien de cette mesure dans les quatre parties du monde. Si cela est vrai, nous devons procéder avec la plus grande prudence. On a dit aussi que la mesure n'est pas calculée à accorder au peuple aucun avantage, et qu'elle limite les pouvoirs de cette chambre. Mais quel raisonnement est-ce que de dire que cette mesure retrécit le pouvoir de la chambre ? Est-ce pour notre propre avantage que nous sommes ici, ou pour celui du pays en général. De tout côté on désire ce bill. L'hble. membre pour Port-Neuf, crie que non. Je m'attends à ce que cet hble. membre opposera cette mesure de toutes ses forces, par ce (sic) qu'elle donne une extension à l'influence du peuple. Quelques membres objectent à ce que les Syndics soient choisis par le gouverneur, et disent que ce pouvoir ôte au bill tout son caractère de popularité. Mais considérons un instant quels sont les devoirs des Syndics. Ces devoirs sont de présider, et dans le cas d'égalité de voix, de donner la voix prépondérante. Ce n'est simplement que dans ce cas d'égalité de voix, que leurs votes sont requis ; et c'est précisément le cas dans lequel, comme tout le monde l'admet, que l'exécutif doit intervenir. Si les conseils de districts sont unanimes sur un sujet, et que ce sujet soit dans leurs attributions, l'intervention du gouvernement cesse naturellement. On a beaucoup parlé de l'influence du pouvoir de l'exécutif. Je suis content de ce que la majorité de cette chambre et du pays consente à confier à l'exécutif ce degré (sic) de pouvoir que ce bill lui accorde. Je suis aise d'entendre les hbles membres crier, "écoutez", cela montre qu'ils approuvent ma proposition, (cris de oui). Tout pouvoir émane du peuple ; (écoutez) ; c'est une vérité incontestable. Quelques membres disent que cette mesure n'est pas aussi parfaite qu'elle pourrait l'être : cela est vrai. Mais j'espère que la partie Ouest de la province ne sera pas privée de cette mesure, qui si elle n'est pas la meilleure possible, est cependant désirable. C'est une mesure, libérale, et d'une libéralité telle que jamais une semblable n'a été proposée depuis le premier établissement du gouvernement. Je me flatte qu'il n'existera pas de coalition entre ceux dont je respecte l'opposition à cause de leur consistance, et ceux qui sont toujours les premiers dans la cause de la libéralité. Voici une concession importante faite au peuple ; pourquoi serait-elle refusée ? Serait-ce parce qu'on a quelque objection au mode dans lequel l'autre loi a été passée ? Si la loi est bonne, peu importe la source d'ou (sic) elle vient. La présente mesure est considérée comme bonne, ne nous querrellons donc pas alors à son sujet. Il y a des raisons qui ont engagé le gouvernement à adopter la marche qu'il suit. Il y a des raisons, et des raisons d'un très grand poids ; et si ce comité ou la chambre n'ont point de confiance dans le gouvernement ou dans les messieurs dont j'ai l'honneur d'être le collègue, qu'ils le disent. Si au contraire ils ont confiance dans l'administration, ont (sic) doit nous supposer des motifs puissans (sic) d'agir comme nous agissons. Une administration responsable est de nature à nécessiter une indulgence réciproque. J'ai pensé qu'il était nécessaire de faire ces observations générales, et quelque soit le résultat, je suis obligé de soutenir la clause telle qu'elle est. (Ecoutez).<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, with respect to the laying out of the districts, it had been done with a due regard to the interests of all. There might be some exceptions, for instance Niagara, according to the Court of Request Bill also, dividing the courts into six, it might be inferred that this provision admitted of alteration — take the Home District — it contained one county and four ridings. The house would however exercise its own judgment, in amending or allowing the clause.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Berthelot. Je n'ai que peu d'observations à offrir au comité. Je suis porté à soutenir le bill, mais je veux que l'on comprenne bien que je ne le regarde pas comme une aussi grande faveur que plusieurs hbles. membres le prétendent. On peut avec raison contester que ce bill soit une faveur. Je suis d'opinion qu'il ne peut exister de gouvernement responsable dans une colonie ; et je suis peiné de voir qu'on abuse le peuple par l'apparence d'un gouvernement responsable. Il vaudrait autant dire que la couronne d'Angleterre est responsable envers nous (car un gouvernement responsable ne signifie rien autre chose) ; et une semblable prétention est souverainement ridicule. Je désire être bien compris ; je ne veux pas agir en aveugle sur aucune mesure. Je ne considère pas ce bill comme une faveur. Mais s'il y a du bon dans ce bill, je désire que toute la province en profite également.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Viger. J'ai écouté avec plaisir les observations faites par l'hble. membre qui représente le gouvernement. J'ai entendu avec plaisir la déclaration que tout pouvoir vient du peuple ; mais il ne faut pas trop se fier à la profession de foi de l'hble. Monsieur. J'aurais désiré que l'hble. Monsieur eut tiré des conséquences exactes de ce principe ; et il a fait justement le contraire. Il nous a dit d'abord que le gouvernement nous conférerait une grande faveur ; qu'il n'en pouvait exister de plus grande. Maintenant je demande à l'hble. Monsieur de déclarer consciencieusement (sic) si cette prétendue faveur n'est pas une chose que nous ayons droit d'avoir ? (Ecoutez.) Suivant le bill, tous les officiers salariés doivent être nommés par le gouverneur ; et cela est une concession sans exemple ? Les syndics seront en rapport avec le gouvernement qui exercera sur eux une très grande influence ; et cela sera encore une concession sans exemple ? Le syndic nommera un des auditeurs, et le conseil nommera l'autre. L'auditeur sera nommé par le syndic appointé par le gouvernement ; et l'hble. Monsieur nous dit que cette mesure est une grande, très grande faveur, et qu'il entend faire passer, ce bill, tout ce bill, et rien autre chose que ce bill ! Je prie les hbles. membres de me pardonner si je parle avec chaleur ; mais si mon coeur est chaud, ma tête est froide.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Merritt. Personne plus que moi, ne désire voir mettre à effet le principe du bill ; Néanmoins je doute beaucoup du succès de la mesure. L'hble. moteur admet lui-même que ce n'est qu'une expérience ; mais il ne nous a donné aucune bonne raison pour nous convaincre que nous devons nous soumettre à cet essai. (Ecoutez.) Je ne puis comprendre pourquoi cette mesure n'est pas construite d'après les principes énoncés par le gouvernement impérial, qui a déclaré que les Syndics devaient être électifs. S'ils sont nommé par le gouvernement, on peut prévoir une collision entre l'exécutif et les conseils. Mais dit-on, les syndics n'ont pas de pouvoir ? pourquoi alors lors (sic) le gouvernement les nomme-t-il ? Quant au pouvoir de désavouer les actes des conseils, on ne peut objecter à ce que ce pouvoir soit accordé (sic) à l'exécutif ; mais je ne puis voir la nécessité de laisser la nomination des syndics au gouvernement. L'effet de ces appointements sera de créer de la méfiance et de la dissension dans les conseils. Cette objection est très puissante, et j'espère que l'hble. membre modifiera sa mesure quant à cette partie. (cri de non.) Dans ce cas, je doute beaucoup de la convenance de passer le bill. Au lieu d'atteindre le but désiré, il établira la méfiance et les querelles ; et bien loin d'être considéré comme une faveur, le peuple en demandera bientôt le rappel.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Merritt was for divisions according to counties — praising Governor Simcoe's plan of laying out the land, every farm of 200 acres, having a road close at hand.<sup>7</sup>

M. Baldwin. Je ne crois pas qu'il soit nécessaire que j'entre de nouveau dans la discussion entière de ce bill ayant déjà exprimé mes sentiments à cet égard. Je me bornerai donc à faire des observations sur l'amendement que je me propose de faire. On se rappellera (sic) que l'ordonnance (sic) du Bas-Canada sur le même sujet, a été référée au comité, dans l'intention, comme je l'ai compris, de mettre les deux parties de la province sur un même pied d'égalité. L'amendement que je me propose de faire et d'offrir à la considération du comité, est calculée (sic) à mettre cette intention à effet, en limitant à trois années, le pouvoir du gouvernement de nommer les syndics, et pour les rendre électifs à l'expiration de ce délai dans toute la province. J'ai entendu avec satisfaction l'aveu fait par l'hble. Monsieur des principes sur lesquels l'administration entend être responsable ; mais en même tems je ne puis m'accorder d'opinion avec lui sur l'application qu'il fait de ces principes. Le savant monsieur déclare que c'est l'intention du gouvernement d'assimiler les institutions des deux sections de la province ; et cependant il nous dit qu'il y a des difficultés insurmontables qui empêchent de mettre le bill sous une autre forme que la présente. Je ne suis pas près (sic) à admettre l'existence de ces difficultés, ni dans le cas où elles existeraient, à dévier d'un pouce de la marche que je crois devoir nécessairement suivre à l'égard du bill. Il est certainement curieux d'entendre l'hble membre déclarer qu'il désire rendre pareilles les institutions des deux parties de la province, et dire au même instant, que le bill ne peut le moins du monde être changé. Je ne suis pas disposé à infliger au Haut-Canada une loi imposée au Bas-Canada par un pouvoir despotique. Je ne pourrai jamais souscrire à la doctrine que nous ne pouvons faire aucun amendement à une mesure introduite dans cette chambre par un membre du gouvernement qui nous dit que des objections insurmontables s'opposent à tout amendement, et que nous devons adopter ce bill tel qu'il est ou n'en pas avoir du tout. (Ecoutez). L'hble membre dit qu'il est désireux d'assimiler ces lois ; néanmoins je me rappelle la vigoureuse résistance par lui faite lors de la motion de référer à ce comité l'ordonnance du conseil spécial.

On a dit que la différence qui existe entre le bill et l'ordonnance, n'est due seulement (sic) qu'aux circonstances particulières du Bas-Canada ; c'est sous de semblables prétextes qu'on dépouille le peuple de ses droits les plus chers. Le parlement impérial lui a ôté la plus grande partie de la représentation. Dans une occasion comme celle-ci, l'hble. monsieur devrait mettre de côté toutes les jalouses distinctions de cette nature. Le savant monsieur a encore répété aujourd'hui que les syndics n'ont aucun pouvoir ; il est entré dans un long raisonnement pour prouver que celui qui préside un corps délibératif, doit avoir la voix prépondérante. L'hble. monsieur peut faire résonner à nos oreilles, que les syndics n'ont pas de pouvoir ; il est absurde de dire que ceux qui présideront les assemblées des conseils, qui nommeront quelques uns des officiers de ces conseils, n'auront pas de pouvoir ; et c'est sans doute pour cela que l'hble. membre est si tenace à prétendre que ces appointemens (sic) doivent être laissés à l'exécutif. L'hble. membre nous a dit, l'ordonnance du Bas-Canada, entre en opération, laissez là (sic) opérer. Je veux éprouver la sincérité de l'hble. monsieur par cet amendement qui aura l'effet de déterminer l'opération de la mesure et pour le Haut et le Bas-Canada ; cependant l'hble. monsieur refuse de concourir dans cet amendement. Mais si l'hble. membre a des doutes sur l'effet de cette mesure, ne devons nous pas nous, l'adopter avec une très grande prudence ? L'hble. membre a parlé de coalition ; assurément il devrait être le dernier à prononcer ce mot. La coalition qui existe entre lui et ses collègues du ministère, et la coalition la plus inexplicable que l'on puisse voir. J'ai une accusation à porter contre l'hble. monsieur. Depuis deux mois nous sommes en session, et ce monsieur n'a pas encore expliqué les raisons de la coalition qui règne dans l'administration. De quel droit une semblable administration peut-elle réclamer la confiance du peuple ? Elle détruit elle-même le bill en refusant d'y faire les légers changemens sans lesquels elle ne sera qu'une cause de perpétuelle de collision entre le gouvernement et le peuple. Je désire que cette mesure ait pour but de réunir plus étroitement les intérêts du gouvernement et du peuple ; sans cela on ne peut avoir de bon gouvernement. Quant à la menace que l'on nous fait d'un changement dans l'administration provinciale en conséquence de celui qui peut arriver en Angleterre dans le ministère, je m'inquiète fort peu d'un tel changement. Si le peuple est consistant avec lui-même les concessions que l'on nous offre maintenant contiennent les principes d'une régénération politique dont le parlement impérial ne peut nous priver. Je termine en proposant mon amendement, qui je l'espère, en justice à ce que nous devons aux désirs du pays, sera adopté par le comité.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, the principle of a county division would be the best, but as it would require that the machinery of the bill, together with the existing laws, should be altered, he thought it would be as well to allow the districts to remain as they had been divided.<sup>9</sup>

((This)) was agreed to.<sup>10</sup>

Clause 3rd, at the suggestion of Mr. Viger was postponed.<sup>11</sup>

Clause 4 — the all important clause, relative to the appointment of Warden, came on next.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, this was the clause, upon which the measure would either stand or fall ; giving to the Governor the power of appointing the Warden by letters patent from time to time. The Governor felt pledged to carry the bill, as it now stood. There was, he would observe, a great difference between a Bill and an Act — the latter of which this might or might not eventually become ; the power of converting it into such, resting in the hands of those who had been deputed by the people to advocate and support their rights. It was said that the bill would curtail the privileges of the house ! — What if it did ? (which, however he denied) — but if it did, what would that signify, if the public, whose servants they were, was benefited by it. What was the power of the Warden ? — to have a casting vote. If the district councils confined their deliberations within proper bounds, the Executive would not attempt to interfere; the veto was therefore only intended as a proper check when the collision of feeling ran high, and the council interfered in matters that it had no concern in. With this view he could not see, that with a due regard to the British interests, the appointment of Warden could be conceded by the Executive. As to the ordinance of Lower Canada, it was due to the Government that it should be tried — if it did not work well, he would be the first to step forward to amend it. (Hear, hear.) Without any personal allusions however, he thought that mixing it up with the present bill, was done solely with the view of embarrassing (sic) it — (so it is — no.) He would not hesitate to say that, since Canada had received a constitution, no measure so truly liberal as this, and conceding so much to popular influence, had ever been offered. If the measure was allowed to be a good one, he trusted they would not neglect to take advantage of it, although it might not be altogether perfect. There were reasons, all important reasons, that the bill should pass with its provisions as they were. — Considering the liberal views which the Government had hereby evinced, he considered that it was entitled to a firm and substantial support, in carrying out a measure, consistent with its responsibility, a responsibility implying power on the one hand — obligation on the other.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Viger went on his old strain about opposition, tyranny, injustice, robbery.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was unfortunately not noted down.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Harrison rose against the amendment, alleging as he had formerly done, the indisposability (sic) of this point being conceded to the Government —<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said that he would not swerve one inch from his duty, in passing the amendment, though the bill (which he declared was most grievously at variance with the special ordinance) should be thrown out. The places of election he said were disapproved of in Lower Canada. He wished to hear no more of the peculiar situation of the Lower Province, — the union bill under that plea, having deprived the inhabitants there of their privileges (sic), (alluding to the number of representatives no doubt, — but had this not been done, in the way that Mr. Baldwin and his followers have united with the Lower Canadians, what would have been the fate of British interests in Canada the present session.) With respect, he said, to the wardens having no power, such a situation gave, and very properly, a great deal of power, for that very reason, the executive had reserved the right of appointing the Warden. If it was desired to test these municipal institutions, let a specified time be appointed with limits for a trial of them. As to the coalition of Sir Allan MacNab with him, (Mr. B.,) Sir Allan might probably direct his views to the same end as himself though through a different medium. The coalition on the other hand of the treasury benches, he declared was unaccountable and demanded such an exposition of it as would remove all suspicion.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Boswell. Mon hble. ami pour Hastings a abandonné cette sincérité et cette modération qu'il a toujours si hautement professées. Il a montré dans la marche qu'il a suivie par rapport à ce bill qu'il agit sincèrement, qu'il le regarde comme un bienfait, comme une mesure fondée sur de vrais principes constitutionnels, et qui sera reçu du peuple comme un heureux présent. Si tel n'est pas le cas, je ne puis comprendre la conduite de l'hble. Monsieur. Si l'hble. membre considère (sic) cette mesure tellement despotique que tout peuple qui possède une semblance de liberté ne pourrait la supporter, comment se fait-il qu'il désire la faire entrer en opération et la mettre en force pour trois années suivant son amendement tel que constitué maintenant. Comment se fait-il que l'hble. et savant Champion des opinions libérales dans cette chambre, désire imposer pour trois ans à ses constituants cette mesure de despotisme. Je n'aime pas assez l'esclavage pour endurer trois ans ou même trois minutes ce qui est si détestable, ainsi que l'hble. membre pour Richelieu considère le présent bill (Ecoutez, écoutez.) L'hble. membre a exprimé ses sentiments tellement suaviter in modo; qu'il me met dans l'impossibilité de croire qu'il n'est pas sincère: L'hble. membre pour Richelieu regarde cette mesure comme despotique, tandis que le chef de l'opposition au gouvernement de sa majesté la regarde comme un bienfait. (Ecoutez, écoutez) J'ai entendu un hble. membre parler aussi des matériaux discordants dont se compose l'administration, mais si l'Union avec ses notes discordantes produit toujours une semblable harmonie, je ne m'opposerai pas à l'union. Si tels doivent en être les fruits (et c'est toujours par les fruits que l'on doit juger les choses), l'union est désirable. Malgré les observations de l'hble. membre pour Kamouraska, j'ai encore confiance dans le gouvernement responsable.

Si cet amendement est adopté, je me croirai obligé, quelque soit le membre qui le propose de voter également pour son introduction dans l'ordonnance du Bas-Canada ; et comme il pourrait en suivre des conséquences fatales au succès du bill, je vais m'opposer de suite à l'introduction de cet amendement dans les deux cas.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Price was for a modification, otherwise he could not support the bill. —<sup>19</sup>

M. Hincks. C'est avec beaucoup de regret que je me trouve obligé dans cette occasion de m'opposer à ceux avec lesquels j'ai coutume de marcher. Mon savant ami pour Hastings, je n'en doute pas (sic), agit d'après des principes consciencieux (sic) et consistants ; mais je ne puis considérer la mesure sous le même point de vue que lui, car il n'aurait pas adopté cette marche qui doit lui être fatale. (Ecoutez, écoutez). Je suis le dernier membre de cette chambre qui puisse être intimidé ou entraîné par les savants membres à l'opposé ; mais je sais qu'il y a une puissante opposition à l'introduction de ce bill de la part des hbles. membres qui sont déterminés à priver le peuple du pouvoir d'avoir en main le maniement de ses affaires locales. (Ecoutez, écoutez). Les hbles. membres disent d'un côté que cette mesure est républicaine, et de l'autre ils nous disent que c'est une mesure tyrannique et despotique au dernier degré. Ces messieurs peuvent rire, mais comment pourront-ils concilier une si lourde contradiction ? Les raisons qui m'ont induit à supporter le bill tel qu'il est maintenant constitué sont en premier lieu, parce que je désirerais passer quelque légère (sic) imperfection uniquement pour supporter le principe du bill. Je désirerais que l'on abolît le système maintenant existant qui met le maniement des fonds des districts entre les mains des magistrats nommés par le gouverneur et sur lesquels le peuple n'a aucun contrôle. Non seulement les magistrats, mais encore les trésoriers sont nommés par le gouvernement et on nous dit que parce que le gouvernement doit nommer le Warden des conseils de district, on ne doit pas considérer cette mesure comme un bienfait. Je n'approuve pas le principe des nominations entre les mains de l'exécutif, mais je ne considère (sic) pas cela d'une importance si vitale, que l'on doive désirer en conséquence rejeter (sic) entièrement la mesure. L'objection la plus grande que je puisse rencontrer, c'est que l'on veuille m'induire à me joindre à ceux qui s'opposent au principe du bill dans l'intention de le détruire. Je ne puis consentir à prendre une marche qui le menerait (sic) à sa destruction. (Ecoutez, écoutez.)<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Turcotte was violently opposed to the bill.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Small : C'est la troisième fois que l'on revient sur ce sujet ; et si les honbles. messieurs qui ont fait quatre à cinq discours s'en fussent tenus à la question, ils en seraient maintenant plus avancés. Je pense qu'il importe peu que le warden soit nommé par le gouverneur ou par le peuple pour les trois premières années, mais il est important que le pays comprenne la mesure. Je ne désire pas souscrire à la doctrine, qu'en passant cette mesure, nous avons, dessein de souscrire au sentiment d'une autre branche de la législation, et que nous ne devons pas amender le bill en question de peur qu'il ne demeure à l'état de bill. Mais j'aimerais mieux que l'on acceptât le bill tel qu'il est, plutôt que de n'avoir pas de bill du tout ; dans l'espérance que le peuple élirait une représentation pour ces conseils qui pût faire disparaître les mauvais effets produits par l'influence de l'exécutif et je ne doute nullement que la loi ne fut amendée, et perfectionnée à la satisfaction générale.<sup>22</sup>

M. Roblin. Je dois faire apologie au comité pour le peu de moments précieux que je lui dérobe encore. (Non, non, continuez). Je ne puis m'empêcher d'exprimer mon étonnement en entendant les hbles. membres déclarer que bien qu'ils désirent voir amender le bill, cependant ils aimeraient à l'accepter tel qu'il est plutôt que d'avoir, ce que nous appelons le vieux gouvernement irresponsable. Les magistrats dans les quartiers de sessions se font livrer les comptes des districts, et on ne permet le déboursement d'aucun argent sans que l'on produise une autorité pour cela ; et voilà ce que les hbles. membres appellent le système irresponsable. L'hble. et savant Monsieur aura le bill et rien autre chose que le bill, mais je dis, donnez-moi un bon bill. (Ecoutez, écoutez). Le bill est offert à un haut prix et dans cette chambre et dans le pays.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Cartwright made an apology to the Lower Canadians for having at one time presumed to doubt their loyalty, which he was ready to acknowledge as A1. He called upon them now as allies to assist him in kicking out the bill, treasury benches, reformers, and the whole posse of those who dared to assume a right to manage their own local affairs. —<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Boswell was not surprised at this, he (Mr. C.) had always opposed liberal institutions, and as to his strictures on democracy, he begged leave to tell him that those who supported the bill, would stand up as sturdily against republicanism as those who opposed it.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Simpson inquired of Mr. Cartwright, whether his party would substitute a more liberal measure if they succeeded in defeating this? <sup>26</sup> Bien que je désire accorder au savant membre pour Hastings toute confiance dans la sincérité de ses intentions en proposant cet amendement, cependant je ne puis consentir à m'unir à lui pour le supporter, parce que, comme le bill a été justement caractérisé une mesure républicaine, il n'y a de sûreté que dans la clause que l'hble membre désire amender.<sup>27</sup>

Sir A. MacNab. J'ai déjà dit que je m'oppose entièrement au bill, et je m'unirai à un membre ou à un parti quelconque pour le renverser. Je m'unirai aussi bien avec des membres libéraux qu'avec des conservateurs, si, en le faisant, je puis obtenir le renvoi du bill. J'espère que les hbles. Messieurs jugeront la question par eux-mêmes, et n'agiront pas comme paraît incliné à le faire, l'hble. membre pour Oxford; c'est-à-dire qu'ils ne sacrifieront pas leur jugement à la volonté du banc de la trésorerie, ou à celle d'une autre branche de la législature; et j'espère que l'hble. membre lui-même ne se montrera pas si traître à ses constituants, après qu'il leur a tant de fois déclaré qu'il n'avait point de confiance dans l'administration actuelle.<sup>28</sup>

L'honble Mr. Harrison. Je ne vois pas que l'hble membre pour Oxford sacrifie en cela son opinion il a droit de prendre telle démarche qu'il croira devoir procurer le bonheur du peuple. Quant à l'amendement, je dirai simplement, qu'il attaque si matériellement le principe de la mesure que si on consentait à l'adopter il faudrait rejeter le bill entièrement (écoutez, écoutez).<sup>29</sup>

((Mr.)) Viger spoke again....<sup>30</sup>

M. Moffatt. J'incline à voter pour l'amendement; comme la chambre semble désirer donner cette mesure au pays, il est de son devoir de la rendre aussi parfaite que possible. On nous dit que la charge de Warden, est importante par l'influence qu'elle exercera, si tel est le cas, pourquoi ne pas rendre la mesure conforme à la volonté du peuple? Si l'hble membre qui conduit la mesure n'est pas préparé à se désister entièrement de son principe il n'aurait pas dû du tout introduire la mesure. (Ecoutez, écoutez) C'est en vain qu'il espère faire passer le bill sous la forme qu'il lui a donnée et qu'il veut lui conserver. L'hble monsieur déclare que si l'amendement passe il sera fatal au bill; je demanderai à cet ? (sic) hble monsieur, pourquoi nous sommes ici assemblés? Est-ce pour s'entendre avec le souverain, (Ecoutez, écoutez).<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Johnston and several other gentlemen spoke....<sup>32</sup>

La question ayant été posée (sic) pour l'amendement les comité se divise ainsi, 33 pour — 33 contre. Le président donna sa voix prépondérante contre, et l'amendement fut conséquemment perdu.<sup>33</sup>

After the division, Sir A. MacNab asked whether after such a division the Hon. Secretary would proceed with the bill....<sup>34</sup>

Certainly said Mr. Harrison ... certainly said he, I do....<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Johnston then moved that the committee do now rise.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was opposed to the motion. He was in favor of the bill, and would endeavour to make it as good as possible. He would not pledge himself to vote for it in its present shape, but he was not disposed to embarrass its progress in any way.<sup>37</sup>

The motion for rising having been negatived, the committee made some progress with the clauses....<sup>38</sup>

House goes into Committee of whole on Speaker's Salary Bill.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee, to take into consideration the propriety of providing for the payment of an annual salary to the Honourable the Speaker of this House, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Boutillier took the chair of the Committee.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Small said in reference to his remarks on a previous occasion relative to the expression of the government on this subject, he had been given to understand, that the Executive was prepared to acquiesce in whatever resolution might be adopted by the house; he then moved that the sum of ——— pounds be granted for this purpose, such blank to be filled up by a motion. £200 per annum, and £400 per annum, had been respectively given to the Speaker of the House of Assembly in Upper Canada, and as this was now the United Legislature, although even £500 might seem a large sum, considering our position relative to the British Empire, and the United States he would propose to fill up the blank with £1000 Currency.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Roblin considering the finances of the country, would first propose the smaller sum. Upon the plea of dignity he supposed, the higher the salary, the more dignity we should get. With a due regard however to the affairs of the country, he would propose to fill up the blank with £500.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Johnston considered, the high qualities and the dignified manner in which the Speaker had discharged the duties which had devolved upon him, fully justified the sum of £1000 being voted.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Merritt said the argument in favour of the Union had been economy; — that there would be only one set of officers — whereas there was the Attorney General (East), and the Attorney General (West), with high salaries; — then came the Speaker, he was to have £1000. If the resources of the colony were to be lavished away in this manner, where would the funds come from to carry on the public works? <sup>11</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab eagerly seized upon the opportunity — the Speaker was a gentleman of French Canadian descent — the French Canadians, are to a man, bitterly opposed to the present government, — some even go further and say to ***** altogether salary!! — why, to show his obsequiousness to the party whom he dreads and courts, the Speaker was, no doubt, perfectly welcome to all the cash in Upper Canada, so that he could only see the present governor, and suite, together with all his supporters, wandering about like the Irishman, with his elbows looking out for situations — £1,000 per annum was, therefore, the lowest figure that Sir Allan MacNab would put down.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Thorburn knew the value of the bird in the hand in preference to the one in the bush; was therefore desirous to think twice before parting with the money. — With respect to compensation for services, he was perfectly willing to concede that, but he considered that those who aspired to higher offices, ought not to flinch from the expenses they might incur. He remembered the late speaker's refusing to accept of a remuneration because it was not provided by the legislature, he (Mr. T.) therefore preferred the introduction of a bill, authorizing a grant for the occasion. By giving too much, he was afraid that all would aspire to exorbitant demands. Considering, however, the extent of business carried on by Mr. Cuvillier as a merchant, he did not pretend to say that even £1,000 per annum would compensate that gentleman for his abstraction from his personal affairs, however, according to parliamentary practice, he would at first vote for the smaller sum of £500 — if that was rejected, he would propose £750.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Baldwin understood, that in Lower Canada, the speaker had always received £1,000. By his office he was the first commoner in the land, — he thought, therefore, he ought to be paid accordingly.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Harrison defended the government from any dereliction of duty in not having interfered in a matter which was, strictly speaking, the province of the House. The hon. secretary suggested, that there should be an appropriation, including also a grant to the speaker of the Upper House, consistent with that high tone which should prevail in order to give weight and dignity to to (sic) both branches of the legislature.<sup>15</sup>

A resolution was then carried that £1,000 be the amount.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Simpson was desirous of moving the adoption of a similar resolution with respect to the speaker of the Legislative Council, but the present committee ((was)) incompetent to the cognizance of it....<sup>17</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Several Resolutions reported.

Report to be received on Thursday next.

House goes into Committee of whole on Law of possession.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Boutillier reported that the Committee had come to several Resolutions, which he was directed to submit to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received on Thursday next.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee, to take into consideration the expediency of altering the Law of Possession, so far as relates to erroneous surveys, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Harmanus Smith took the chair of the Committee,<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Roblin was heard ... to introduce a bill thereon. It would appear ... that he was desirous of allowing persons to recover lands of which they had been deprived by erroneous surveys, and which by the present law remain in the possessor's hands, if unclaimed for 20 years.<sup>19</sup>

Messrs. Baldwin, Cartwright and Johnston opposed the motion, as being fraught with much confusion and litigation, lands that were held by this claim which the present law allowed, having passed in many instances through various hands involving very complex principles to legislate upon. — <sup>20</sup>

Mr. Thorburn drew a ... distinction between claims not having been made by parties who were unconscious of the right, and claims which had been withheld with the view of awaiting improvements, and the erection of buildings, from interested motives.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Roblin replied at some length, showing that many who could by no means afford it, were great sufferers by the unskillful surveys that had been made heretofore. The period of twenty years also operated in this manner, whoever had held lands unclaimed for that time, were legalized by the law, in retaining possession of them, whereas, those who had not, although even 19 years have elapsed were subject to be deprived of them, together with dwelling houses, barns, and whatever else might have been erected thereon.<sup>22</sup>

The motion was then negatived.<sup>23</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Bill relating to Taverns and Tavern keepers read third time.

Motion for passing bill.

Contra.

An engrossed Bill to repeal the 2d Section of an Ordinance of the Special Council, 4th VICTORIA, Chapter 42, relating to Taverns and Tavern Keepers, was read for the third time.

Mr. Delisle moved, seconded by Mr. Black,

That the Bill do pass, and that the title be "An Act to repeal the second Section of an Ordinance of the Legislature of Lower Canada, relating to Taverns and Tavern Keepers."

Mr. Cameron moved, seconded by Mr. Roblin,

That the said Bill do not now pass, but that it be read this day three months.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Bouthillier rose to defend his protégé, the bill, upon several pleas — of which as a matter of course, justice to Lower Canada was one, a love of sobriety another, and a desire to give every petty grocer the privilege of aiding the tavern keeper, in cultivating this habit, by converting his counter into a bar, the third.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Roblin expressed his determination to support the amendment denouncing these grocery grogeries, as the most active agents in operation in the colony for demoralizing and prostrating the poorer classes. He belonged to the Temperance Society himself, observed the hon. member, but he was not for that reason, desirous of coercing others to follow his example — but would leave the benefits of abstinence from spirituous liquors to time, and its own merits. With respect, however to these foetid grogeries where the drunkard, like the dog, returned to his vomit; he would use every exertion in his power to put them down, knowing, that so far from their being temples of enjoyment they were dens of horror, and the rendez-vous of the dissolute and depraved, the idler and the ruffian.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Delisle pointed out the injustice of making grocers pay for a licence, which was a nullity when compared with the terms of the Ordinance.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Neilson confessed the demoralization of them, and then... decided to vote in favour of them.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Moffatt drew the attention of the house to this anomalous way of proceeding (sic) of denouncing an evil — and then in the same breath avowing an intention to encourage it.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Roblin would support the amendment... as tending in some measure to avoid the general demoralization of the people.<sup>7</sup>

Report.

"Your Committee have carefully examined the prayer of the Petitioners, and are decidedly of opinion that the county of Haldimand, which at present forms part of the District of Niagara, should be separated therefrom, and erected into an independent District, with Cayuga for the District Town.

The great distance which the petitioners and others are obliged to travel, to attend the Courts at the Town of Niagara, is a very great inconvenience, from which Your Committee conceive, they ought to be relieved. The natural resources of the said County are very great, and though its population at the present time is not large, yet it possesses advantages amply sufficient, in the opinion of Your Committee, to entitle it to be set apart as a separate District.

Your Committee have therefore prepared a Bill for that purpose — a draft of which they beg to report for the consideration of Your Honourable House ; and should this measure be adopted, Your Committee respectfully recommend that the District thereby constituted may be permitted to share in the advantages to be bestowed by the Bills now before Your Honourable House, to establish municipal authorities in the several Districts, and to regulate the future recovery of small debts, (if those Bills become law) immediately upon their going into operation."

The House goes into Committee on Municipal Corporation Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide for the internal Government of that part of this Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the establishment of local or Municipal authorities therein, and on the instruction to the said Committee, being read,

The House according resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Hopkins, took the Chair of the Committee.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Harrison had no desire to press this ((26th)) clause. As the special ordinance was going hand in hand through committee at the same time with the bill, with the view of assimilating the latter, as much as possible to the former, he would move an amendment, in accordance with the ordinance, that three fit persons be selected by the Council, a Clerk to be chosen by the Warden out of the three.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Baldwin came forward with a counter amendment to vest the appointment in the Council — the ordinance clause if adopted, providing that in case the Warden did not approve of any one of the three, he might appoint some other person of whom he did approve. —<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Viger ((embellished)) his mild observations by some allusions to the Code Napoleon.<sup>11</sup>

Capt. Steele rose to reply to them, but was clamoured down....<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Parke defended the amendment of the hon. secretary, alleging the probability of faction raging in a similar degree to that which now prevailed in the house, and making it essentially necessary to insure a proper selection that a choice should be made out of 3 persons. According to the present system of responsibility, he contended that the wholesome influence on the part of the government would be exerted for the benefit of the people; that the municipal Councils would give a tone to future elections of members of Parliament; and that it was preposterous to insinuate that the government would at any time persist in retaining a clerk in office whose conduct was obnoxious to the district.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Price was anxious to keep up a balance of power between the executive and the people; by its assuming, however, these various appointments, he was apprehensive, that a preponderating influence would prevail.<sup>14</sup>

Capt. Steele called it splitting straws. The member for Carlton opposed the amendment of Mr. Harrison, as he has done the bill throughout.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Baldwin's amendment was lost by 36 to 31, and Mr. Harrison's carried.<sup>16</sup>

Clause 27 ((was discussed next)).<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Harrison would merely remark, that the same objections hitherto offered, would be merely a repetition of the principle of them. Under the old system, the treasurer was appointed by the Magistrates, they, by the Crown; the influence was therefore an indirect one, without responsibility. The present clause was, therefore a decided improvement, in the municipal order of things.<sup>18</sup>

Clause 32. — The appointment of two auditors — one by the council, the other by the warden.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Baldwin's amendment was to give the council the appointment of both.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Harrison remarked that although there was nothing of great importance in the council appointing the auditors, &c. as it was a part of the systematic opposition (sic) that the bill had met with (many even avowing their opposition to be at variance with their opinions,) that he would oppose the amendment.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Neilson was very indignant at this simple observation ... the hon. member said something about his hereafter doubting himself a British subject.<sup>22</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab ... made some personal allusions to Mr. Hopkins having given his casting vote to save the bill a few evenings past, from falling a sacrifice to party rage. — He said, sneeringly, "the country would thank him for it."<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Parke ... observed, that if the party had prevailed in the amendments that had been put forth, those very men who exclaimed so loudly at the democratic tendency of the bill, would most consistently have carried out the principles of Conservatism, by taking away the power of the Crown, in toto, in the districts. (Hear, hear.)<sup>24</sup>

The amendment was negatived.<sup>25</sup>

The first paragraph, embodying the provisions of the bye-laws, was objected to by Mr. Baldwin, who said, that it would give a power to make a road through "Dundurn Castle," or any body's farm.<sup>26</sup>

Capt. Steele, Messrs. Boswell and Cook maintained, if this power was not vested in the council, the means of getting round swamps and removing obstacles would not exist.<sup>27</sup>

The 14th paragraph empowering the councils to provide for the disabled and infirm poor was struck out, the plea urged being, that it was a virtual introduction of the poor law.<sup>28</sup>

((There was)) a great deal of discussion on the 38th clause....<sup>29</sup>

Appendix. 10 August 1841.

((Withdrawn Motion Re : Question about Seat of Government.))<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Small moved that an address be presented to His Excellency, with the view of eliciting whether His Excellency had received any instructions from the Home Government, relative to the Seat of Government in the Province; and whether His Excellency had recommended any particular locality himself or not — whether Kingston was to be the Seat of Government or not; if on the contrary, where the seat of government was to be.<sup>41</sup>

Mr. Thorburn considered this an infringement on the prerogative of the crown, with whom it rested alone to determine upon the subject, — without being exposed in the most distant manner to be summoned by another power to account for the exercise of such prerogative.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Price said the subject was a most important one, many of his constituents being most anxious to know the decision of the government, that they might have some idea whether their enterprizes in prosecuting various improvements, in certain localities were to be successful or a failure.<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Small expressed his surprise at Mr. Thorburn's remarks, and hinted at his late abandonment of reform principles.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Harrison said the question was one purely of prerogative. That this is the seat of government remarked the hon. Secretary, must be evident to every one. Here the Parliament is sitting, and no one can allege that public business has sustained any inconvenience. As to which was to be the seat of government, which the most eligible place for it, some might say Toronto, others might point out other places, but in his opinion, merely a matter of opinion, he thought Kingston was the best place. The house might certainly, adopt the proposition of the hon. member for the 3rd Riding of York, and address His Excellency, but he (Mr. Harrison) expressed his opinion candidly that His Excellency having exercised that discretion which was granted to him by the Union Act in this particular, he did not think any satisfactory result could arise from his hon. friend's motion.<sup>35</sup>

Sir A. MacNab thought the Province was entitled to know what was the fixed intention of the government on this point. Some said Toronto, some Quebec, others Bytown, Dundas, Hamilton and Waterloo, these were all named as head quarters in prospective.<sup>36</sup>

A number of speeches or remarks fell from Messrs. Small, Duggan, Viger, and Baldwin.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Buchanan remarked that an answer had been given, and he hoped the Hon. Member would withdraw his motion. A better way would be to address His Excellency, suggesting such a position for the seat of Government as would prove most fitting under all circumstances.<sup>38</sup>

Capt. Steele said, if Sir Allan's remarks to compel the Government to give information, breathed the language of a Conservative, he, as a Reformer, would repudiate the doctrine.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Small withdrew his motion, substituting that the house in committee of the whole, on a day appointed, take the subject into consideration, with the view of framing an address.<sup>40</sup>

Returning Officer sworn and gives evidence.

Joseph Eustache Sicard De Carufel, Esquire, Returning Officer at the last election for the County of St. Maurice, was called to the Bar, and after having been duly sworn, gave the following evidence : — Evidence of Returning Officer at late election for county of St. Maurice.

No. 1, Ques. — Was Joseph Edouard Turcotte, Esquire, required to make the declaration prescribed by the 28th Section of the Union Act, 3d and 4th VICTORIA, Chapter 28, at any time during the Election of the County of St Maurice? If so, please to say when he was required to do so, and what then occurred? — Ans. — Mr. Turcotte was required, by one Pierre Dugas dit Labrèche, to make the declaration in question. Mr. Turcotte answered, that he was qualified, and that it was not necessary that he should qualify himself again. Nevertheless, he continued, I shall read the declaration so that he will not understand it, as he does not understand English. He then turned towards me, and asked me whether I had the Union Bill. Having it by me, I handed it to him. He then turned his back to me, and read the twenty eighth Section in question; but I cannot say whether he read it all, because there was a great deal of noise.

No. 2, Ques. — Did you hear what the said Joseph Edouard Turcotte, Esquire, said? for instance, did he mention his name, or the tenure by which he held this property? — Ans. — As to this name, I am not very certain; but, to the best of my knowledge, I do believe I heard him pronounce the word "Turcotte," but not any thing about the nature of his property.

No. 3, Ques. — In point of fact, did the said Joseph Edouard Turcotte, Esquire, when he so read the part of the declaration, which you heard, specifying the tenure by which he held any property, to which he then laid claim? — Ans. — I did hear him do so.

No. 4, Ques. — How did he become possessed of the Book containing the Union Act? Was it with or without your assent? Describe the manner in which he so became possessed of it? — Ans. — When he asked me for the Union Bill, he snatched it out of my hands before I gave it to him.

No. 5, Ques. — Was any violence used towards, or any threatening language addressed to you, during the said election — and if so, by

Evidence of Returning Officer at late election for County of St. Maurice.

whom, am I relate (sic) what occurred? — Ans. — When I began to take the votes, I wished to take them in the public room which was the place I had appointed for that purpose. Mr. Turcotte opposed this, saying, that he wished them to be taken in the open air. We then began to take them, in the open air, but the Poll Clerk having informed me that the ink was frozen, I ordered that the votes should be taken in the public room. Mr. Turcotte then said to his partizans: "They want to do me an injustice — have you still strong arms?" His partizans began to set up loud cries, and took possession of the Poll. In consequence of these threats, I ordered that the Poll should be closed. Mr. Turcotte came to me with his sword in his hand, and told me that if I did not continue taking the votes I should be torn to pieces, saying, "you are a damned hog, and your life is in danger," at the same time, several of his partizans threatened me with sticks, and with their fists.

No. 6. Ques. — Did he threaten that blood should be split, and were you afraid for your life? — He told me that he would not answer for my life; and I was afraid for my life.

No. 7. Ques. — As you state that you did not hear the said J. E. Turcotte, Esquire, read the whole declaration, how came you to give him a certificate that he had read it? — Ans. — Because I was afraid for my life, and it was on the day after the opening of the Poll that I granted him a certificate of his having read the declaration.

No. 8. Ques. — Do you mean to say that the threats used, and the danger you ran, disturbed your judgment at the time, and your memory afterwards? — Ans. — No; but as it was the first time I had been a Returning Officer, and being pressed by Mr. Turcotte to decide, I did every thing without too much reflection.

No. 9. Ques. — Were you the Returning Officer for the last election of the County (sic) of St. Maurice, and is the Poll Book now produced, the Poll Book of the said election? — Ans. — Yes.

No. 10. Ques. — Was there any violence the second day? — Ans. — No.

No. 11. Ques. — When the Sitting Member read the declaration, as described by you, was any objection made as to the manner in which it was made, and if so by whom? — Ans. — No.

No. 12. Ques. — Were there any blows struck in your presence, the first day? — Ans. — No; not to my knowledge.

No. 13. Ques. — Is the certificate of Mr. Turcotte's declaration entered on the Poll Book? the act of declaration made in consequence of the requisition of Pierre Dugas dit Labreche — Ans. — Yes.

No. 14. Ques. — Is it not true that the Poll lasted three days, and that it was on the 1st day that the Sitting Member used to you the threats of which you have spoken? — Ans. — It was on the first and on the second day.

No. 15. Ques. — Is it not true that the Sitting Member did not ask you to grant him a certificate of his having read the declaration; but that you signed the entry which appears on the Poll Book of your own accord, after it had been drawn up by your clerk? — Ans. — It was Mr. Turcotte who required me to sign it, and who dictated it to my clerk.

No. 16. Ques. — Was the certificate which you granted, of the said declaration, drawn from you by intimidation? — Ans. — No.

No. 17. Ques. — Is it not true that a Company of Her Majesty's Troops came to the Poll on the second day, on the requisition of Mr. Gugy? — Ans. — I have no knowledge that they came on the requisition of Mr. Gugy. The troops arrived during the night between the first and second days of the election.

No. 18. Ques. — Did you yourself, or did any other person object to the declaration drawn up by your clerk and signed by you? — Ans. — No.

Evidence of Returning Officer at late election for the County of St. Maurice.

No. 19, Ques. — On whose requisition did Troops come? Was it on yours? and to whom and when was the requisition made? — Ans. — On the requisition of the Magistrates, and myself.

No. 20, Ques. — Is it not true that the Troops remained from the opening of the Poll, on the second day, to the close of the election? if not when did they come, and when did they go away? — Ans. — They came at the beginning of the second day, and they went away at the close of the third day, after the election was over.

No. 21, Ques. — Did you attend the preceding elections for the County of Saint Maurice? and have you observed that it was the custom for the candidates, for that County, to wear swords during the election? Ans. — I never attended them.

No. 22, Ques. — What o'clock was it when the sitting member threatened you, and used the injurious expressions you have mentioned? — Ans. I think it was about one, or half past one, in the afternoon of the first day.

No. 23, Ques. — At the close of the Poll, was any other protest made by the Candidate, or by the electors, than that which appears on the Poll Book? — Ans. — No.

No. 24, Ques. — Where you in the open air, or in the Public Room, when the threats and expressions, which you have mentioned, were used towards you? — Ans. — In the Public Room.

No. 25, Ques. — What o'clock was it when you were threatened and insulted by the sitting Member, on the second day? — Ans. — I do not remember exactly; but I think it was about half past, or three quarters past, eight, in the morning.

No. 26, Ques. — Is it not true that the Poll was held, as it was opened in the open air? — Ans. — It was only held for a very short time in the open air.

No. 27, Ques. — Were you under the necessity of calling in the Troops to maintain, or to re-establish order? — Ans. — Yes.

No. 28, Ques. — Is it not true that you went to Maskinongé, in a carriage with Mr. Gugy, on the evening of the first day of the election? Ans. — It was on the second day.

No. 29, Ques. — Is it not true that you solicited votes for Mr. Gugy, and when you went with him to Maskinongé, before, or afterwards? — Ans. No.

No. 30, Ques. — Did any disturbance occur during the election which rendered it necessary to call in the assistance of the Troops to repress it? and by what party was such disturbance occasioned? — Ans. — I think I have already answered this question — By the Partizans of Mr. Turcotte.

No. 31, Ques. — Can you say that a single blow was struck, either with a fist, or a stick, during the elections? — Ans. — No.

Mr. Carufel then withdrew.

The Counsel then declared the evidence closed on the part of the Petitioners and delivered to the Clerk of the House the following Paper, marked (A.)

1. No actual reports of the debate on the proceedings re: the St. Maurice election are available. Commentaries upon the proceedings are found in BRITISH COLONIST, 18 August 1841; MONTREAL GAZETTE, 16 August 1841. "The house was cleared so often, at the will and pleasure of Mr. Aylwin in opposition to the wishes of almost every other member of the House, that it is altogether impossible to give any thing connected of (sic) the proceedings. As a garbled statement therefore could be of no service to your readers, I shall merely give you the on dits and such cursory remarks, as the occasional and momentary audiences permitted by Mr. Aylwin, would admit of." reported the BRITISH COLONIST's Kingston correspondent. The correspondent of the MONTREAL GAZETTE wrote approximately the same: "The examination of the Returning Officer was continued till a very late hour, and amidst numerous interruptions and objections, on which occasions the House was cleared of strangers. This got so irksome and disagreeable, that the great majority of strangers withdrew altogether."

Report on Petition of Ichabod Wing.

"That, from the evidence submitted to them by the Petitioner, they are led to believe that, being an Inhabitant of Upper Canada in 1813, he was seized in fee of Lots number 26, in the 5th and 6th Concessions of the Township of Elizabethtown, in the District of Johnstown.

That, being, in consequence of religious scruples, associated with the Society of Friends, he refused, from such scruples, to perform military duty, and was, in consequence thereof, imprisoned in the common Gaol of the District of Johnstown, at Brockville, when that place fell into the hands of the enemy, in the month of February in that year. That he was on that occasion, with other persons confined at the same time, taken prisoner by the enemy, and carried into the United States. That after his liberation from confinement, by the American authorities, he continued to reside in the United States, from an apprehension that if he returned he would be imprisoned for not performing military duty, as he had been before, that subsequently, by an inquisition taken by and under the Act of the Provincial Parliament of Upper Canada, 54 GEO : 3 Ch. 9., the Petitioner was found to have voluntarily withdrawn from the Province, and the said lands under the authority of that Act, became vested in the Crown, and were sold with the forfeited lands.

That the lands having been thus forfeited, in consequence of the omission of the Petitioner to traverse the inquisition within the time permitted by Law, and the lands having been therefore actual sold, your Committee cannot recommend to your Honourable House the granting the prayer of the Petition, as it could only be granted with the confiscation of the sale made of the lands on the behalf of the Public, and would therefore result in no practical benefit to the Petitioner, your Committee however think that the case of the Petitioner might be recommended to the favourable consideration of Her Majesty's Government with a view, if upon fuller enquiry it should be found that his lands had not been legally liable to forfeiture under the provisions of the Act, some compensation in land, or otherwise, might be made for the property thus sold by Public Auction."

Mr. Morris, moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House, on Tuesday next.

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the negative.

 The House adjourned.

Footnotes — 13 August 1841.

1. Comments about the proceedings on the St. Maurice election were reported in: MONTREAL GAZETTE, 16 August 1841; LE CANADIEN, 18 August 1841. The only actual reports of the debate are found in the MONTREAL GAZETTE: "Colonel Prince ... began to address the House in reply to an insinuation which had fallen from Mr. Turcotte, that he (Col. Prince,) had told him he had left town, with a view to rid himself of managing the present case; but as this would have led to an unpleasant discussion, in which Mr. Turcotte might have suffered, the House was cleared of strangers at the request of Mr. Aylwin." The other piece of information was: "A good laugh was caused ... when the Members sworn in the previous day were called over, and among others Messrs. Cameron and Roblin were found wanting. Mr. Johnston moved that the Sergeant at Arms, or his Deputy, do forthwith proceed to the Temperance Meeting, and take the delinquents into custody. The Speaker did not seem to attend to the motion, after it had been put into his hands." The commentaries on the day's proceedings are similar to those on the 12th of August 1841. The MONTREAL GAZETTE's correspondent noted: "The same numerous interruptions and clearing the House of strangers occurred throughout the whole evening — so that little good was to be obtained by remaining about the House." LE CANADIEN's correspondent wrote: "La plus grande partie de la séance d'hier a été employée à l'affaire de l'élection de St. Maurice. Il n'est pas besoin de vous dire que presque tout le temps de la Chambre a été consumé en discussions interminables sur la pertinence ou non-pertinence des questions posées, et sur mille points de procédés qu'il serait trop long de rapporter."

Eustache Sicard De Carufel, Esquire, again appeared at the Bar of the House and was interrogated as follows : —

No. 63, Ques. — In what language did the sitting Member read, or pretend to read, the declaration of qualification from the Union Act. — Ans. In the English Language.

No. 64, Ques. — Did you understand that language, or have you sufficient knowledge of the English language to certify under Oath that, that declaration was made in conformity with the statute ? — Ans. — No. — I do not understand English sufficiently well for that.

Examination of Returning Officer proceeded in.

No. 62, Ques. — Do you mean to say that the declaration was not in fact conformable to the statute ? — Ans. — I cannot say whether it was or was not.

No. 66, Ques. — Did Colonel Gugy, at the close of the Poll, require you to proclaim him as duly elected, and did he protest verbally, or otherwise against your refusing so to do ? — Ans. — He required me, verbally, to proclaim him elected ; and he then delivered me a protest to the same effect, which is annexed to the Poll Book.

No. 67, Ques. — When did you hear Colonel Gugy object to the manner in which the sitting Member read the declaration of qualification ? Ans. — The first day at the Hustings.

No. 68, Ques. — Mr. Johnston wishes to know why or for what cause the military were sent for, was it at the request of the Returning Officer or the unsuccessful candidate ? — Ans. — Because there were disturbances on the first day, and my life was in danger from the threats used by the sitting Member and his partizans. — The Troops were required by the several Magistrates, subjects of Her Majesty, and by myself.

No. 69, Ques. — Whose partizans, at the said election, were those who joined you in requiring the troops ? — Ans. — I do not know them all. There was Mr. Boucher, the elder, Mr. Bazin, Antoine Picotte, and several others, whose names I cannot recollect — those I have mentioned were partizans of Mr. Gugy.

Motion, that Speaker do leave the chair for one hour, lost.

Mr. Morris moved, seconded by Mr. Boswell,

That the Speaker do leave the chair for one hour.

The question being put upon the said motion a division ensued, and it passed in the negative.

The taking of the evidence was then continued.

No. 70, Ques. — You have said that the sitting member read the the twenty-eighth section of the Union Act : How do you know that he did so, if you do not understand English ? — Ans. — Because the sitting member himself caused it to be entered in the Poll Book that he had done so.

No. 71, Ques. — After the sitting member had made the declaration of which you granted him acte. Did Mr. Gugy object to the said declaration and in what way ? — Ans. — After the sitting member had read his declaration Mr. Gugy presented his to me in writing, telling me to require the same from the sitting member. I then required the sitting member to do so, and he replied that he had done enough.

No. 72, Ques. — Did Mr. Gugy then assert that Mr. Turcotte had not read the declaration ; or did he confine himself to requiring that it should be made in writing ? — Ans. — Mr. Gugy said nothing at that time except what I have just stated. He complained of the reading.

No. 73, Ques. — Were any threats used towards you signifying or implying that any and what injury would be done you if you did not return the sitting member, other than bodily injury ?

This question was objected to, and —

Resolved — That the said question is not pertinent.

Mr. Boswell moved, seconded by Mr. Morris,

That the speaker do leave the chair for one hour.

The question having been put upon the said motion a division ensued, and it passed in the negative.

No. 74, Ques. — You say that you saw no blows actually struck, yet that you feared for your life, what was the causes of this fear ? — Ans. — After the Poll was opened I wished to take the votes in the public room, the place which I had assigned for that purpose, the sitting member opposed my doing so. In consequence of this I took seven votes in the open air and then directed that they should be taken in the house. Mr. Turcotte then said to his people, "they want to do you injustice," about two hundred people immediately passed over the hustings in order to get into the room, yelling, swearing and breaking the boards of the Hustings. Mr. Turcotte said to me, "you see that my people are getting violent, come and take the votes out of doors, if you do not obey my orders you will be the cause of blood being spilt." I found myself immediately afterwards surrounded by the sitting member and his partizans. One called out — "Take the votes or I'll kill you," another said, "Take the votes or I'll blow your brains out," some of them threatened me with sticks. In consequence of those threats and the disturbance which then existed, I determined to adjourn the Poll. The sitting member said to me "open the Poll or I'll have you torn in pieces." He told me a second time to open the Poll, and that if I did not he would not answer for my life. I got out of the place as well as I could, and when I was outside I heard the sitting member say to his partizans, that I had run away, that I had not done my duty, but that he would make me do it the next day, whether I would or not. As I believed that I had done my duty, and was afraid that the next day the sitting member would make me do something unjust, and as his partizans seemed disposed to be riotous, and he appeared to excite them to be so, and I could not continue the election without having a sufficient force, we sent for the troops.

No. 75, Ques. — What o'clock was it when the electors took possession of the Poll in the manner you have described? — Ans. — I believe I have already answered this question. I cannot recollect exactly, but this took place at or near half-past one, and lasted about half or three quarters of an hour.

No. 76, Ques. — What were the dimensions of the Hustings? — Were they entirely destroyed, or partially damaged, and if the latter, what part was damaged? — Ans. — The whole front of the Hustings. They were about twelve feet long by five feet wide.

Motion for adjournment.

Mr. Thorburn moved, seconded by Mr. Johnston,

That the House do adjourn until five o'clock, P. M., this day.

The question having been put upon the said motion a division ensued, and the names being called for, they were taken down as followeth: —

Motion for adjournment lost.

So it passed in the negative.

Examination of Returning Officer proceeded in.

No. 77, Ques. — Do you mean to say that you do not understand English at all — or that you understand it only imperfectly? — Ans. — I understand only a few words.

No. 78, Ques. — In what language was your Commission written ? — If it were in English did you understand its contents ? Ans. — It was in English but I got it translated into French.

No. 79, Ques. — Who translated your Commission for you ? — Name the persons — Ans. — Mr. Ovide Benjamin Peltier.

No. 80, Ques. — Was there any doubt in your mind that the declaration which Mr. Turcotte read at the time of election, was the declaration by law required of persons eligible to a seat in the Assembly, and candidate therefor ? — Ans. — I have no doubt that this declaration is the declaration required by the Law ; but I have some doubts as to the manner in which it was read.

No. 81, Ques. — As you did not understand the language in which the sitting member read, what made you suppose it was the declaration required by law ? — Ans. — Because I thought that, although I do not understand English, the sitting member ought to have addressed himself to me to read it ; on the contrary, he went to a distance from me, to the other end of the Hustings, to read it, and as there were several persons between him and me, I was unable to hear him. I must add, that at the moment the partizans of both candidates were making a great deal of noise.

The question being again read to the witness, he added : — Ans. — Because the sitting member caused an entry to be made on the Poll Book that he had read the declaration on the Hustings.

No. 82, Ques. — Have you any knowledge that the sitting member made the declaration that he did not collusively or colourably obtain a title to, or come possessed of lands and tenements, or any part thereof, for the purpose of qualifying or enabling himself to be returned a member of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada ? — Ans. — When the sitting member offered himself as a candidate, it was notorious that he was not qualified ; and I have heard it said that he had received a gift of a lot of land worth about £500, but which was subject to a life rent of £40.

The question being again read to the witness, he answered : Ans. — No.

No. 83, Ques. — When the sitting member took the copy of the Union Act from you, did he tell you what use he meant to make of it ? — Ans. — No ; he snatched it out of my hands without saying for what purpose.

No. 84, Ques. — When the sitting member read the declaration, was your clerk, Mr. Peltier, present ? Does not that gentleman understand English ; and did he not follow the sitting member when the latter was reading ? Ans. — I cannot say whether he was present, but I know that he understood English well.

Mr. De Carufel then withdrew.

Mr. Neilson moved, seconded by Mr. Boswell,

That the House do now adjourn.

The question being put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative, and —

The House accordingly adjourned until Monday next.

1. Like the days preceding it, the 14th of August was spent in discussing the St. Maurice election proceedings. LE CANADIEN, 18 August 1841, reported : "La Chambre a siégé depuis dix heures du matin jusqu'à quatre heures et demie, n'ayant entendu que M. Carufel." The rest of its report is a commentary on the day's proceedings.

of Upper and Lower Canada, whose services have been unavoidably dispensed with — All which he recommends to their consideration.

In framing the estimate for the salaries of Officers, for the Legislative Council, His Excellency has been guided by the wishes expressed by that body, that their establishment should be provided for as much as possible by annual vote, and not, as heretofore, mainly defrayed out of contingences, which does not afford the same specific information as to the items of expence to the Public.

In submitting the estimate for the House of Assembly, the Governor General has followed the precedent of the House of Assembly of Lower Canada, with regard to the Officers to be paid by annual vote, or from the contingencies, not having been made aware of the wishes of the House, but he will be happy to adopt any alteration in this respect, which the House of Assembly may desire, and to give to it the recommendation of the Crown.

Appendix. 16 August 1841.

((Withdrawn Motion Re : Legislative Officials' Salaries.))

On the order of the day for the reception of the committee of the whole on the speaker's salary, Mr. Small moved that the message of His Excellency thereon, and in relation to the salaries of the officers of both houses, be referred to the same committee, as the remuneration of members.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Harrison was of opinion that it was very mal-à-propos to blend the two together. — The subject was not one of paramount importance to the country. As the House was desirous that a measure should be adopted on this subject, there would be no difficulty in the way of it, he was only desirous therefore, of not precipitating it, but that the House should exercise a moderate degree of patience, and it would meet with every attention.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Small said if the suggestion of the hon. Secretary was conclusive, as to the intention of the Government to take charge of the measure, he felt every confidence in its being productive of general satisfaction, and was ready to adopt any course that might be most convenient.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Johnston said that in looking at the Union Bill, he found that the salaries of all the prominent officials in the Province were very carefully provided for ; but when the wages of members were brought on the carpet, it was either inexpedient or unconstitutional, or some other objection was raised to it. The fact was this, (he was of opinion,) let them, the members, only get through the business of the country, and they might pack up and march as soon as they pleased.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Harrison here rose and expressed regret that he had interfered at all. It was an affair that belonged entirely to the house, and as the Government had quite enough business of its own to attend to, there was no disposition on the part of it to add to the burthen, by assuming the direction of a measure which decidedly should emanate from, and be matured by the house itself. — The offer therefore to withdraw the motion in consequence of the previous remarks that he had made, he was desirous of declining, and trusted that it would be carried.<sup>6</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was here seen, to sidle up to Mr. Small, who had brought the subject under notice, and urge him to withdraw it — "we'll make them," we'll insist upon it, they the government shall take it in hand" said the gallant Knight.<sup>7</sup>

The motion however was withdrawn....<sup>8</sup>

Resolved — That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House a statement of all sums of money, if any, transmitted to the Home Government by the Deputy Post Master General, during the last four years, as and for postages, and balances of postages by him received and levied upon Her Majesty's subjects in the late Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, and in this Province; and also the information as to the authority under which the said sums were received and remitted to Great Britain.

Ordered — That the said Address be presented to His Excellency by such members of this House as are of the Honourable the Executive Council of this Province.

Motion to appoint
Committee on Post Office Department.

Mr. Aylwin moved, seconded by Mr. Thorburn,

That a Committee of seven members be appointed to enquire into the Department of the Deputy Post Master General in this Province.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Harrison opposed it as most inconvenient. A Commission had been appointed to investigate the Post Office Department, the report of which, when in a proper state would in due course be submitted to the house. He perfectly agreed with others, that it was a subject demanding the attention of that house, but at the same time entitled to its patience, until the result of the present commission could be ascertained.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Parke said that the most minute enquiries had been made, and he had no doubt, if this mischievous meddling was restrained, such evidence would be laid before Parliament, as would be perfectly satisfactory.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Thorburn's view in seconding the motion was to obtain the expression of the House as to the labours of the commission, that time might be saved by such expression of opinion accompanying the report if necessary, to England, and affecting probably, in a degree the construction of the act of the Imperial Parliament on the subject for the benefit of the country.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Aylwin went on in his usual strain....<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Draper said that the post office department belonged to the supreme government; that the Commons of England — (hear) — had instituted the commission at the expense of the British Government. (Hear, hear.) That they were quite as competent to judge of the legality or the constitutionality of the commission as Mr. Aylwin! and quite as jealous of their privileges! That without evincing in the most distant manner, an opinion of assumption of power on the part of the executive by the appointment of such commissions, to show their perfect acquiescence in them, they were accustomed invariably to act on their reports. The learned Att'y. General in continuation said, that the commission which was now in progress, was of a general character, embracing the Mother Country as well as the Colony; and that although the powers to be given to Mr. Aylwin's commission of five might be ample enough, they could not proceed beyond the Province; the consequence would be, the insignificance of the efforts of the commission would place the house in this dilemma; that it would be obliged to act upon very limited information, and consequently, the commission would prove a useless expense instead of a benefit to the colony. — <sup>11</sup>

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and the names being called for, they were taken down as followeth: —

So it passed in the negative.

House in Committee
on U. C. District Council Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide for the better internal Government of that part of this Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the establishment of local or municipal authorities therein, and on the instruction to the said Committee, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
Mr. Cook took the chair of the Committee.<sup>12</sup>

Clause 39 was the first in order.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Harrison moved an amendment, that the assessment do not exceed 2d. in the pound, and that instead of wild lands, the words all lands be substituted, to be rated and assessed at 1½d. per acre. — That among the reasons which prompted this rate of assessment, were various increased demands on the resources of the country — lunatic asylums, (sic) jails, (at least so the hon. Secretary was understood,) member's wages, &c.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Baldwin moved an amendment, that the assessment upon wild lands be according to their value.<sup>15</sup>

Many spoke in favour of this amendment, repeating their opinions at least about a dozen times. The whole of them ... may be condensed into a very small space, showing that some lands were infinitely superior in soil and locality to others — and consequently they ought to be assessed higher, and that a fixed uniform rate per acre, would be the reverse of an ad valorem rate, but would subject all land, distant or contiguous to towns, bad or good in quality, to one and the same rate of assessment, at variance with the just distribution of the general burthen of taxation which ought to fall upon proportion to its capability of supporting it.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Hincks were also in favour of a general assessment of all kinds of property being included in the bill.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Harrison objected to this as encumbering the present bill, intimating that it was the intention of the government to bring before the house a distinct and separate measure, embracing every description of assessment.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Baldwin's amendment was lost, and Mr. Harrison's, being put from the chair, passed in the affirmative.<sup>19</sup>

The 41st clause being read, Mr. Baldwin, moved the introduction of a clause to prevent the District Councils from borrowing money.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Harrison proposed an amendment in the clause reserving the power of raising money on the part of the District Councils, and merely restricting them from issuing notes and acting in any way as bankers.<sup>21</sup>

The clause thus amended was carried.<sup>22</sup>

Clause 45 prohibiting the action of any bye law, until the expiration of thirty days after an authentic copy shall have been received by the Secretary of the Province, and reserving the power of disallowance to the Governor by and with the advice of the Executive Council ((was read)).<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Baldwin ... ((spoke about)) the gross and cruel injustice to Lower Canada, giving as an example of it the power reserved by the Executive in a similar clause in the ordnance whereby not only a bye law, but any part of a bye law, may be annulled by the Governor, dwelling particularly upon this as a shamefully allowing any objectionable part to be culled out of such bye law.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Aylwin qualified himself....<sup>25</sup>

((Mr. Morin spoke)) ... in unusually strong language....<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Day ... read from the Statute Book, from which the very ordnance (sic) had been copied, one by which the free people of England, are at this present time perfectly contested to submit to, with respect to municipal law, whereby (be it observed) every bye law must await the expiration of 40 days (10 days longer than the Lower Canadian Ordinance (sic) provides) after the Secretary has received a copy of it before it can be in force; and again, — talk about tyrannically culling out! this very clause in the Statute of Wm. IV., subjects such British municipal bye law to the very same exercise of power, on the part of the Imperial Government which is empowered not only to reject the whole or any part of it, displaying as Mr. Day ... observed a supreme ignorance on the part of those who had raised the clamour; a clamour which however he also ... observed, was quite in unison with the language of Mr. Aylwin at all times when he opened his lips about the government, and therefore undeserving of the slightest consideration.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Durand proposed an amendment, that pay be allowed such Councillors not exceeding 7s. 6d. per day.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Thorburn was in favour of the amendment.<sup>29</sup>

A novel and rather amusing scene now took place: Mr. Cook the Chairman! got up and would persist in addressing the committee, he calling others to order, others calling him.<sup>30</sup>

However Mr. Durand's amendment was negatived.<sup>31</sup>

And the House having continued to sit till after twelve o'clock on Wednesday morning.

((Wednesday, 18 August 1841.))

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

Bill reported amended.

And Mr. Cook reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received at the next sitting of the House.

The names of the members present were taken down as followeth:

Mr. Speaker,

No quorum.

Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Boswell, Mr. Buchanan, the Honourable Mr. Daly, Mr. Solicitor General Day, Mr. Attorney General Draper, Mr. Dunscomb, Mr. Durand, Mr. Foster, the Honourable Mr. Harrison, Mr. Hincks, Mr. Parke, Mr. Powell, and the Honourable Mr. Viger.

At half past 12 o'clock, on Wednesday morning, Mr. Speaker adjourned the House, for want of a quorum, till this day.

MR. SPEAKER,

The Legislative Council have passed the following Bills, without any amendment : —

Bill to naturalize
J. A. Tailhades, and

De Gaspé's relief Bill, passed Legislative Council.

Bill to amend Mutual Insurance Act of L.
Canada, sent down
amended.

"An Act to secure to, and confer upon Jacques Alexandre Tailhades, "an inhabitant of this Province, the civil and political rights of a "natural born British subject."

"An Act for the relief of Philippe Aubert De Gaspé."

And also,

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill intituled "An Act to amend an Act of the Legislature of Lower Canada, relative to the establishment of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies," with several amendments, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly.

And then he withdrew.

On motion of Sir Allan McNab, seconded by Mr. Buchanan, Petition of G. Monro,

Mayor of Toronto,

Ordered — That the Petition of George Monro, Mayor, on behalf of the Corporation of the City of Toronto, praying for the appointment of a Committee to enquire into, and report upon, the truth of the statements contained in the Report of the Commissioners, appointed to investigate the cause of the late riots in the said City, be now read, and that the Rule of this House of the 20th of June last, be dispensed with, as to the present Petition.

The said Petition was read accordingly.

Some discussion arose on the petition. Sir Allan MacNab spoke with some degree of excitement on the occasion, and ... the petition was referred to the same committee as the report of Messrs. Fullam and others, and he himself added to the committee, which will run thus — Small (Chairman) Christie, Neilson, Merritt, Williams, Sir A. Macnab —<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Johnston ... proposed to add Mr. Hincks' name to it, on account he said of his being so disinterested in the matter.<sup>2</sup>

I trust (said (Mr. Hincks)) the member for Oxford) that Mr. Johnston will withdraw his motion, for to speak candidly, I have already made up my mind on the subject, and in that case it would not be at all fair.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Johnston, "I have no doubt the hon. member has made up his mind upon it, I am therefore perfectly willing to withdraw it."<sup>4</sup>

Petition referred to Committee on Petition of P. Leppard and others.

A member added to said Committee.

members.

Ordered — That the said Petition be referred to the Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of Peter Leppard, of East Gwillimbury, Home District, and other references.

Mr. Christie, Chairman of the Committee appointed to try the merits of the Petition of William Dunlop, of Gairbraid, Esquire, in the County of Huron, complaining of the undue election and return of James McGill Strachan, Esquire, as a member to represent the County of Huron, reported to the House that the Committee met, pursuant to adjournment, at 10 o'clock, A. M., this day, and that Messieurs Burnet and Holmes, were absent.

Leave granted to Com.
on Petition of Bonner and Petry to report

On Motion of Mr. Neilson, seconded by Mr. Christie,

Ordered — That the Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of John Bonner, and William Petry, of Quebec, have leave to report from time to time by Bill or otherwise.

Committee on Petition of Bonner and Pery make 1st report, with a Bill.
Report.

Accordingly Mr. Neilson, presented the first Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's Table.

"Your Committee, on examining the Petition, find that the Petitioners complain that a certain lot of land at Quebec, which they had purchased from the Executive Government, and paid £222 on account thereof, had not been granted them on the terms agreed upon.

Your Committee are of opinion that a complaint of his nature should be heard and acted upon by an ordinary Court of Justice, but that difficulties exist in bringing such matters before a Judicial Court, when the Executive Government is concerned; they have therefore prepared a Bill, to facilitate a legal remedy to such as have claims on the Provincial Government, which they beg to recommend for the adoption of your Honourable House."

Bill for relief of Claimants against the Government read first time.
Second reading Monday next.

Mr. Neilson, then presented to the House a Bill, to facilitate a legal remedy to persons having claims against Her Majesty's Provincial Government; which was received, and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Hincks, seconded by Mr. Roblin, Commission appointed to take evidence on contested Election for 2nd Riding of York.

Resolved — That this House do nominate and appoint, under the hand and seal of the Speaker, three Commissioners, for the purpose of examining the Witnesses of the Parties in the matter of the controverted election for the second Riding of the County of York; and that Lawrence Heyden, of the Township of Whitby, John Ridout, Esquire, of the City of Toronto, and John Barnhart, Esquire, of Streetsville, be such Commissioners; who shall be authorized and empowered to hold their sittings at Streetsville, on Saturday next the 21st. instant, with John Ridout, Esquire, as chairman of the said Commission.

On motion of Mr. Hincks, seconded by Mr. Merritt, Message sent to Legislative Council praying leave for Hon. J. Macaulay to attend a Committee.

Resolved — That a Message be sent to the Legislative Council praying their Honors will permit the Honourable John Macaulay, to attend the Select Committee to which is referred so much of the Message of His Excellency the Governor General as relates to the estimates for the year ending the 31st of December 1841, together with the documents connected therewith, — to-morrow, the 19th instant, at 11 o'clock, A. M., to be examined on the subject of the said reference.

Return of Militia Fines laid before the House.

The Honourable S. B. Harrison, presented, pursuant to an address of the House of Assembly of the 19th. of July last, a return on the subject of the fines and exempt monies received by commanding Officers of Militia.

For said return see Appendix (A. A.)

200 copies of Return to be printed.

Ordered — That 200 copies of the said return be printed, for the use of the Members of this House.

On motion of Mr. Parke, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Harrison, House to go in Committee of whole, to-morrow, on Despatch on Emigration.

Resolved — That this House will, on to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into consideration that part of the Message of His Excellency the Governor General, transmitted to this House on the 14th of July last, which relates to the despatch of Lord John Russell, on the subject of Emigration, and the raising of a Fund to defray the expenses of providing Medical attendance for sick Emigrants, and of enabling indigent persons of that description to reach their place of destination, and providing for their support until they can procure employment.

Mr. Harrison said the bill was to enable them to take advantage of the offer of the Imperial Parliament, which was to expend £8000 per annum, on emigration to Canada, providing a bill passed the Colonial Legislature on the subject.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Merritt hoped that when the subject came before the house in committee of the whole to-morrow, the government would be prepared to explain the views it entertained with respects to emigrants. It deserved the most serious consideration, being a channel through which large sums have been expended by the colony.<sup>6</sup>

Committee on Currency & Banking present 3rd. report, with Bill to amend Usury Laws, Report.

Mr. Hincks, from the select Committee on Currency and Banking, with power to report from time to time, by Bill or otherwise, presented to the House the third report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

"Your Committee having taken up, as part of the subject referred to them, the consideration of the Laws for the prevention of usury, they have come to the conclusion, that these Laws are in many cases productive of results contrary to the object for which they were enacted, by either preventing money from being obtained by those to whom it is most important to obtain it, or obliging them to have recourse to persons who demand an exorbitant rate of interest for the risk they run in violating the Law. The want of Capital in this Province, and the many advantageous modes in which money can be invested in it, so as to afford a profit far exceeding the legal rate of interest, — the fact that the rate of interest allowed by Law in the neighbouring states, is higher than that allowed to be taken in this Province, and the circumstance of the Legislature itself having, in a portion of the Province, virtually repealed the usury Laws in certain cases, by allowing money to be borrowed for Public improvements at any rate of interest, having had their weight with the Committee : — nor have they been unmindful of the alleged immoral tendency of the said Laws, in holding out temptation to one of the parties to break the engagement he contracts. The majority of the Committee have not, however, been willing to go further than to repeal the said Laws in as far as relates to Mercantile transactions of a certain description ; for carrying into effect what they believe to be an amendment of the Law to this extent, they have prepared a Bill, which they beg leave to submit to the consideration of Your Honourable House."

Bill to amend the Usury laws brought in.

Mr. Hincks then presented to the House a Bill, to exempt certain mercantile transactions from the operation of the Laws for the prevention of usury, which was received, and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time on Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Neilson, seconded by Mr. Dunscomb.

House in Committee on Message from Legislative Council with Address to His Excellency on Petitions on Timber Duties.

Resolved — That the Message from the Legislative Council of the 12th instant, accompanied by an Address to His Excellency, the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to transmit the Petitions of both Houses to Her Majesty, and the two Houses of the Imperial Parliament, on the subject of the Timber duties, be now taken into consideration.

The House proceeded accordingly to take the said Message and Address into consideration,

And the same were severally read.

Resolution concurring in the address.

Resolved — That this House doth concur with the Legislative Council in the Address to His Excellency the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to transmit the joint Petitions of both Houses to Her Majesty, and the two Houses of the Imperial Parliament, on the subject of the Timber duties.

Resolved — That Mr. Speaker do sign the said Address, on behalf of this House, and that it be returned to the Legislative Council.

Resolved — That the preceding Resolution be communicated, by Message, to the Legislative Council.

Ordered — That Mr. Neilson do carry the said message to the Legislative Council.

Bill to compel Candidates at Elections to declare their qualifications, brought in.

Ordered — That Mr. Morris, have leave to bring in a Bill to compel all candidates, at any future elections for Members of the Legislative Assembly, to make and subscribe detailed declarations of the property by them possessed, and under which they qualify.

He accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received, and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time, on Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Black seconded by Mr. Thorburn.

Resolved — That this House will, on Wednesday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, on the Ordinance of the Legislature of Lower Canada, passed in the 4th year of Her Majesty's Reign intituled "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of certain Roads in the neighbourhood of, and leading to, the City of Quebec, and to raise a fund for that purpose," with a view to ascertain how far it is expedient to extend the provisions of the said Ordinance to a certain Road on the North side of the River St. Charles.

Ordered — That the Petition of James Black, and others, of Quebec presented to the House on the 12th instant, be referred to the said Committee.

On motion of Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Small.

Ordered — That the amendment made by the Legislative Council, to the Bill intituled "An Act to enable Religious Societies of all denominations of Christians to hold the lands requisite for certain purposes therein mentioned," be now taken into consideration.

The House proceeded accordingly to take the said amendments into consideration. — And the said amendments were read as followeth : —

IN THE TITLE :

Line 1. — After "to" expunge the remainder of the Title, and insert "provide for the relief of certain Religious Societies."

(369)

IN THE BILL :

Line 1. — After "Whereas," expunge the remainder of the Bill, and insert "by an Act of the Parliament of that part of the Province of Canada, heretofore called Upper Canada, passed in the ninth year of the Reign of His late Majesty King GEORGE the Fourth, intituled, "An Act for the relief of Religious Societies therein mentioned," after reciting that Religious Societies of various denominations of Christians found difficulty in securing the Titles of Land requisite for the site of a Church, Meeting House, or Chapel, or burying ground, for want of a corporate capacity to take and hold the same in perpetual succession ; and that it was expedient to provide some safe and adequate relief in such cases, — It was enacted, that whenever any Religious Congrega-

House to go into Committee of whole on Wednesday, on Ordinance respecting Quebec roads.

Subject of remunerating the Speaker referred to contingent Committee.

On motion of Mr. Henry Smith, seconded by Mr. Black,
Ordered — That the subject of the remuneration to the Speaker of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, be referred to the Special Committee on the contingent accounts and expenses of the present Session, with Instructions to inquire into and report to this House on that subject.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Hincks opposed this, considering that it should be brought before a committee of the whole house.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Harrison said the case was an uncommon one, the Speaker had received his salary during the four years of the Parliament's duration, (he was also understood to say that an additional sum more had been voted to him), the Parliament had died a natural death, consequently the Speaker together with its members expired with it, leaving a blank between that period, and the birth of the present parliament, by virtue of the Union Act.<sup>9</sup>

Messrs. Thorburn and Dunn supported it....<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Johnston trusted that the country possessed liberality enough to reward the gallant Knight ((Sir Allan MacNab)) as he deserved.<sup>11</sup>

House in Committee on remunerating witnesses.

On motion of Mr. Thorburn, seconded by Mr. Johnston.
Resolved — That the House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into consideration the propriety and expediency of paying or remunerating individuals; that may be called upon under and by authority of the House to give evidence.

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Johnston reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth:—

Resolved — That it is expedient that no payment or remuneration be made or allowed to any person, who may give evidence under or by authority of the House of Assembly, unless the same be reported upon from the Committee on the contingent accounts and expenses of the present Session, and such reports be agreed to by the House.

Amendments of Committee of whole to U. C. District Council, Bill reported.

Mr. Cook, from the Committee of the whole House, on the Bill to provide for the better internal Government of that part of the Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the establishment of local or Municipal authorities therein, and on the instruction given to the said Committee, reported according to order, the amendments made by the Committee to the said Bill, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's Table.

Motion that question of concurrence be put thereon.

The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, seconded by Mr. Solicitor General Day,

That the question of concurrence be now separately put upon the said amendments.

Motion to postpone the same 'till to-morrow.

Mr. Aylwin, moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin.

That the consideration of the said motion be postponed until to-morrow, and that it be then the first order of the day.

Mr. Aylwin moved the postponement of the municipal bill till to-morrow saying that he was preparing that kind of moderate opposition, so much more calculated to be effective than that which was characterized throughout by heat and zeal.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Price made some remarks stating that he had been sick, and consequently obliged to leave the house last night at 11 o'clock, when the bill was in committee. His determination, he said, was to oppose every clause "clause by clause," and treat the house to as many speeches as he could muster.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Hincks said, were they to have a second discussion upon every clause seriatim. (Yes, yes.) He could not understand the conduct of some honourable members — the third reading of the bill was the proper time for their opposition, let them defer it till then if they could contain their spleen so long!<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Harrison ... insisted upon the question of concurrence being put on the clauses of the bill, and carried his point...<sup>15</sup>

Chapters 3 and 4, which relate to the extent of the Districts, and to the nomination of Wardens and Officers by the Governor, ought to be amended, with a view to confine the Districts to the respective limits of the Counties; and making the several Wardens and Officers elective by the People, so as to leave the Municipal authorities to be established in each District, the management of their own local affairs, without any undue interference, and consonant to the spirit of such bodies.

"2nd.—That the majority of the Wardens appointed under the last mentioned Ordinance, in the late Province of Lower Canada, do not possess the confidence of the Country, and that their nomination, coupled with the other provisions of the said Ordinances, will have tended only to discourage the People, and make them averse to the free institutions which those Ordinances have pretended to confer.

"3d.—That the instructions given to the said Wardens have a tendency directly opposite to the avowed principles of the said Ordinances, and are of a nature to destroy the free action of the Municipal Councils, which the said Wardens and other Officers will have in their power to check, hinder, and control.

"4.—That a large number of the places appointed for holding the said Municipal Councils are inconvenient, and unjust to the majority of the population of the said Municipal Districts, and will tend to deprive them of the advantages of well regulated local institutions, and that the selection of those places will tend, in many instances, to forward partial or sectional views, and to render the said Councils entirely dependant upon the Wardens and other Officers appointed under Executive authority."

Mr. Harrison rose and proposed that the bill do now pass.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Baldwin moved, seconded by Mr. Price,

That the said Order of the day be discharged, and that the said Bill be read for the third time this day six months.

Motion to discharge
 the same.

The speech of the hon. gentleman ((Mr. Baldwin)) was a repetition of former disagreeable excrecences (sic) of the bill, which being retained in spite of his desire to remove them by a skilful operation of his own, determined him to oppose all and severally, both bill and clauses, — making at the same time, many allusions to the political hallucination of the member for Oxford, whom he described as exhibiting a new light on the subject. — <sup>3</sup>

Mr. Parke followed and gave a masterly exposure to Mr. Baldwin's inconsistent position.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Cartwright laboured to draw a broad line of distinction between himself and those with whom he found himself acting, in opposing the bill, and appealed to the house if he had factiously opposed government.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Buchanan replied. The house he thought could not fail to be amused, at the hon. and learned gentleman's anxiety, to have it supposed that he (Mr. Cartwright) and his friends were not and had never been in factious opposition; but if they really were in factious opposition, they were now in a no more odious nor less manly position than when as a government party, they had given factious opposition to every liberal measure. — Does not all the world know that the hon. and learned member gave a factious support to all the former oligarchical governments in Canada, to justify which, not ten members in this house would stand up, regarding which indeed the opinion of this house may be best gathered from the fact, that the whole stock in trade of the present Executive is, that it professes to be at antipodes with them in its principles. (Hear, hear.) It was only a mystification on the part of the hon. and learned member to say, that in a house of eighty-four members, the government got undue influence from having 16 office-holders in its pay, when he well knew that it has the opposition of 16 office seekers. (Hear.) It was asked, too, whether this bill were not a worse bill than that framed under the suggestions of Lord Durham. He (Mr. Buchanan) thought this came very ill from men who used to hold, that the fact of its emanating from Lord Durham, was sufficient objection of itself to any measure. The fact is, if Lord Durham could have supposed so bad a coalition against his plan of local self-government, he would have framed a worse bill, as what alone could pass this house. (Hear.) He (Mr. Buchanan) supported the establishment of district councils, because he could think of no other plan by which to secure for the population the advantages of local self-government, prosperity, and education, without which he did not believe that this country could long remain a colony. And with regard to the plan itself, or the details of the measure, he thought it no argument against them that he found the hon. and learned members from Lennox and Addington, and Hastings, giving them equally virulent opposition, on very different ostensible grounds — the one arguing against the measure as the introduction of democracy with universal suffrage and all its other attendant evils! — While the other opposed it as a measure of tyranny, as a fatal enlargement of the powers of the executive! (Hear, hear.) He (Mr. Buchanan) would not accuse these hon. and learned members of thus acting together from a common want of principle; but certainly they were not influenced by any common principle in the matter. (Hear.)<sup>6</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab then entered the lists. The gallant Knight's weapons were those which habit had rendered familiar, small talk and personality. Messrs. Hincks and Parke voting with the Attorney General Draper, he declared to be quite anomalous as his own fellowship with Messrs. Durand, Viger, and Turcotte, (simile, simili gaudet.) declared as a Conservative, he would oppose the bill, eulogised its advocates under the... appellation of destructives, and complimented the Town of Hamilton in case of his retiring into obscurity, with actually possessing some one or other capable of supplying his place with equal if not greater eclat.<sup>7</sup>

Capt. Steele ... said that he had cast his lot among the back woodsmen of Upper Canada, who were completely isolated. That under the old system they were merely hewers of wood and drawers of water, the magistrates seizing upon the funds and appropriating them as they thought fit. — That at the time of election, this substitution of municipal institutions for a debased and villainous system was made a stepping-stone to a seat in Parliament; and that the bill even as it stood, would be accepted as a boon by the people, in anticipation of happier days. That the Province of Upper Canada could not be put on a par with the Lower Province, which only a short time ago was openly arrayed against the government of the country. He expected by these institutions, there would be a great increase in the resources of the country, those who lived in the interior looking forward when it came into operation, for the privilege of having that voice in the management of their own affairs, which hitherto when it had been raised, had been productive only of the emptiness of its own echo.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Williams was opposed to giving to any body of men, however constituted, the power of unlimited taxation, in this case amounting to no less than 500 per cent. That by this law, the poor landholder, possessing only 100 dollars in land, would be taxed as highly as the possessor of £30,000 invested in the same kind of property.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Hincks. — When, Sir, I was first called upon to give a vote on the question now before the House, I stated that I did so under considerable embarrassment. I found myself compelled most reluctantly to vote in opposition to my hon. and learned friend from Hastings, with whom I have almost invariably had the satisfaction of acting since I had the honour of a seat in this House. — However, Sir, after listening attentively to this debate, and after participating in the discussion of the several clauses when in committee, I confess that I am now perfectly convinced that in giving my support to the Bill, I shall do my duty to my constituents and to my adopted country. I shall, Sir, endeavour very briefly to review the proceedings that have taken place relative to this measure. Before doing so, I may observe that I acknowledge myself to be a party man, and that I have ever been most anxious to act in concert with that political party to which I have been long and zealously attached. I may at the same time be permitted to observe, that no political party can be kept united for any length of time unless its members have such confidence in one another, that they can freely consult together as to the line of policy which they ought to adopt. When this bill was first brought under the consideration of the House, I felt it to be my duty to consult with those of my hon. friends with whom I usually act, as to the proper course which it would be advisable for us as a party to adopt. It appeared to us all that there were three courses to pursue — 1st. To discuss our bill on its own merits without any reference whatever to the Ordinance which was formerly passed in the Eastern section of the Province, — an Ordinance which I, Sir, disapprove of in some respects just as much as any of my hon. friends from Lower Canada; I freely admit, Sir, that such an Ordinance ought never to have been passed by the Special Council, and I was not backward at the proper time in expressing this opinion. But, Sir, it being now the law of the land, I conceive that it would have been much more expedient for the hon. members from the East to have assisted us in getting a better bill, in securing those amendments which we all concur in desiring, instead of fastening their Ordinance like an incubus on our bill. Such a policy would have been similar to that so successfully carried out by that illustrious statesman Mr. O'Connell, for whose talents and integrity the hon. member for Hastings has high a respect as what I have. That individual has never to my knowledge refused to support a good measure for England or Scotland because it was not given at the same time to Ireland. No, Sir, he has gone on the principle that he would always support a liberal measure for his fellow subjects elsewhere, and has then claimed the same measure of justice for himself. I admit, however, that the course to which I have alluded (that of taking up our bill on its own merits) could not have been done without the consent of the members from the East. I consider myself pledged to those hon. gentlemen that they shall have equal justice, and notwithstanding the taunts of the hon. and learned member that some of those so loud in their demands for "equal justice" have proved themselves backward in fulfilling their pledges, I feel that I can conscientiously say that every vote I have given in this House has been in accordance with that principle. I will go further, Sir; I will say that I have contended almost single handed in opposition to the policy adopted towards Lower Canada by the present administration. I have been accused of injuring the Reform cause, of sacrificing the interests of the Reformers of Upper Canada in order to sustain an impracticable party in Lower Canada. I have been censured by the great majority of my political friends for taking the course which I did on Lower Canada politics, and nothing Sir, supported me in those trying times but a consciousness that I was doing my duty. I confess, therefore, that I feel that such remarks are uncalled for and unmerited. But to revert to the subject before us. The 2d course open to us as a party was to take our bill on the same terms as the Ordinance. The 3d course was to endeavour to amend both measures, and by making the amendments to the Ordinance a part of our bill to let them stand or fall together. The 3d course was the one adopted by the hon'ble and learned member, but I am not in any way responsible for its being taken. I was never in any way consulted on the occasion, and the first intimation I had of the determination of the hon. gentlemen from the East was the notice given in the House by the hon. and learned member for Nicolet (Mr. Morin) that he would move to refer the Ordinance to the committee of the whole House on our bill. When, Sir, I found this step taken, although I thought it as I do still inexpedient, I felt it to be my duty in principle to give it my support, because I thought it right to shew that we would put both provinces on an equal footing if we were called upon by the Lower Canada members to do so. At the same time I saw that the necessary consequence must be that we would have to take a less liberal measure than we might otherwise have obtained. I know, Sir, that it has been said that I have been frightened by the threats of the hon'ble and learned Secretary for the West that he would withdraw the bill if any amendments were carried. I disclaim being influenced by any such threat. My own judgment told me, Sir, that to force a repeal of that Ordinance was impossible. You have not the power to effect that repeal and you know it full well — it is idle to conceal it. The government which carried that Ordinance only a few months ago would not amend it now when it is going into operation if they could possibly avoid it, and you have not a majority to force them to do so. There is besides another Branch of the Legislature. True, the hon. gentlemen opposite are answerable for the composition of that branch, but however we may censure the government for the selections that have been made, there is no present remedy. It is idle, Sir, to talk. Hon'ble gentlemen know full well that to repeal the Ordinance at present is impossible. By fastening our bill to that Ordinance, then, and declaring that both must be the same in the leading principles, I conceive that we placed ourselves in this position: we had to determine whether we would take the bill as it stands, or reject it altogether. Now, Sir, I confess that it is a matter of some surprise to me to hear the very extraordinary differences of opinion that have been expressed on this subject. In another part of this building, only a few minutes ago, I heard it pronounced a measure "liberal without a precedent." The hon'ble and gallant Knight from Hamilton, and the hon. and learned member for Lenox (sic) and Addington say that it is republican and democratic in principle, and that if it be adopted the people will have almost uncontrolled power. At the same time we are assured by the hon. & learned member for Hastings that it is "an abominable bill" — "a monstrous abortion" — that he views it with detestation. It is certainly not a little surprising that two parties so very opposite in their views on this very question should unite, and I cannot help observing that charges of coalition are quite as applicable to one side of the House as to the other. I shall now, Sir, revert as briefly as possible to the various objections to this bill, urged by the hon. and learned member for Hastings, both in his speech this evening and in his amendments. The first points are the election of officers and payment of wages to the members. I concur entirely with the views of the hon. and learned member on these points, but as our Bill was on the same footing as the ordinance, and as the amendments would necessarily have been fatal to the measure; I was compelled most reluctantly to oppose him. But, Sir, let us examine a little into facts. The hon. and learned member conceded the appointment of Treasurer to the Governor, and he also was willing to let the Warden be appointed for the first three years, after which he was to be elected by the Council. Now, Sir, if this appointment is so despotic, if it renders the bill such a "monstrous abortion," why have it for three years! The country would gain nothing for three years by the proposed amendments. — Now, Sir, I think that long before three years we shall be able to get an amendment to this bill that will entirely meet the wishes of the hon. & learned member as well as myself. Let it be marked well that in these respects no amendment was to take place for three years. The next point of the hon. and learned gentleman is the territorial divisions which in some Districts are too large. Granted. This however is an evil which we have it always in our power to remove. Every Session almost we are setting apart new Districts, and there can be no doubt that as our population increases the size of the Districts will be reduced. But surely the hon. and learned gentleman should recollect that this very objection applies with still greater force to juries. The people are now compelled to travel from the extremity of these large districts, four times a year to the Quarter Sessions and also to the Assizes. If therefore the distance is too great for municipal institutions it is also too great for the people to be compelled to attend the courts. The next objection is the power of the councils to borrow. The hon. and learned member would not permit them to raise money by loan on the security of toll or taxes, but merely to expend the taxes raised. I confess, sir, I was astonished to hear this objection, for I did not think such a principle would be supported by a single member on the floor of this House. Why, Mr Speaker, the hon. and learned member knows full well that the turn-pike roads in the neighborhood of Toronto, the benefit of which he has himself enjoyed, have all been made with borrowed money, and he must know how anxious the people are to obtain fresh loans to go on with these roads. When the macadamized roads were first commenced they were generally unpopular with the Farmers. Many said that they would never pay tolls, that they would destroy the gates before they would submit to such imposition; but no sooner did they experience the advantages of good roads than they urged the entire completion of the main lines of communication in the district. The next objection taken by the hon. and learned member is the system of assessment. His amendment however, only went to the extent of taxing wild lands according to their value. He agrees with me that all lands should be so taxed, and I believe there is hardly a dissenting voice in the House on the subject. The hon. and learned Secretary says that the government are in favour of a change in the system, but they will not be prepared with a measure on the subject till next Session. Now altho' I voted for this amendment of the hon. and learned gentleman, both in committee and in the house, I think his better course would be to introduce a separate bill to the assessment laws which I am assured would carry unanimously. I have now sir stated the objections of the hon. & learned member for Hastings to the bill, and which he conceives strong enough to justify him in rejecting it altogether. I cannot Sir concur with him in taking such a course. Much as I would desire to see many of those amendments carried into effect, I could not justify myself to my constituents in depriving them, on such grounds, of Municipal Institutions. I am content to let the people decide whether these objections are of sufficient importance to justify Reformers in joining with the hon. and gallant Knight from Hamilton in his attempt to postpone to an indefinite period, laying a foundation for Municipal Institutions, the superstructure of which will in a very short time be every thing that the people can desire, — at any rate if it be not it will be their own fault. I know Mr. Speaker, the deep responsibility I have taken on myself in adopting this course. I am well aware Sir, that already every species of slander & calumny has been resorted to, in order to destroy my public character. I have been held up in the public prints as having sold myself to the government. From political opponents I can expect nothing else but such attacks, but Sir, I confess I have been pained at the insinuations which have proceeded from other quarters. The allusions to "expectants of office," "government influence," I cannot, I ought not to affect to misunderstand. I shall leave the Reformers of Upper Canada to judge whether I have deceived them, and I have I think, some claims upon the sympathy of Reformers. My first connection with political life was at a very eventful period in the history of this colony, at a time Sir, when hardly a journal in this Province dared to stand forth in defence of the great principle which is now recognized as the only one on which our government should be administered. During a very dark period of our history I defended that principle and the party who supported it, and it was at a time when I had nothing to expect but incarceration in a dungeon as my reward. The difficulties and embarrassments to which a public journalist is exposed cannot readily be imagined by those who have not encountered them, and not the least of them is the odium to which a faithful advocate of popular rights is necessarily exposed. He is the mark for all the animosity of the hostile party. I have Sir at least endeavoured to discharge my arduous duty faithfully and conscientiously. I have never asked a favour from any Governor since I took up my residence in this Province, and no one knows better than the hon. and learned member for Hastings that when he was in place, and when there were prospects of our party having influence, I never stipulated for any personal reward. I was willing to give our party an independent support to the utmost of my ability. With regard to the people of Lower Canada, I feel that from them I certainly deserve better than that they should ascribe to me improper motives. I have fought their battles through good report and through evil report, and Sir it is with deep regret that I ever give a vote in opposition to them. I am not desirous, Mr. Speaker, of occupying the time of the House with remarks which have been in some degree of a personal character. I would not however have done justice to myself had I not availed myself of the present opportunity to repel the insinuations which have been made against my political integrity, and to assert that my vote in favour of that bill is as conscientious and independent as that of any hon. member on the floor of this House. It is dictated solely by a deep sense of the duty which I owe to my constituents and my country, and I know and feel that it will be appreciated by them.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Price followed the member for Oxford in a course of an opposite tendency, that gentleman's sentiments however being already before the public a repetition of them is unnecessary.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Aylwin then rose, contrasting municipal institutions in England with those of Canada. He said the reformers had denounced the magistracy as the very extreme of corruption, and now when they had an opportunity of introducing a better system, they sacrificed it in support of a measure so defective as the present one. In England he said the municipal corporations appointed every officer down to the door-keeper, why not then if this was to be a liberal measure, concede the same. This same system he affirmed might be productive of a state of things, that had led to the separation of America from the Mother country; should events of a similar nature occur again, no one would more seriously deplore it than himself — he had been reared under the protection of the British Flag, and was desirous that it should ever wave over the country which gave him birth — his opposition to this measure was therefore in accordance with such wishes, and to prevent the precipitancy of a crisis, which no one would more seriously regret than himself, nor any one use greater exertion to ward off.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Baldwin repeated his former objections and addressing himself with much feeling to the member for Oxford, said that he was truly sensible of the value of his services, in the cause of reform, for which, the country was indebted to him. He denied he had ever for one moment intended to inflict pain upon him by any personal reflections, — said that their services to each other had been mutual and in an impressive tone declared that should the good feeling that had hitherto subsisted between them decline, and lead to a political separation, he should ever regret it as one of the most painful circumstances that could have befallen him.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Merritt spoke next in opposition to the bill.<sup>14</sup> lization of Aliens.

And also a Return to an Address to His Excellency the Governor General, of the 13th instant, on the subject of the naturalization of Aliens.

Return.

RETURN

To an Address from the House of Assembly to His Excellency the Governor General, dated 13th August, 1841, praying for "copies of all "despatches from Her Majesty's Government to the Executive of this "Province, on the subject of the naturalization of Aliens; and also "those which may have been addressed by the Provincial Government "to the Colonial Secretary, on the same subject, and all other documents "relative thereto."

NIL.

N. B. A Despatch was, however, received by the Governor General of British North America, while in Lower Canada, and before the Union of the Provinces, from the enclosure to which an extract is subjoined, as well as from a despatch in reply, having reference to conferring privileges prospectively, as an inducement to Americans to settle.

THOS. C. MURDOCH.

Kingston, 20th August, 1841.

Extract from enclosure in Despatch from Lord J. Russell on granting land to Americans.

Extract from a letter from the Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners, to the Colonial Department, dated 4th August, 1840, and enclosed in a despatch from Lord John Russell to the Governor General, dated 8th September, 1840, No. 221 :

"As connected with the subject, we may mention that a great proportion of these occupants are said to be natives of the United States, and consequently incapable of acquiring property in Land. But of their superior skill and industry in clearing the ground they occupy, there can be no doubt. In fact it is not to be supposed that any class of persons coming from an old country, can equal their knowledge, courage, and endurance, in contending with, and overcoming the passive resistance of the wilderness. It seems obviously desirable that so useful a description of settlers should be enabled to acquire a title to Land themselves; and we therefore hope that the Legislature in Canada, as we believe has been the case in the Upper Province, will afford facilities to the naturalization of well conducted and resident foreigners, who may be desirous of acquiring a recognized property in Land."

"We recommend that facilities should be afforded to resident and well conducted Foreigners, to acquire a valid title to landed property."

Extract from a despatch from the Governor General to the Right Honourable Lord John Russell, dated Montreal, 12th October, 1840, No. 179.

Extract from Despatch from His Excellency to Lord J. Russell on encouraging settlers from the United States.

The encouragement of settlers from the United States, by any direct alteration of the existing Law, I should deprecate at the present moment. Practically, there is, I believe, no difficulty in their acquiring land, but I do not think it would be advantageous to confer on them, as a right, what they now enjoy only on the sufferance of the British Government.

With every respect for their energy and intelligence, and fully admitting that as the pioneers of civilization they are superior to every other people, I do not think it would be wise, by any general measure, to invite their settlement in large numbers in the more populous portions of Canada. There is a spirit of propagandism among American citizens, which makes it necessary to observe great caution in this matter. At the same time, I think that, in individual cases, their claims to be admitted to the rights of British subjects, on certain conditions, should be considered in the most liberal spirit; and I am happy to believe that for several years past, this spirit has prevailed in both Provinces."

Message from His Excellency.

The Honourable S. B. Harrison, one of Her Majesty's Executive Council, delivered to Mr. Speaker two Messages from His Excellency the Governor General, signed by His Excellency.

And the said Messages were read by Mr. Speaker, all the members of the House being uncovered, and are as followeth:—

SYDENHAM,

Message with copy of Instructions to His Excellency.

In answer to two Addresses of the 10th August, the Governor General informs the House of Assembly, that Her Majesty's Government having deemed it expedient to make public the "Instructions", with which he was honoured on assuming the Government of Her Majesty's possessions in British North America, he has great pleasure in laying them before the House of Assembly. There are no communications to Sir George Arthur answering the description of "Instructions," the directions of Her Majesty's Government, having been conveyed in the usual way in despatches, bearing on different subjects, as occasion required.

Government House, }
Kingston, 19th August, 1841. }

No. 1.

Downing Street, 7th September, 1839.

SIR,

Despatch conveying to His Excellency Her Majesty's Instructions on his assumption of the Government of Br. N. America.

The Queen having been pleased to confide to you the Government of the British Provinces in North America, I now transmit to you the various commissions, under the Great Seal, which authorize you to assume and execute that office. The intimate knowledge, which, as one of Her Majesty's confidential advisers, you have acquired, of the progress of Canadian affairs during the last few years, and of the views of Her Majesty's Government on that subject, relieves me from the necessity of entering on various explanations, which it would otherwise have been my duty to afford you. But it is fit that I should, on the present occasion, record for your guidance the intentions of the Ministers of the Crown, on the principal topics of Canadian policy, on which you will be called, as the Governor of those Provinces, to co-operate with them.

Despatch conveying to His Excellency Her Majesty's Instructions on his assumption of Government of Br. N. America.

The Bill introduced into the House of Commons during the present Session of Parliament, embodied, as you are aware, the results of deliberate reflection on the various suggestions contained in the Reports of the Earl of Durham. The hope of passing that measure into a law, before the Parliamentary recess, was defeated by various circumstances which occurred, and especially by the intelligence, which, in the commencement of the month of June, reached us, from the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada, of the state of public opinion in that Colony, as expressed by the Resolutions of the Council and Assembly. We have never concealed from ourselves, that the success of any plan for the settlement of Canadian affairs, must depend on the concurrence and support of the Provinces themselves. To learn their deliberate wishes, and to obtain their co-operation, by frank and unreserved personal intercourse, will, therefore, be the first and most important of the duties which you will be called upon to perform.

In our anxiety thus to consult, and as far as may be possible, to defer to public opinion in the Canadas, on the subject of Constitutional changes, Her Majesty's Government must be understood as entertaining a very strong conviction in favor of the Policy of the measure, which they have proposed for the adoption of Parliament, attaching minor importance to the subordinate details of that Bill, we have found no sufficient reason for distrusting the principles on which it proceeds. These are, — a Legislative Union of the two Provinces — a just regard to the claims of either Province in adjusting the terms of that Union — the maintenance of the three Estates of the Provincial Legislature — the settlement of a permanent Civil List for securing the independence of the Judges, and to the Executive Government, that freedom of action which is necessary for the Public good, — and the establishment of a system of Local Government, by representative Bodies, freely elected, in the various Cities and Rural Districts. From any of these principles, Her Majesty's Government would be most reluctant to recede. After a full investigation of every other plan which has been suggested, they have not been able to discern, in any but this, the reasonable hope of a satisfactory settlement. It will therefore be your first duty to endeavour to obtain for that measure, such an assent in its general principles, and such a correction of its details, as may render it acceptable to the Provinces, and productive of permanent advantage. There are various modes by which this object may be accomplished, and in giving an outline of them Her Majesty has commanded to me to express to you Her reliance upon your judgment, to be formed upon the spot, as to the employment of such as may be most conducive to the contentment and advantage of Her Canadian subjects.

1. You may appoint, by authority of the Executive, a certain number of persons of weight and experience, selected from each Province, to frame articles of Union, to be afterwards proposed to the Legislature of Upper Canada.

2. You may assemble the Legislature of Upper Canada, and propose to them the appointment of a certain number of Commissioners, to confer with others named by the Special Council of Lower Canada.

3. If you find that your overtures to the Assembly of Upper Canada, are not met in a fair, conciliatory, and reasonable spirit, you may proceed to dissolve the present Assembly, and appeal to the sense of the inhabitants of the Province. But in the late unsettled state of the Province, in the presence of repressed disaffection, with the necessity of a second dissolution before the Assembly of the United Province can meet, — this step must not be resorted to without the gravest deliberation.

In whatever method you may proceed, Her Majesty's Government will expect to receive from you, founded on competent authority, such a plan of representation, with a division into Cities and Districts, as may enable them to lay the scheme before Parliament, with confidence in the data on which it has been framed, and in the justice of the general arrangement.

I will not now argue on a further supposition, viz : that from difficulty of detail, or mutual disinclination, the plan of Union may be found altogether impracticable, should you find, after all your efforts that such is the result, you will lose no time in communicating to me, for Her Majesty's information, the grounds of your opinion, and the nature of any alternative which may seem to you more conducive to the general good.

But above all things, it is important to avoid unnecessary delay. The discussion which has already been protracted at the expense of so much evil, and still greater hazard to the interests of the Canadian Provinces, and of this Kingdom, cannot be too speedily brought to a close Her Majesty's Government will therefore anxiously await the result of your enquires (sic) as to the state of public opinion in the Canadas, respecting the proposed Union, and the terms on which, in your opinion, it should be effected. I earnestly trust that it may be received in this Country by a period sufficiently early to enable us to communicate it to Parliament at the commencement, or soon after the commencement, of the Session of 1840, and then to proceed at once with such measures as may be required to meet the exigencies of the case.

The intelligence which has reached me from Upper Canada, makes it probable that you may be called upon for some explanation of the views of the Ministers of the Crown, on a question, respecting which the Bill, to which I referred is necessarily silent. I allude to the nature and extent of the control, which the popular Branch of the United Legislature will be admitted to exercise, over the conduct of the Executive Government ; and the continuance in the public service of its principal Officers. But it is evidently impossible to reduce into the form of a positive enactment, a constitutional principle of this nature. The importance of maintaining the utmost possible harmony, between the policy of the Legislature, and of the Executive Government, admits of no question ; and it will, of course, be your anxious endeavour, to call to your Counsels, and to employ in the public service, those persons who, by their position and character, have obtained the general confidence and esteem of the inhabitants of the Province.

The military defence of the Canadas is another subject of common interest to both Provinces, on which it is necessary that you should be apprized of the views of Her Majesty's Government. In the correspondence between Lord Glenelg and Sir John Colborne, and especially in the despatches of the latter, you will find a full discussion of the plans which have been devised for that purpose. Amongst them is a scheme for extended fortifications, to be erected and maintained at an expense, which it is not evident will be compensated by any equivalent advantage.

For the present, at least, notwithstanding the deference so justly due to the opinions of that distinguished Officer, the Ministers of the Crown cannot recommend the adoption of this scheme. On the other hand, the plan suggested from this Country, and sanctioned by Sir John Colborne, of creating Military Settlements on the Frontier, on the principle of veteran Battalions, appears, to the Ministers of the Crown, as at once the most effective, and the most economical plan of defence, which could be pursued. Measures will be taken, with the least possible delay, for carrying it into effect ; and, in the mean time, you will discourage and prevent, as far as may be compatible with the public safety, either the augmentation, or the continuance on foot of the volunteers, of the sedentary (sic) corps which were embodied during the last winter, as a reinforcement to the regular army. On all subjects of this nature, however, you will consult Sir Richard Jackson, whose judgment and military knowledge will be of the greatest service to you.

The only topic which it remains to notice, as affecting the two Canadian Provinces, as alike, is that of raising an emigration fund from the proceeds of the sales of the Crown lands. Unfortunately the very elaborate Report communicated to me by Lord Durham on this subject, serves but to confirm, and to place in a still clearer light, the difficulties by which, as we were previously aware, the promotion of this most important object is obstructed. Such is the extent of land alienated, and so inconsiderable the proportion which still remains vested in the Crown, that the hope of rendering any effectual aid to emigration by the sale of such lands, cannot, at present, be reasonably entertained. The necessary preliminary to the introduction of any such system, would be the resumption of the large tracts of land held by grantees in a barren and unprofitable state. This could be effected only by the imposition of a tax on uncleared land, and by enactments for the collection of that Tax, to ensure the due execution of the law. In the Lower Province there exists, at the present time, no authority by which such a tax could be imposed. In the Upper Province, it is hardly to be expected, that in the present state of affairs, the difficulties which encompass the subject will be effectually overcome. Amongst the benefits to be anticipated from the Union of the Provinces, it is not the least important, that the United Legislature would be able to act, upon subjects of this nature, with a great comparative freedom from the undue bias of local interests, and with a large view to the permanent improvement of the Provinces.

Such being the principal subjects of common interest to the two Provinces, to which your attention will be immediately called, I have next to notice those which will relate exclusively to the Province of Lower Canada.

The act which has been passed in the last Session of Parliament, in amendment of the act of the first year of Her Majesty's Reign, providing for the temporary administration of the Government of Lower Canada, will relieve you and the Special Council from many of the impediments by which your immediate Predecessor has been encountered, in the attempt to promote the internal interests of the Province. Sir John Colborne's dispatches, and especially that of the 15th March, 1839, have pointed out very clearly many objects of great public utility, which he was unable to advance, in consequence of the restrictions under which the Legislative powers confided to him, and to the Special Council, were exercised. To these your attention will, of course, be given. Much as the suspension of Constitutional Government in Lower Canada is to be regretted, it will not be without a very considerable compensation, if, during the interval, arrangements should be maturely and wisely made, for securing to the people at large the benefit of those social institutions, from which, in former times the thoughts of the local Legislature were diverted, by the controversies which then agitated the Provincial society.

The establishment of Municipal Institutions, for the management of all local affairs, will be among the most important of the subjects to which your attention will be called. On this subject, I would refer you to the Report of the Earl of Durham, and the Appendix, marked C., by which it is accompanied. Although the Commissioners whom His Lordship appointed to investigate the question, were unable, from the shortness of the time, to submit to him any conclusive recommendations respecting it, the information which they collected, will prove of much advantage to you. On the importance of such Institutions, I need not enlarge: your acquaintance with the system of Municipal Government in this Country, will point out to you that there is no mode in which local affairs can be so properly administered, and that they form, at the same time, the most appropriate and effectual means, of training the great body of the people to the higher branches of Legislation.

The promotion of education among all classes of the people, will also engage your earnest attention. On this subject, I can add nothing to the information afforded by the Reports of the Earl of Gosford, and his colleagues, and of the Earl of Durham. It will afford Her Majesty's Government the most sincere satisfaction, to co-operate with you, in any measures which you may adopt, for the furtherance of this important object.

In any view which can now be taken of the affairs of British North America, it is obvious that those of Upper Canada must occupy a very prominent place. I am persuaded that the zeal for the public good, and the superiority to considerations of a nature merely personal, by which the present Lieutenant Governor has been distinguished during his long career of public service, will obviate the risk of any dissatisfaction being entertained by him, if you should find it necessary, for a time, to assume, in person, the administration of the Government of Upper Canada, and during that period to supersede him in the discharge of his functions. In the prosecution, therefore, of your endeavour to obtain as much agreement as possible, in the plan to be hereafter submitted to the Imperial Parliament, you will not hesitate to repair to Toronto. When there, you will, of course, avail yourself of the experience which Sir George Arthur has acquired, and of the assistance which he will have both the ability and the disposition to afford you.

The first topic which will engage your attention in Upper Canada is the present financial state of the Province. This has been most elaborately explained in the Lieutenant Governor's recent despatches. Embarrassing as the immediate state of the question is, it is yet gratifying to learn from those communications, that the difficulties in which the Provincial Treasury is involved, originate in causes which do not affect the wealth, or the ultimate resources of the Province. Having undertaken great internal improvements, especially those of the Welland and Rideau Canals, with inadequate resources, the works have been very imperfectly completed, and the Returns are absorbed in a succession of repairs, which would not have been required if the Canals had been originally formed with a greater command of Capital. These works having also been effected by borrowed money, the loans have been raised at a higher rate of interest than would have been required, if the credit of the Province had not been diminished by the absorption of its Revenue in such undertakings. Further, it appears that the Provincial Treasury might have been recruited, with no perceptible addition to the public burthens, if it had been possible to increase, to a moderate extent, the duties of import on goods introduced for consumption. But under the combined influence of these causes, the expenditure has, at length, far exceeded the receipt; and some measure for re-instating the Provincial Treasury in a secure condition, have become indispensable.

Her Majesty's Government willingly acknowledge the great advantage which will arise from extending to Upper Canada such aid as the Revenue of Great Britain could afford, consistently with a due regard to the interest of this Kingdom, and of the other members of the Empire at large. This is, however, a subject for distinct consideration. For the present, I shall confine my attention to the remedial measures adopted by the local Legislature in their last Session.

Of these, the first was the raising a loan by Government Debentures, which was sanctioned by a Bill intituled "An Act to afford further facilities to negotiate Debentures for the completion of certain works."

This Bill was reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, and has been confirmed by the Queen in Council.

The second financial measure of the year, was the enactment of a Bill authorizing the issue of Treasury Notes, to the amount of £250,000 sterling, for £1 each. This Bill has also been reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure. I regret to state, that Her Majesty cannot be advised to confirm it. The issue of such an amount of small inconvertible paper money, as a resource for sustaining the Public Credit, is not to be justified, even by the present exigency of Public affairs. The effect of the measure on the currency and monetary transactions of Upper Canada, and on the value of private property throughout the Province, must be such, as to counterbalance any advantage which could be obtained from this temporary relief. If the credit of the country can be made available to sustain, for a time, the transactions of the local Treasury, in a less hazardous and objectionable form, you will accede to any plan of that nature. It is only as a temporary expedient that any such recourse will be requisite; and it is of great importance to the future welfare, of the Province, that the scheme devised to meet the pressure of the passing day, should not be such as to preclude the early return to a more salutary course of financial operations.

A third measure, of the same general character, has been adopted by the local Legislature, to provide for the indemnity of the sufferers by hostile incursions from the United States. The Bill for this purpose, intituled "An Act to ascertain and provide for the payment of all just claims arising from the late Rebellion and Invasions of this Province," has also been reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure. I fear that Her Majesty's Assent to this Bill, in its present form, cannot be given. The objection is not to the measure itself, in the propriety of which Her Majesty's Government entirely concur. But we think (sic) it impossible to advise the Queen to assent to an Act, which, if so sanctioned, would, by the terms of the preamble, convey a pledge from Her Majesty, that the charge of this indemnity, should be ultimately borne by the British Treasury. The principle involved in this declaration is of too much importance to be thus incidentally recognized, even supposing it to be right that it should be admitted at all. Neither could Her Majesty properly affirm, in so solemn a manner, Her acquiescence in this claim on the Revenue of this country, unless it had been previously sanctioned by Parliament — a sanction which has not been, and which could not hitherto have been obtained, if a similar Bill should be passed, with the omission of the preamble, you will readily concur in the enactment of it.

The Legislature of Upper Canada has also passed a Bill which has, in like manner, been reserved, for settling a civil list on Her Majesty, in exchange for the Crown Revenues of the Province. It is with sincere regret that I am compelled to announce, that this is also a measure from which, in its present form, the assent of the Crown must be withheld. — The effect of it is to exclude from the protection of the grant, the Clergy who at present derive their maintenance from the Crown Revenue, and of whom the great majority resorted to Upper Canada on the assurance that their stipends would be thus secured to them. Now as this charge has been lawfully fixed upon the Crown Revenue, and as the Crown has no other resource from which it could be paid, it is impossible to accept the proposed civil list on such terms. Anxious as Her Majesty's Government are to defer to the Representatives of the People of Upper Canada, in all matters connected with the internal Government of that Province, they cannot consent to a measure which would practically involve a violation of the pledged faith of the Crown. We cannot decline the obligation of maintaining the rights of the Clergy in question ; and I can only express my hope that the local Legislature may concur with the Ministers of the Crown as to the propriety of re-enacting this Bill, with the addition of the charge necessary for the maintenance of those rights. The burthen will cease with the lives of the present incumbents, and is now in the course of a progressive diminution.

The last of the reserved Bills of the late Session, has reference to the long controverted subject of the Clergy Reserves. To this Bill the Royal assent could not have lawfully been given, until it had been laid for thirty days before either House of Parliament. It was not until the 15th August that I received from the Lieutenant Governor the document necessary to enable me to fulfill the requisition of the Constitutional Act of 1791. It was therefore impossible that the Bill should be finally enacted by the Queen in Council, until after the commencement of the Parliamentary Session of 1840. But had this difficulty not arisen, there were other motives which would have effectually prevented the acceptance of this measure by Her Majesty. Parliament delegated to the local Legislature the right of appropriating the Clergy Reserves, and the effect of the Bill is to re-transfer this duty from the local Legislature to Parliament with a particular restriction. I am advised by the Law Officers of the Crown that this is an unconstitutional proceeding. It is certainly unusual and inconvenient. Her Majesty cannot assume that Parliament will accept this delegated office, and if it should not be so accepted, the confirmation of the Bill would be productive of serious prejudice, and of no substantial advantage. It would postpone indefinitely the settlement of a question, which it much concerns the welfare of the Provinces to bring to a close. Besides, I cannot admit that there exists, in this Country, greater facilities than in Upper Canada for the adjustment of this controversy. On the contrary, the Provincial Legislature will bring to the decision of it, an extent of accurate information as to the wants and general opinions of society in that Country, in which Parliament is unavoidably deficient. For all these reasons, Her Majesty will decline to give Her assent to this Bill.

I have thus adverted to the principal topics which will engage your attention, as Governor General of British North America, in reference to the two Canadas ; omitting many minor questions which will form the subject of future correspondence, and passing by, for the present, all that relates to the affairs of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island — I reserve these for consideration hereafter.

Finally, I am commended to direct, that in all the Provinces of British North America, you will inculcate upon the minds of the Queen's subjects, Her Majesty's fixed determination to maintain the connexion now subsisting (sic) between them and the United Kingdom ; and to exercise the high authority with which she has been invested by the favour of Divine Providence, for the promotion of their happiness, and the security of Her Dominions.

I have, &c.

(Signed) J. RUSSELL.

SYDENHAM,

Message from His Excellency on Public Improvements.

In pursuance of the declaration contained in his Speech from the Throne, the Governor General solicits the attention of the House of Assembly to the Public Improvements which it may be desirable to carry into effect within the Province, and to the means by which those works may be safely and successfully undertaken.

It has appeared to the Governor General of great importance that Parliament as well as the Executive should have distinctly brought before them, in one general plan, the whole of the different works which are demanded by the public voice, and appear likely to tend to the increase of trade and to the advantage of the Country. Such works as the Legislature shall decide upon adopting, may thus be conducted upon one uniform system, having reference as well to each particular work as to the whole, and great advantage will result both as regards their execution, and in making provision for the funds necessary for the undertaking.

The Governor General accordingly directed a Report to be prepared upon the subject by the President of the Board of Works, and that Department having now been established by Law for the whole Province, he transmits this document for the consideration of the House of Assembly.

This Report will be found to embrace all the great improvements which appear at all desirable for some time to come, or that afford promise of rendering a return for the Capital to be expended upon them. The completion of the Welland Canal — the opening the communication between Kingston and Montreal by the St. Lawrence for Schooners and Steamboats — the improvement of Lake St. Peter, and the navigation between Quebec and Montreal for Vessels of large burthen — opening the River Richelieu so as to perfect the navigation through that River by the Chambly Canal — the construction of Slides for Timber, and other works on the Ottawa — the improvement of the Inland waters of the Newcastle District — the construction of a Port and Light Houses in Lake Erie, and the improvement of Burlington Bay Harbour — the establishment or improvement of great lines of Road from Quebec to Amherstburgh and Port Sarnia, from Toronto to Lake Huron, and between Quebec and the Eastern Townships — and the improvement of the Metis Road, and of the communications near the Bay of Chaleurs.

The total cost of all these works thus enumerated, would involve an expenditure of about £1,470,000 Provincial Sterling, to be spread over a period of five years necessary for their completion.

Whether the whole or any part of these works shall be decided on by Parliament, it is clear, that in the present financial state of the Province, whatever is required for their construction must be provided by drawing on the Public credit.

The Statement of the Provincial Receipts and Expenditure submitted to Parliament, although exhibiting, after the payment of the charges for the Public Service, a considerable surplus in proportion to the Revenue, affords nothing from which, as Capital, the costs of works of any importance can be defrayed.

Parliament must therefore provide the means for raising the Capital required for the execution of these Public Works, which it may determine to adopt, and at the same time afford such security as may be necessary for the annual interest upon the money to be borrowed, as well as for the gradual extinction of the debt, until the works themselves become productive.

If the whole of the works specified in the Report are determined upon, the charge for interest upon the total sum required, calculated at the rate of interest usual in this Province, would be between £80,000 and £90,000, a charge which it would be difficult to impose at once upon the Country.

Means however exist, by which such an increase of the charge upon the Revenue of the Province may be materially reduced, whilst the Capital itself may notwithstanding be provided.

The reduction of the Interest of the Public Debt, through the assistance to be afforded by the Imperial Parliament, would probably reduce the present charges upon the Provincial Revenue by a sum of between £15,000 and £20,000 per annum, which will thus become available as security for any fresh Loan.

There will remain, after effecting this conversion, a surplus of from £250,000 to £300,000 still further to be raised under the Imperial guarantee at a low rate of interest, by which an additional saving will be effected of about £6,000 a-year.

A very considerable amount of the Capital required might be raised, without any charge whatever for interest, by the assumption by the Province of the issue of Paper payable on demand, which is now enjoyed by private Banks or by individuals, without their being subjected to any charge whatever in return for the power thus accorded to them by the State. If that power were resumed to the fullest extent, a Capital representing a Revenue of not less than £35,000 a-year might be provided. But even under such an arrangement as would afford great advantages to the various Banks at present issuing paper, as a compensation for their being in future deprived of that power, a Revenue of not less than £15,000 or £20,000 might be safely relied on.

The Union of the two Provinces has now placed within the control of the Parliament, the regulation of the Customs Duties which under the separate Legislatures was attended with so much difficulty, and a wise and prudent re-adjustment of some of these Duties will render the Revenue far more productive than at present, and easily furnish, without any injury to the trade of the Country or any pressure on the people, what may be further required to provide for the remaining charge.

There is also one of the works to which, although great importance is justly attached to it, it will, in the opinion of the Governor General, be just, as well as possible, to affix a condition by which the annual charge above submitted for the whole may be diminished. The navigation of the St. Lawrence involves the expenditure of nearly one half of the whole sum calculated on. That work is undoubtedly highly desirable, but it scarcely justifies so great an expenditure at present, unless some diminution of the annual charge for interest upon the sum to be raised can be obtained. Nor is such a diminution to be unhopd for. Many Capitalists in England are interested in the promotion of this work, and especially in seeing the communication between Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francis established on the Southern side of the River St. Lawrence. The Governor General has reason to expect, that assistance will be afforded upon this condition, and he would not therefore recommend that this undertaking should be sanctioned, unless, as a condition, the greater part of the Capital required for it can be raised at a low rate of interest, not much exceeding that which the Province would have to support for such part of its debt as will be guaranteed by England.

Entertaining these opinions, the Governor General has therefore directed measures to be submitted to the House of Assembly embodying them, which he recommends to their favorable consideration.

However large the expenditure may appear, to which the improvements recommended by the Board of Works will amount, the Governor General feels that it is his duty, looking to their vast importance, to submit them to the judgment of the Country, and a measure will therefore be presented to the House which comprises the whole of them.

If they are undertaken, it is no less the bounden duty of Parliament and of the Executive Government to take care that means sufficient for their completion are provided, and that the credit of the Province shall be sustained in any engagements which are rendered necessary for raising funds for that purpose. He has therefore directed that simultaneously with the proposal for the works themselves, measures should be submitted to the Assembly, for the conversion of the Debt, for the establishment of a Bank, and for the regulation of the Customs; and he desires to express his anxious wish to concur with the Assembly in whatever decision they may arrive at, by which objects of such importance to the welfare of the Province may be obtained, consistently with that due regard to the interests of the people, to Public credit, and to the maintenance of engagements, without which it would be alike unjust and impolitic to attempt to carry them into execution.

Kingston, 20th August, 1841.

For the documents accompanying the message relative to public improvements, See Appendix, (C. C.)

Sir A. MacNab spoke on the subject pointing out the advantages in case of defence, of having Burlington Bay Canal in a complete and efficient state, together with a planked road to Port Dover.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Harrison was willing to allow the importance of what had just been alluded to by the last speaker; but the works recommenced by Mr. Killaly in his official capacity and experience, were considered paramount to all others. The money to effect them must of necessity come from Great Britain unless some other means were distinctly visible, whereby the colony could furnish the funds from its own resources, (a thing not very probable) consequently those of minor consequence ought to succumb to them. If however the Parliament should recommend any others to be undertaken, the government would be happy as far as it possibly could, to carry them into effect. The road to Port Dover he knew from his acquaintance with that section of the country would be very advantageously put in a good state. The defences that were also alluded to in connexion with Lake Ontario, he was perfectly ready to concede the propriety of attending to, although he could not pretend to the military experience of some hon. and gallant members (hear). The hon. Secretary then moved, that the said documents be referred to a committee of the whole house on Tuesday next.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Cartwright trusted no feeling of local jealousy would exhibit itself on this occasion. The country he said resembled a vast body, all parts of which would be equally benefitted by the improvements referred to.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Merritt expressed himself dissatisfied with the exposition that had been given. Where was the revenue of £380,000 gone to, he asked, if nothing remained for public works? If the St. Lawrence was not specially provided for, he would introduce a bill expressly on the subject.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Hincks supported the motion. He would however suggest that on Tuesday, the ministers should be prepared to submit to the house, the state of the revenue and the finances of the colony, together with the expenditure.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Small moves that Mr. Quesnel be substituted for himself on Committee on Petition of P. Leppard.

Mr. Small moved, seconded by Mr. Harmanus Smith, that his name be expunged from the Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of Peter Leppard, of East Gwillimbury, Home District, and other references, and that Mr. Quesnel be added to the said Committee.<sup>7</sup>

The member for Hamilton ((Mr. MacNab)), ... opposed the motion ; substituting an amendment to the effect, that Mr. Small be continued on the committee ; the petition of the Mayor and Corporation of Toronto be discharged from the same, and ... proposed that a committee of five consisting of himself the Chairman ! Mr. Cartwright and some other gentlemen of the same ... principles, together with two other gentlemen, on the opposite side of politics be appointed solely and expressly to consider the prayer of the petitioners.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Small opposed this as highly improper. The grievances alleged against the mal-administration of justice in the Home District, he said had existed for years, and the petition ought, if justice was aimed at, to be referred to the committee as appointed.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Hincks was of opinion that it would have been much to the credit of the member for Hamilton, if the same decency which had actuated the member for the 3rd Riding for York, in asking the house to expunge his name, had been observed by him ; but to propose that he himself who was connected with one of the Corporation....<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Sherwood, ((called)) hear, hear.<sup>11</sup>

((Mr. Hincks continued, proposing that he himself who was connected with one of the Corporation)) should be the chairman of a committee named by himself....<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said the very principle now contended for had been already refused by the house, and he saw no reason now to rescind that refusal. He for his part would never consent to the nomination of any one to a committee who was deeply interested from party motives in the subject referred to it.<sup>13</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab ... withdrew his motion, then turning his back politely on the Speaker, he gave vent to his indignation against his opponents, for their presumption in attempting to mar his project ; and being called to order from the chair, replied courteously that he did not consider himself bound to turn his face in that direction, together with other remarks....<sup>14</sup>

Select Committee.

Mr. Black moved, seconded by Mr. Dunscumb, charged; and that the said Bill be again referred to a Committee of five members, to report thereon with all convenient speed, with power to the said Committee to render the said Bill conformable to the Resolution relative to the Inspection Laws, adopted by this House on the 5th instant.

Mr. Parke opposed the motion upon the grounds of any measurement to be established by law, with respect to Canadian timber, being an impediment to the trade.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Neilson was desirous that a trade so important to the colony should be as unincum-bered (sic) as possible, to enable it to stand a better competition in the Home market.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Black said that the member for Ottawa had contended that it was the wish of those connected with this branch of commerce, to have the timber measured at Quebec, which he (Mr. B.) considered would be an impediment instead of facilitating the trade. With respect to the bill that had been introduced into the house on this subject, the Board of Trade had complained of its provisions, he hoped therefore that a feeling of justice would so far prevail as to allow his motion to pass.<sup>3</sup>

(404)

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and the names being called for, they were taken down as followeth :

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed until to-morrow.

Dr. Dunlop said that nearly all the troubles of the late elections, his own among the number, arose out of not having a proper registry office. Some qualified by descent, some by marriage, others by a grant from the Crown, and a great many voted upon no qualification at all. — To remedy this the hon. member was of opinion, the only mode was by a secure method of registration.<sup>1</sup>

Select Com. to draft bill.

On motion of Mr. Small, seconded by Mr. Prince,
Resolved — That the Resolution of this House, on the subject of the Speaker's Salary be referred to a select Committee, with instructions to draft and report a Bill pursuant thereto, and that Mr. Dunscomb, and Mr. Cartwright, do compose the said Committee.

House goes into Com. of whole on Montreal roads bill.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Bill to amend the Ordinance of the Third VICTORIA, chapter thirty-one, for the improvement of the roads in the neighbourhood of, and leading to, the City of Montreal, being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee,

Mr. Durand, took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,

Bill reported amended.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Durand reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the report be received to-morrow,

House goes into Committee on Magdalen Islands Justice Bill.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide temporarily for the Administration of Justice in the Magdalen Islands, in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Roblin, took the chair of the Committee,

Mr. Black in his comments upon the measure, said, that before legislating on affairs so momentous, the house ought at least to be acquainted with the subject. But few he remarked, knew anything at all of these Islands, which were subject to the district of Quebec, in what position therefore was the house to come to a decision upon so injudicious an attempt to bolster up the administration of justice there. These petty judicial tribunals were denounced by him as pregnant with corruption, the remuneration being inadequate together with other reasons; and with respect to the particular locality under discussion he maintained, that the District of Gaspé, could embrace the administration of justice in the Magdalen Islands, both with economy and efficiency.<sup>8</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Several amendments.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Roblin, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same,

Ordered — That the report be received to-morrow.

Time and place for taking evidence in York contested election altered.

Mr. Hincks moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

That the time and place for the sitting of the Commissioners for taking evidence in the case of the controverted Election, for the second riding of the County of York, be altered, and that Monday next, be appointed for the sitting of the said Commissioners at the City of Toronto.

The reasons alleged in support of this motion by Messrs. Hincks, Baldwin, Small and others, was that Streetsville was the very spot where the riots had taken place, and that such was the lawless character of the people in that neighbourhood, that a letter had been received from the chairman of the commission, stating that he had received so many representations apprehending danger on the part of witnesses attending at Streetsville, that he considered it as pregnant with serious consequences, and a nullification of the commission, unless some other place should be substituted where the course of justice might be unobstructed.<sup>9</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was loud in opposition to this, Mr. Duggan belonging to the firm. The inhabitants of Streetsville, it would appear on the present occasion ... were the most peaceful creatures on earth....<sup>10</sup>

A long debate ensued on this motion which was resisted by Sir Allan MacNab, Mr. Duggan, Mr. Aylwin and Mr. Thorburn....<sup>11</sup>

((This motion)) was supported by Messrs. Baldwin, Small, Steele, Williams and Hincks.<sup>12</sup>

House goes into Committee on Public Lands sale Bill.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Bill for the disposal of public lands, being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
And the House having continued to sit till after twelve of the clock, on Tuesday morning.

((Tuesday, 24 August, 1841.))

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended.

And Mr. J. S. McDonald, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House.

The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Day,

Bill to be engrossed.

That the said Bill as amended, be engrossed.

About one ((o'clock)), a scene took place.... The clerk ((Mr. William Burns Lindsay)) was reading a paper in Mr. Harrison's hand writing which was not very legible, Mr. H. ((Harrison)) offered to read it which was readily acceded to by the Clerk, he was proceeding when Mr. Aylwin called Mr. H. to order, he sat down, but referred to the Speaker as to whether he was doing any thing disorderly, the Speaker ((Mr. Cuvillier)) said no and ordered him to proceed — which he did ; Mr. Aylwin again called him to order, the Speaker ((Mr. Cuvillier)) said he had decided that Mr. H. was in order and required Mr. A. to sit down. Mr. A. ((Aylwin)) refused so pertinaciously (sic) that the Speaker ((Mr. Cuvillier)) was obliged to say if he could not keep order without doing so he would call in the aid of the Sergeant at Arms. Mr. A. ((Aylwin)) replied in a most offensive tone and gesture — he might if he pleased, he did not regard it — he longed to be a martyr — he could not be a martyr for religion, and he would be glad to be one for liberty, and he did not care if he was imprisoned in the Kingston Gaol till Parliament was adjourned. Mr. Hincks moved that the offensive words be taken down, seconded by Captain Steele. — Mr. ——— (sic) moved that the House adjourn, seconded by Mr. Aylwin, when great confusion arose and strangers were ordered to withdraw. We understand that Mr. Viger approved of Mr. Aylwin's conduct and said the Speaker was to blame. Mr. Durand also supported Mr. Aylwin as indeed did several of that party.<sup>13</sup>

A Bill to amend the Law regulating the Election of Directors of the Grand River Navigation Company, was according to Order, read a second time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Thursday next.

House goes into Committee on Public Improvements.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency the Governor General, relative to Public Improvements, together with the documents accompanying the same, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Chesley took the chair of the Committee.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Secretary Harrison said he would not occupy the time of the House any further than submitting certain resolutions thereon, to be printed, and afterwards taken into consideration.<sup>2</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was anxious to know, of the Hon. Secretary, what would be the financial scheme to provide for the great outlay in contemplation.<sup>3</sup>

The hon. Secretary ((Mr. Harrison)) replied, that it was necessary to raise a sum to pay off the interest of £1,500,000, the Bank scheme alluded to, had been devised, which, if approved of, would enable the Government to dispense with imposing any additional duties in the way of customs. If, however, the amount estimated for the various improvements should be reduced, by the voice of Parliament being raised against such an outlay in the aggregate, a smaller sum would only be required, which, in the course of discussion when in committee, the House would decide upon, and legislate accordingly.<sup>4</sup>

The resolutions ((were)) laid on the table....

Resolutions introduced by the Hon. S.B. Harrison, for the Public Improvements of the country.

1. Resolved — That the following Public Works, in this province, should be undertaken and completed, under the superintendence of the Board of Works; and that sums severally mentioned, should be granted to Her Majesty, for that purpose — and that the Government of this province should be authorized to raise, on the credit of the consolidated revenue fund of Canada, the necessary sums of money.

Thence to Port Sarnia, .....	15,000

2. Resolved — That as soon as a loan of not less than £500,000 can be negotiated and obtained, by the Government of this province, from any private company or companies, at a reduced rate of interest, the improvement of the navigation of the river St. Lawrence should also be undertaken and completed.

3. Resolved — That with a view to redeem the interest on the existing public debt of Canada, it is desirable, that the sum of £1,500,000, Sterling money of Great Britain, should be raised, by loan, on the best terms that can be obtained, under the guarantee proposed and offered in the despatch of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated the third day of May last past; the proceeds of such loan to be applied, in the first place, to liquidate and pay off the public debt, and the surplus to be expended in the completion of the aforesaid public works.

4. Resolved. — That it is expedient to aid the revenue of this province, and to afford facility in obtaining of a portion of the money necessary to be raised for the foregoing works, by the issue of paper, in the name and on account of the province, payable on demand, so far as this can be effected, with a due regard to the public faith, and the interest of the province.

5. Resolved — That such further revenue as may be required to afford a security sufficient for borrowing the necessary sums, to complete the public works so to be undertaken, should be raised by an alteration of the duties of customs imposed on various articles imported into this province.<sup>5</sup>

Ordered — That the said Address be presented to His Excellency by such members of this House as are of the Honourable the Executive Council of this Province.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

After a long discussion about flags and banners the blanks of the bill were filled up, with various pecuniary amounts....<sup>7</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

The House adjourned accordingly.

Appendix. 24 August 1841.

((Question about Colonial Funds.))

In answer to a question put to Mr. Secretary Harrison relative to the funds of the colony, the hon. member ((Mr. Harrison)) said that he trusted after the present session, our securities would have a character equal to those of the mother country.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Dunn also observed that the Imperial act required that the proceeds of the Clergy Reserves sold in this country, should be invested in Great Britain, this did not result from any mistrust with respect to the Province; but as it was the case, it was deserving of consideration that on this account the Clergy of Canada, instead of being in the receipt of £8,000 per annum (sic), had a revenue only of £6,000, a defect which would continue until it was provided otherwise.<sup>9</sup>

((Notice of Proposed Motion.))

Col. Prince gave notice of a bill to establish a Court of Impeachment. The gallant Colonel observed that with respect to "responsibility," he was desirous that it should be of a different nature to that laid down by the member for Port Neuf, which appeared to be based exclusively on the ejection of those who occupied the treasury benches from office.<sup>10</sup>

And be it enacted, that the monies paid into the hands of the Receiver General by the Commissioner of Crown Lands, under the provisions of this Act, or by any other person or officer as the proceeds of sales of Crown Lands, whether before or after the passing of this Act, shall form a separate fund to be kept apart from other monies in the hands of the said Receiver General, and shall by him be invested from time to time in Provincial securities, or in the securities issued by the District Council of any Municipal District in this Province, according to the directions which he shall from time to time receive from the Governor, or Person administering the Government, which directions shall be so framed as always to give the preference, so far as may be possible to each Municipal District respectively, applying for any such investment, for the supposed net amount arising from the sale of lands in such District then in the hands of the Receiver General, and if any such securities shall be redeemed at any time, the principal sum shall form part of the separate fund aforesaid, and shall as occasion may offer be reinvested in the manner herein provided, and the interest only, arising from the monies forming the said separate fund, shall be applicable to the general uses of this Province, and all such interest shall be received by the said Receiver General, if accruing on any loan to any Municipal District, and credited by him to the account of the consolidated Revenue fund of the Province, if accruing upon any Provincial security, and shall in either case, be applied and accounted for as other public moneys in his hands; but the principal shall in all cases remain untouched as a separate fund to produce Revenue as aforesaid.

(B.)

And be it enacted that the per centage to be allowed, to the several District Agents, upon the amounts received by them under this Act, shall in no case exceed five per cent on the said amounts, any thing in the foregoing sections of this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.<sup>1</sup>

Dr. Dunlop observed (but could hardly be heard for the noise) that one of the essentials requisite in a paramount degree, in a country abounding in so much wild land as Canada, was, to have good roads cut to facilitate the occupation of it by emigrants. The amount of land agency, the hon. member remarked, depended entirely upon circumstances — those of various grades and professions employed by the Canada Company in this capacity realizing about 7½ per cent, amounting in some instances to £50 per annum, in others to £30. The land here he was of opinion ought not to be dearer than in the United States where it had a fixed price of 6s 3d per acre, affording in itself no inducement for British agriculturists to emigrate thither. The system adopted by many of encumbering themselves with an extent of acres, with a capital only equal to the first instalment, he had noticed operated most injuriously, the parties being frequently obliged, in order to meet the demands against them, to dispose of the whole, with the loss of their improvements. He was anxious to see a sounder system adopted, based upon the purchase of actual capital in hand.<sup>2</sup>

The hon. Secretary Mr. Harrison and Mr. Baldwin concurred in the principle of the amendment.<sup>3</sup>

Messrs. Neilson and Aylwin took the opposite side and were desirous of a postponement of the third reading of the bill, to give farther (sic) time for consideration.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Hincks supported his argument in favour of the rider by a statement of receipts and expenditure connected with land agency, not very flattering to those desirous of an existing state of things.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Attorney General Draper though inclined to support the principle of the amendment, would rather it should have been discussed with subjects closely connected with it, the bill being intended principally to regulate the sale of public lands not the disposal of the proceeds of them.<sup>6</sup>

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the negative.

JAMES FITZGIBBON,
Clerk Leg. Council.

Mr. Aylwin... remarked, that those who had been born, and passed a great portion of their lives in the States, were too generally imbued with principles adverse to British institutions; for that reason, he never could concur, in the privileges so widely and rashly granted by the bill, which threatened to inundate the country with renegades, and others, who were by no means calculated to advance its true interests, or amalgamate with the sympathies of its inhabitants.<sup>7</sup>

Motion to concur in the amendments.

And the said amendments being again read,
The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, seconded by Mr. Solicitor General Day, issues and profits of the said Seignory; and a statement of the expenditure of such moneys, with the authority under which such expenditure was made.<sup>8</sup>

Motion for House to go into Committee on Petition of Reverend W. Ryerson and others, for aid to U.C. Academy.

Mr. Boswell moved, seconded by Mr. Gilchrist,

That this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into consideration that part of the Petition of the Reverend Wm. Ryerson, and others, composing the Board of the Upper Canada Academy, which prays for "aid to the said Institution so as to maintain and extend its useful operations."

Mr. Neilson was of opinion that the Executive should take the initiative in such matters.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Harrison expressed his concurrence in such opinion, — but how could he restrain hon. members if they would exert the power themselves?<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was perfectly ready to acquiesce in the utility of the institution for which the grant was sought, but he did not consider the present time applicable to entertain the motion. In answer to a remark from Mr. Boswell, he said that he had invariably through the session raised his voice against any interference with the Executive, with respect to grants of money, a recommendation for which should emanate from that branch; he could not, however, rise on every occasion and repeat his sentiments.<sup>11</sup>

Messrs. Cameron and Roblin similarly observed that it had hitherto been the practice, to draw up resolutions expressive of the wants of the community, to be submitted to the government for acquiescence; if this course was to be impeded, (without any desire to clog the responsibility entailed up in the Executive,) how could it be known what was required, unless the Government possessed ubiquity and omniscience.<sup>12</sup>

The question having been put upon the said motion a division ensued, and the names being called for they were taken down as followeth:—

Engrossed amendments.

Attest,

JAMES FITZGIBBON,
Clerk Leg. Council.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Roblin opposed them ((amendments)) in toto as reducing a solemn compact to a mere matter of form.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Baldwin had a similar objection to them on the same principle, the sacredness of the obligation being thereby reduced to a common-place bargain.<sup>16</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab proposed to reject them and substitute the original bill passed by the House of Assembly, which they entirely subverted.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Small said they were merely to remove the religious scruples of those, who objected to the solemnization of marriage among them, by Protestants, Catholics and other religious denominations, holding different tenets from themselves.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Hincks expressed his great surprize at Mr. Roblin's opposing the amendments which he characterized as evincing a degree of liberality on the part of the Legislative Council, not hitherto evinced by that body during the session.<sup>19</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab... ((considered)) such liberality as any thing but complimentary to those strict moral principles which ought to be the rule of men aspiring to the name of statesmen.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Johnston was anxious to know what kind of men these were, whose consciences were so peculiarly tender, that scarcely any religious community would marry them? Were they as devoutly scrupulous on all occasions? The hon. member pronounced the object aimed at, as demoralizing, and subverting the elements of civilized society.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Small moved, seconded by Mr. Hincks,

That the said amendments be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Monday, the 6th of September next.

Amendments referred to Com. of whole on

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

Mr. Small moved, seconded by Mr. Price,

Mr. Johnston moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Thompson,

That the words "three hundred" be struck out of the said motion, and the words "one hundred and fifty" substituted.

The question having been put upon the motion of amendment, a division ensued, and it passed in the negative.

The question being then put on the main motion, a division also ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

Ordered — Accordingly.

Bill to amend Quebec Corporation Ordinance read 2nd time.

A Bill to amend certain Ordinances therein mentioned, relative to the incorporation of the City of Quebec, was, according to order, read a second time.

House in Committee on Savings Banks Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee, on the Bill to encourage the establishment of, and to regulate Savings Banks, in this Province, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Aylwin, took the chair of the Committee,

After a good deal of discussion on the part of Messrs. Holmes, Viger, and Dr. Dunlop, the 10th clause was amended, alluding to deposits (sic) to be invested in banks chartered or sanctioned by an act of the Provincial Legislature, the words "private banker" being struck out. In the 15th clause, the limit of amount of deposits was altered from £250 to £500. An additional clause was also added, limiting the operation of the act to ten years after the passing of it, to the end of the parliament in session at the expiration of that time.<sup>22</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Bill reported amended.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Aylwin, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered — That the said Bill, as amended, be engrossed.

Resolved — That in Order to secure the assistance of those best qualified to devise a wise, efficient, and comprehensive plan, for the

Attest,

JAMES FITZGIBBON,

And then he withdrew.

On motion of Mr. Morris, seconded by Mr. Roblin,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. D. McDonald took the chair of the Committee,<sup>2</sup>

In laying certain resolutions on the table connected with this important subject for the consideration of the house, the hon. Secretary Mr. Harrison commented upon the necessity of our being able to exhibit such a revenue as would afford a conviction of our being able to meet any engagements that we might enter into. What outlay it was expedient to incur would be decided by the house. If the St. Lawrence was to be included in the estimates that had been made, so much greater would be the necessity of establishing a Bank of Issue, which together with the additional revenue raised by increasing the custom duties, would enable the government to carry its intentions into effect. Among other expedients the hon. Secretary proposed an additional duty on salt, and 2½ per cent. on British manufactures.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Merritt contrasted the large public works that had been carried into effect in the States, and the great profit which they had yielded, in addition to the impetus and facilities given to trade with those undertaken by us which he affirmed had been impeded by Executive interference. The St. Lawrence Canal appeared to be regarded by the hon. member as deserving of consideration in preference to all others, and although enormous the amount required to render the navigation of that magnificent river effective, the tolls he affirmed would in a short period pay both debt and interest contracted by such an undertaking. In accordance with this and other views the hon. member then submitted for the consideration of the committee a series of resolutions to be discussed in conjunction with those that had been framed by the member for Kingston.<sup>4</sup>

1. Resolved, That the great Lakes of Canada, and the River St. Lawrence, form the natural outlet to the Ocean for the Countries situated on their waters, and afford great advantages for Commercial communications with distant Countries.

2. Resolved, That the improvement of these advantages by means of Canals sufficient to admit of a free and cheap Commercial communication throughout, is essential to the growth and prosperity of the Countries situated on the said waters, and will justify the necessary expenditure, and afford a reasonable prospect of an income sufficient to maintain the said communication and reimburse that expenditure.

3. Resolved, That according to the Estimate in the Report of the President of the Board of Works, it will require to complete the Canal from the

Longue Sault (sic) to Coteau du Lac, .....	£ 55,670
Thence to Lachine 67½ miles, .....	255,900
Making in all the sum of .....	£ 313,570

4. Resolved, That the completion of this Canal would confer the greatest advantages on the greatest number of the inhabitants of Canada, and would be mutually beneficial to all; and it is therefore the opinion (sic) of this House that a loan of £500,000 be authorised to be raised by Debentures payable in twenty years, and bearing an interest not exceeding five per cent per annum, payable half-yearly in London.

((5.)) Resolved, That for the purpose of securing the payment of the interest, and creating a sinking fund for the gradual liquidation of the principal, there be levied and collected on all Dry Goods imported within this Province, in addition to what is already imposed by Law, two and half per cent ad valorem.

6. Resolved, That so soon as the net income from the Toll collected on the Lachine and St. Lawrence Canals, meet the interest on the amount borrowed for their construction, and provides £10,000 per year, for the liquidation of the principal, the Duty shall cease, and the payment of interest and liquidation of the debt, shall thereafter be borne out of the income of the Canals only.

7. Resolved, That the Debentures issued from time to time, and the Loans negotiated for the construction of this work, shall be applied for no other purpose; and that a separate account of the receipts and expenditures of the same shall be laid before the Legislature within the first ten days after the opening of each successive Session.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Cameron rose and said, few gentlemen, (in fact I would say) no honorable member in this house has more respect for the talents or the perseverance of the honorable member for the North Riding of Lincoln than he (Mr. C.,) he had said before, and he would now repeat it, that that hon. gentleman deserved the lasting gratitude of the people of Upper Canada, for his foresight and perseverance in completing the Welland Canal, a work without which our western settlements would have not existed, but he (Mr. C.) was surprised at the course of the hon. gentleman on this occasion, instead of following the speech of the hon. introducer of these resolutions, and speaking to the whole measure, the gentleman with one of those Utopian views peculiar to himself and which he seems not well to have weighed, contradicts the statements of the member ((for)) Kingston, relative to the past mismanagement of our affairs, and iniquities of the former system of Upper Canada, he (Mr. Merritt) "being of opinion that the system was good until the Government in 1837 interfered and prevented the sale of debentures by the Commissioners for the individual work in progress" now he (Mr. C.) would ask the hon. gentleman, what kind of a system it was, that antecedent to 1837, loaned money to individual companies — without security — one shilling of which has never been repaid; who managed the system that loaned the money to the Desjardins Canal? — to the Cobourg Harbour Company? — to the Oakville Harbour? and many similar works — who managed the system that built up (by a system of local jobbing and interested commissioners) one part and one interest of the Country to the entire exclusion of the other? — I say sir, it was no system it was a jobbing in the House of Assembly which involved us in debt, prevented our improvements, and dissatisfied the people — and for these reasons, he (Mr. C.) strenuously advocated an uniform system by the Constitution of a Board of Works, who shall be responsible to the House for the outlay of the money, the estimates, the description of the work and their completion. But he would leave the hon. gentleman to take care of the local interest of any part of the country (to use his own words) whose local interest seems to absorb his energies — and would briefly run over the scheme submitted to the house. — The Governor General in his opening speech, alluded to the possibility of our obtaining a loan in England of one and a half million of money at three and a half per cent, the idea was scouted by hon. members of this house; by many gentlemen out of doors, it was treated as a “ruse de guerre,” but sir, the Country had confidence in the Executive Government, and this house sustained that government on the faith of this and other pledges, and the expectations of the Country was (sic) greatly raised on this subject, the people are anxiously looking for this measure and expect it to be one by which the greatest though most neglected interest (the agriculturist’s will be protected and promoted,) and upon this ground separately (sic), and as a whole he would support it. — The first item mentioned in the resolutions and which he expected would have reconciled the hon. gentleman from Lincoln to the whole measure, is more than half the whole sum for the improvement of the Welland Canal — he (Mr. C.) was in favor of this because it afforded a cheap means of transport for the immense agricultural products of the Niagara, Simcoe, London, Western, and Huron Districts, because it enhances the value of all our Western lands, and because it must be the chief and main cause of making Montreal the greatest shipping port on this continent — he, (Mr. C.) held that the interest of Lower Canada was better advanced and conserved by this expenditure than by any roads which can be made within that province. — The improvement of Lake St. Peter was another object of primary importance and he found no fault that it was within the heretofore province of Lower Canada, because by this, Upper Canada interest will be protected, and secured, and particularly the lumber interest, the timber and staves will by this means be to a great extent sold at Montreal and so saved a risk of mostly fifty per cent independant (sic) of the expense of going down. — The improvement of the Richelieu will induce emigration to the townships, will increase the revenue of a large increase of trade from Lake Champlain and the United States. — The expenditure for the improvement of the Ottawa had greatly disappointed his expectation, for after the amount is deducted for the Union Bridge, probably about £10,000 the balance is just the amount of one year’s revenue for the timber cut on the Ottawa lands — but, although this important region of country is yielding a greater revenue than any other district — supplying the greatest, most valuable and important article of export of the whole province, embracing a greater extent of country than the River St. Lawrence upon which, and its tributaries upwards of £1,400,000 is to be expended, yet he (Mr. C.) said he would not throw obstacles in the way of this magnificent scheme, on the part of his constituents, those who have hitherto never received any aid, loan, or notice, those step children of a careless government, but he would accept this trifle, and as an evidence of a better system about to be adopted, he would accept it, because it would cause Surveyors and Engineers to go into that country and then he felt assured its importance, its internal resources, and capabilities would force themselves for future and more worthy notice upon the government and the country. The next proposition was the inland waters of the Newcastle District, a noble country and worthy of our attention, and although that District has had a large grant of money which on account of the vicious system adopted, he had opposed, yet knowing as he did the extensive groves of oak and other valuable timber in that district, the extent of agricultural interests that would be secured by this expenditure upon a moderate and judicious system, he could not refuse it, and expected that every member of this house would advocate it. Next is the Burlington Bay Canal, an outlet from a bay and basin, which is destined to be the depot of a greater amount of agricultural products than any one point in the western part of America, (not even excepting the Miamet Bay,) a country unsurpassed for extent, beauty, and fertility, the products of the Gore and London Districts, and the Western trade which will be induced to this point by important internal communication are beyond calculation, and sir, that work at present is nearly in ruins and the revenue decreasing, yet all this attracts no notice from the hon. gentleman from Lincoln. — No, no, its (sic) off the track of his local interests, and the deputy from Welnd cares not for it. The next subject noticed is the harbour and light houses on Lake Erie; an immense interest tributary to the Welland and St. Lawrence. — Is it not a disgrace to Canada that while the Americans have 60 Steam Boats on the Upper Lakes, we have not one — and how can we have boats, while on the coast of a Lake 300 miles long, we have not a single safe harbour. — Can it be credited that port Stanly, port Burwell, and the Cat Fish and the round O are entirely unnoticed and either untouched, or what has been done is fast going to ruin; and that the only outlet for Simcoe, London, and part of the western district is in such a state that even Schooners can not get in — in such a state that last year's wheat crop is not yet all out from these ports. I trust the hon. gentleman from Lincoln will turn his attention somewhat to the necessities of our own farmers, — and let his Mills and his American trade avail themselves of the St. Lawrence and the Rideau in their present state; till the improvement of such internal works as this, shall command such a trade as will show the necessity of their improvement and warrant the expenditure. The next subject is the great provincial high way from Quebec to the far west; this proposition was made 20 years ago by the then Attorney General, the present Chief Justice, a man whose foresight and great abilities all will allow, and which no circumstance has proved more clearly than the one to which he now alluded the road from the Cascades to Coteau-du-lac and other sections of the route are of important necessity; why Sir, is it almost incredible that in 1841 after nearly one million has been expended on the St. Lawrence that the public highway from Hamilton to Brantford at two seasons of the year is nearly impossible, this very season he (Mr. C.) was there travelling one mile an hour, and what is the consequence to the Upper Canadian agriculturalist, why Sir, that wheat is worth about a shilling less at London than at Hamilton. But, Sir, to conclude the notice of these Works it is only necessary to say; that I hold that the improvement of the great artery of communication to the Ocean — great and important as I consider it, is second to the opening up of the interior communications through the country — the leading highways, to bring the produce of the Province to the frontier, and after that is done, I will go as far as any other hon. gentleman, to expedite the transportation of American produce thro' the country. The next Resolution is the scheme of leaving to the exertion of certain individuals deeply interested, the weight and responsibility of borrowing, at a low rate of interest, the amount necessary to improve the St. Lawrence; and I think in the present state of our finance we should embrace every means of obtaining money on the most (sic) advantageous terms, for I feel assured that we cannot do more than pay the interest on the million and a half at 3½ per cent. The next Resolution is the project for a Bank of Issue; and I feel bold to assert, that were we free from the influence of Banks and Bank Directors, this project would meet with as hearty and entire a concurrence as the most favorite scheme of public improvements — and why Sir am I thus sanguine? because a single Bank of Issue gives public safety — secure an uniform currency, so that a Dollar Bill will always be of equal value from Kamouraska to Lake Huron; because it will secure the public against the failure of Banks — guaranteeing every Bill in circulation with the full security of the Government — and because I think it the best means of guarding against over issues and sudden contractions; and because it is a self-evident fact, that it will produce a very considerable revenue to the Province; and from the undoubted prerogative of the Crown, the right of coinage, enable the people to pay the interest of their Public Debt. I have drawn my conclusions from the writing of the latest and best writers on political economy, and the history of Banking in the United States; and I warn hon. members, that should they refuse this great public advantage — that they must give some better reason to their constituents (who are not Bankers nor Bank Stockholders) than the only one I have yet heard against it, namely, that it will lessen the profits of Bankers!! for refusing forty thousand pounds a year. But Sir, there are many in this House who understand this matter much better than I do, and I shall leave this part of the subject to them. The last thing to notice is the immense saving to the revenue by the loan of one and a half million; for which we are to pay 3½ per cent.; by this plan we will pay £52,500 — we pay our debt, £1,200,000, now bearing interest about 6 per cent. — £72,000 a year — and leave still not only £300,000 for public improvements but also a nett (sic) gain of £20,000 a year interest. With respect to duties on imports, I feel that the revenue from this source may be greatly augmented — first by an improved system of collecting these duties — by having a fixed instead of an ad valorem (sic) duty (evaded daily by false invoices); and lastly, which the introducer of the Resolutions said little about — the immediate impost of a duty on all articles imported from the United States for consumption within this Province, particularly Flour, Pork, Wheat, and all descriptions of Live Stock. And I do trust that the hopes of the people of this country will not be crushed by the prorogation of this House, without something having been done on this subject. From what I know of the state of the revenue, I would state that there can be no difficulty whatever in our paying the interest of 3 millions without direct taxation. But, Sir, having trespassed so long on the time of the Committee, I shall conclude by pressing upon the House the propriety of taking this measure as a whole. True it is, that the hon. gentleman who has charge of this measure, and I doubt not the whole Government, could they speak unanimously on this subject, are not anxious on this occasion for the Bill the whole Bill, and nothing but the Bill; no Sir, the less we take of this Bill the better for them, the less responsibility they assume. No Sir, it is not the whole bill with them this time, — but let it be so with us — let the united cry of the representatives of the people be the Bill, the whole Bill, and nothing but the Bill. Let us afford the Government every facility they require, and let us throw the responsibility and the onus of fulfilling this pledge upon them — and let us demand that they carry out their views and their improvements in themselves — let us I say demand its fulfilment and so unite our own interest, enrich all classes of our people, and unite more closely and firmly then (sic) ever, the Government and money lenders of England to this valuable Colony.<sup>6</sup>

Dr. Dunlop spoke at some length upon the advantages to be obtained by Liverpool salt being substituted for that at present in use in the colony; the superiority of it being so great, as to insure in case of a universal preference being given to it, an immense increase in our provision trade and consequently a great addition to the revenue. With this view and considering to what extent it was used by the poor, he deprecated too heavy a duty being levied upon it, 1d. per bushel according to the hon. member's estimate being upwards of 33 per cent. upon the article.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Johnston was opposed to the Bank scheme, and not in very good temper with the estimate laid down for the improvement of the Ottawa (£28,000) which he affirmed was only one year's (sic) revenue of the lumber trade connected with it.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Moffatt coincided with Mr. Merritt as to the importance of the St. Lawrence navigation. With respect to the third resolution, he thought there would be no difference of opinion, every one being anxious to reduce the rate of interest as much as possible. To the Bank of Issue he was personally favorable, considering it a mode of security that would create general confidence. In the present state of feeling however, he would suggest the propriety of reserving this part of the measure for the next session, otherwise it might be productive of much harassing hostility to the government. Salt in point of revenue, he regarded as of the utmost importance, and the less the duty on it the better. Speaking in general terms of the great advantages to be derived from the increased facilities of communication, the hon. member observed that in a ratio to those facilities would be our trade, which was narrowly limited for want of channels, the defective state of the Rideau Canal last year, serving alone to exemplify this, upwards of £20,000 being sacrificed on this account by the loss arising from the exposure of produce in the quays of Kingston.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Cartwright followed at some length.<sup>10</sup> ((He)) spoke on the Resolutions, but said little on the Bank of Issue project.<sup>11</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said this was not and ought not to be a party question, and the Resolutions should have his support.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Parke denounced the St. Lawrence scheme (his expression) as a visionary one, and advocated the improvements which had been recommended as generally desired by the community.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Durand pronounced the Bank of Issue a monopoly that would operate injuriously against the farmer, and was of opinion that a bill appertaining to agricultural produce imported into the colony from the States, ought to be introduced as a separate measure.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Hincks concurred with hon. members who had preceded him, in thinking this present subject one of the gravest importance to the country. And he was of opinion with the hon. member for Montreal, (Mr. Moffatt) that no hasty decision should be adopted by the Committee. The proposition of the hon. member for North Lincoln appeared to him very unreasonable. There was no member in the House more desirous than he (Mr. Hincks) to go on with the improvement of the St. Lawrence. The completion of that great work would materially reduce the cost of transport on our produce, and every shilling saved in that way would go into the pockets of the farmers. But while he fully admitted the necessity of completing the St. Lawrence, he was bound not to forget the interests of that portion of our population that was settled in the interior of the country. He (Mr. H.) had the honour to represent a District that was entirely shut out from the navigable waters. And it was essentially necessary that good leading roads should be made, so as to enable the inhabitants of a District thus situated to participate in the expected benefits — so far, therefore, as he (Mr. H.) had been able to form his opinions on the subject, he was inclined, if it should be determined to go on with improvements at all, to proceed on such a scale as would enable all sections of the Province to participate in them, and this certainly appeared to him to be the principle on which the Government scheme had been passed. His hon. friend from North Lincoln (Mr. Merritt) had alluded to the mistaken policy of the Provincial Government in 1837, which was the means of stopping all our public works. He (Mr. H.) was astonished after all the experience of the last 3 or 4 years to hear such a sentiment avowed. The truth was the government of that day had assented to the scheme of public works with a view of gaining popularity, and had shamefully deluded the people. — No “ways and means” were provided to meet the interest of the debt authorized to be contracted, and he (Mr. H.) would warn the gentlemen on the treasury benches of the consequence of inspiring the hopes of the people that the present scale of improvements would be carried out, unless they were prepared to fulfil their pledges. Had the scale proposed by the 13th Parliament been carried out, not even the Union could have rescued us from inevitable bankruptcy. Again he differed with his hon. friend from North Lincoln (Mr. Merritt) in his objection to Import duties on British manufactures. His hon. friend seemed to think that in order to induce the Imperial Parliament to take off duties on our produce, we should admit home manufactures free of duty. The case was widely different. Our duty was imposed merely to obtain revenue, and would not consume one shilling’s worth less of British manufactures in consequence of the increase of duty. The English duty on our produce, on the contrary, was a protective duty, and ought to be taken off, because as he (Mr. H.) was prepared to prove, the cost of transport on our produce was so great as to prevent all necessity for protection to British Agriculturists. Some observations had been made by hon. gentlemen relative to the Bank of Issue, which was contemplated in the 4th resolution. He (Mr. H.) was decidedly in favour of such a Bank, not merely on account of the revenue which it would yield, but because it would secure a sound currency, not liable to those contractions and expansions to which we are now exposed. It had been stated by the hon. member for Lenox (sic) and Addington that these contractions and expansions have not taken place in this Province, but he (Mr. H.) would refer to the Bank statements as evidence of the correctness of the contrary assertion. He found that in Upper Canada the variations at corresponding periods of different and subsequent years, had been so great as between £666,000 and £444,000 — between £740,000 and £497,000, between £734,000 and £468,000. On reference to the statements in the same year, it would be found that in January, 1839, the circulation was £352,000, in February £666,000, in April £740,000, in August £598,000, and in November £470,000. There could be no doubt that the quantity of money in the market affected the prices of commodities just as much as a surplus of any particular commodity affected its price. To secure a currency as sound and as uniform as possible, he (Mr. H.) thought that there should be but one Bank of issue, whose business would be confined exclusively to the issuing of paper, and prohibited from dealing in exchange, discounting paper, or receiving any deposits but those of the Government. But while he (Mr. H.) did not think the revenue to be derived from the Bank the most important consideration, he could not at the present moment, when we had to consider the “ways and means” of carrying on our stupendous improvements, shut his eyes to the advantage which would be derived by the public if the principle contained in the 4th resolution should be adopted. It was to be recollected that the profits of the Banks were principally derived from circulation. This circulation was in the hands of the public at large, and it was quite clear to him (Mr. H.) that they alone should derive the benefit from it. Hon. gentlemen had asserted that the Banks would lose all their profits if the Bank of Issue were carried into operation. He (Mr. H.) was convinced that Banks were absolutely necessary to the community, and there was no doubt they would always be paid remunerating profits, but these profits should be derived from their customers, and not from the public at large. It was notorious that in England, Banks of discount and deposit alone had been more prosperous than Banks that issued paper, and in several populous districts (Lancashire for instance) the Banks that had issued paper had voluntarily abandoned the privilege. But even if it were thought advisable not to proceed with the Bank of Issue this session, and he (Mr. H.) did not desire any more than the hon. member for the city of Montreal, (Mr. Moffatt) to urge its adoption prematurely, still he (Mr. H.) thought that under present circumstances it would be found absolutely necessary to obtain a revenue from the circulation of Bank notes, and if these institutions would not relinquish their privileges that they should be made to pay for them. Before the Committee rose he (Mr. H.) would implore its attention to the actual position in which we are placed. The scale of improvements contemplated an outlay of £1,700,000. There was no improvement that was thought useless, but many had been suggested by hon. members, not included in the scheme which had emanated from the Government. The question then is — how are the "ways and means" to be provided; and he (Mr. H.) thought those so strongly opposed to the Bank of Issue ought to have enlightened this Committee as to the "ways and means" which they would propose to raise the revenue to meet the interest of a loan which we all agree it is necessary to raise. As far as he (Mr. H.) understood the question, admitting that £40,000 or £45,000 would be raised by the alteration in the Customs duties there would be at least £20,000 more required. Now he (Mr. H.) would, before he concluded, beg hon. gentlemen to reflect before they sat again on the best mode to raise the additional revenue — for he for one would never consent that any particular improvements, such as the St. Lawrence and Welland Canals, should be proceeded with, to the exclusion of the roads and other internal communications, in which the agricultural population are quite as much interested as in the great water communications. With these remarks he (Mr. H.) would support the motion for the Committee to rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again to-morrow.<sup>15</sup>

The Address is as followeth : —

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

Address accompanying
Report.

We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Legislative Assembly of Canada in Provincial Parliament assembled, beg leave most humbly to bring under the notice of Your Majesty a subject of the gravest importance to Your Majesty's faithful subjects in this Province. During the course of the present Session of Parliament we have learned with deep concern, that Your Majesty has been advised to grant a Royal Charter to a Company in the City of London, associated together for Banking purposes in the British North American Colonies, under the name and style of "The Bank of British North America," — which Charter, besides conferring other privileges, authorises the said Company to issue Bank Notes within this Province.

It becomes our solemn and bounden duty, on behalf of the people of Canada, whose Representatives we are, to protest against such an interference with their constitutional rights.

We beg leave most humbly to represent to Your Majesty, that the Statute of the Imperial Parliament, by virtue of which we are now assembled, was intended to confer upon the people of Canada the power of managing their own local affairs; and we had ventured to hope, from the tenor of the recent Despatches from Your Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies to Your Majesty's Representative in this Province, that non-interference in those affairs would be the principle on which your Majesty's Councils would thenceforth be governed, in reference to the affairs of this Colony.

We are unwilling to weaken the force of our present remonstrance, by pointing out to Your Majesty the inconvenience to which the Provincial Legislature may be exposed, and the loss which may be suffered by the inhabitants of this Province, owing to the exercise of the Royal Prerogative in this instance.

We respectfully and humbly pray Your Majesty's favorable consideration to this Address, believing that the constitutional rights of the Provincial Legislature, to control and manage the internal affairs of the Province, is a principle, to the maintenance of which the people of this important Colony are irrevocably pledged.

We beg to renew our assurance of entire devotion to Your Majesty's Person and Government.

Ordered — That the said report and address be referred to a Committee of the whole House, on Friday next.

Accordingly Mr. Speaker, with the House, went to the Legislative Council Chamber.

And being returned,

Mr. Speaker reported, that, agreeable to the commands of His Excellency the Governor General, the House had attended His Excellency in the Legislative Council Chamber, where His Excellency was pleased to give, in Her Majesty's name, the Royal assent to the following public and private Bills : —

"An Act to incorporate the Upper Canada Academy, under the name and style of 'Victoria College'."

"An Act to secure to, and confer upon certain inhabitants of this Province the Civil and Political rights of natural born British Subjects."

"An Act to repeal the laws now in force in that part of this Province formerly Upper Canada, for the recovery of small debts, and to make other provisions therefor."

"An Act to require Justices of the Peace to make returns of convictions and fines, and for other purposes therein mentioned."

"An Act to amend an Act of the Legislature of Lower Canada, relative to the establishment of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies."

"An Act to secure to, and confer upon Jacques Alexandre Tailhades, an inhabitant of this Province, the Civil and Political rights of a natural born British Subject."

"An Act to grant authority to licensed Surveyors in that part of this Province called Upper Canada, to administer an Oath in certain cases, and to protect them while in discharge of their duty in surveying lands."

"An Act to extend and define the limits of the Town of Woodstock in the District of Brock."

(441)

U. C. District Councils Bill.

An Act to provide for the better internal Government of that part of this Province, which formerly constituted the Province of Upper Canada, by the establishment of Local or Municipal authorities therein.

Election Bill passed.

An engrossed Bill, the better to provide for the freedom of elections throughout this Province, and for other purposes therein mentioned, was read for the third time.

Resolved — That the Bill do pass, and that the title be, "An Act to provide for the freedom of elections throughout this Province, and for other purposes therein mentioned."

Ordered — That Mr. Baldwin do carry the said Bill to the Legislative Council, and desire their concurrence.

House in Committee
on Bill to allow N.
Am. Asso. of Ireland to loan moneys.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Bill to authorize the North American Colonial Association of Ireland, to loan moneys and to prosecute certain public Works in the County of Beauharnois, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
Mr. Hopkins took the chair of the Committee,

Mr. Viger said the bill was giving to the Association powers of a most dangerous nature.<sup>2</sup>

Messrs. Merritt and Baldwin were of the same opinion, especially as the District Councils had never yet had an opportunity of shewing their intentions, efficiency or capability of doing good.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Hincks supported the bill, affirming that it gave no more power to the District Councils to borrow money, than was already conferred by the municipal bill, nor did it in any way add to their power, but merely permitted them to delegate it to others, who were willing to advance money for local improvements.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Merritt said this was allowing the Districts Councils (so he was understood) to make roads and carry on other works, which might probably clash with those of a similar nature, either in progress or completed by the Legislature.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Aylwin contended, that the powers conferred by this bill, would never have been granted to the old seignors, nor even asked for by them. The most glaring acts of tyranny under the authority of this bill might be perpetrated by the Association, without control; a body corporate being much more dangerous to intrust with power than individuals. For this reason he felt bound to give the measure a most determined opposition.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Viger, alluding to the seignories, said that the bill would confer a power on the District Councils far beyond the limits of what their powers had ever been.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Hincks observed, that the bylaws of the councils were subject to the veto.<sup>8</sup>

Messrs. Aylwin and Baldwin affirmed that the very preamble gave a power to a body of men, living in another country, to interfere in our internal affairs.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Sol. General Day, in answer to some observations that fell from Mr. Merritt, remarked, that the Association was incorporated by an Act of the Imperial Parliament, and that the present bill, was merely to give to that body corporate, the power of loaning money to effect improvements in Beauharnois, with the consent of the District Council.<sup>10</sup>

Capt. Steele would never consent to the District Councils being made a mere cats-paw of to borrow money to be laid out by an Association as it thought proper.<sup>11</sup>

All the clauses but the 4th and fifth, were then struck out, limiting the Association to the power of loaning money only. An additional clause, prohibiting any one in any way connected with the improvements, from holding any office or of having any influence in the council. — <sup>12</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended,

And Mr. Hopkins reported, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the report be received to-morrow.

House in Committee
on Bill to amend U.
C. Mutual Insurance Act.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Bill, to amend an Act of the Parliament of the late Province of Upper Canada, entitled "An Act to authorize the establishment of Mutual Insurance Companies in the several Districts of this Province" being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Crane took the chair of Committee, and after some time spent therein,<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Hincks said the bill was intended to allow the inhabitants of the western part of the province to insure in any office they might think proper, whether in the district or not; providing there was no insurance company in it, or that (if there was one) they had already insured as far as the office was willing to grant a policy.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Roblin was for making every one insure in the district in which he lived; considering it due from neighbors to support each other in aid of a company established for their mutual benefit. One argument of the hon. gentleman's was in every way an inducement, rather than a compulsion — for, said he “who ((is)) so likely to render aid, as those at hand, with whom a man co-operates?”<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Merritt was for extending the principle, and allowing every man to insure where he liked.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb was of the same opinion.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Roblin still ((contended)) for restriction.<sup>18</sup>

(441)

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended.

And Mr. Crane reported, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill as amended be engrossed.

Order for House in Committee on Bill to amend Montreal and Coteau du Lac Rail Road Ordinance, postponed.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee, to take into consideration the expediency of amending the Ordinance of the Special Council of the 4th VICTORIA, chapter 41, authorizing the formation of a Rail Road from Montreal to Coteau du Lac, being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be postponed until Monday next.

House in Committee on Sydenham Road Company Bill.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee, on the Bill to establish a Company by the name of the Sydenham Mountain Road Company, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Powell took the chair of Committee,<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Draper observed that this bill, which was to incorporate a body, (similar to another that had passed this session,) did not contain one clause, which specified what that body was incorporated for. (Hear.)<sup>20</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Progress reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Powell reported, that the Committee had made some progress, and directed him to move for leave to sit again.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again to-morrow.

House in Committee on Petition of
S. Garnsey & others.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the Petition of divers Inhabitants of the Township of Oakland, of Samuel Garnsey and others, inhabitants of the Township of Bayham; and of James Covernton and others, Magistrates and inhabitants of the District of Talbot being read,

(442)

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Burnet took the chair of Committee,<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Powell wished to have the townships of Bayham and Oakland added to Talbot, and he succeeded in committee in carrying a resolution regarding the first.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Parke and Mr. Hincks strongly opposed both resolutions, contending that Bayham ought to be joined to the Brock District so as to give that District a Lake frontage, which would now be particularly necessary in consequence of the establishment of District Councils and the contemplated improvement of the Harbours and roads adjoining them.<sup>23</sup>

After a good deal of discussion in committee Mr. Powell withdrew his motion regarding Oakland....<sup>24</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Resolution Reported.

And Mr. Burnet reported, that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, as followeth :

Resolved — That it is the opinion of this Committee, that it is expedient for the local convenience of the inhabitants of the Township of Bayham, to annex, by Legislative enactment, that Township to the County of Norfolk, in the District of Talbot.

Motion for question of concurrence.

Mr. Powell moved, seconded by Mr. Durand, that the question of concurrence be now put upon the said resolution, Amendment moved, to refer Bill to Committee.

Mr. Henry Smith moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Johnston, that all the words after "That" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted : "The Petition of Samuel Garnsey and others, inhabitants of the Township of Bayham, be referred to a select Committee, composed ((of)) Mr. Hincks, Mr. Durand, Mr. Parke, and Mr. Powell, to examine the contents thereof, and to report thereon with all convenient speed ; with power to send for persons, papers, and records,"

Amendment carried.

The question having been put upon the motion of amendment, it was agreed to by the House,

Main motion carried.

The question being then put upon the main motion, as amended, it was also agreed to by the House, and —

Resolved accordingly.

A message from the Legislative Council, by John Godfrey Spragge, Esquire.

MR. SPEAKER,

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill, entitled "An Act to regulate the currency of this Province," with several amendments, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly,

And then he withdrew.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Johnston took the chair of Committee.<sup>25</sup>

The hon. and learned member ((Mr. Black)) briefly observed, that the bills before the committee would not abolish the punishment of death, but restrict it to certain offences.

The bills had been drawn up, not merely from his own experience, but with deference to the opinions of those, who, distinguished by their legal acquirements, were entitled to serve as authorities.<sup>26</sup>

Few Members besides the lawyers took a part ((in the debate))....<sup>27</sup>

House in Committee on 1st. Report of Committee on prices

produce.

The Order of the day, for the House in Committee on the first Report of the select Committee, appointed to examine into the prices paid and the methods adopted, for the transit of products on the different communications within this Province, and to which was referred the Message of His Excellency the Governor General, in answer to the Address of this House of the 14th of July last, on the subject of an

(445)

Address of the House of Assembly of Upper Canada, relating to the introduction of the products of the Province into the Ports of Great Britain free of duty, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Kimber took the chair of Committee.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Merritt brought up his proposition for the alteration of the duties, and for a change in the system of our commercial relations with Great Britain. He produced a report from the House of Assembly of New Brunswick, in support of his views of the question. He stated that the difficulty in effecting the desired alterations did not arise, so much from disinclination on the part of the British Government to attend to our wishes, as from the mode prescribed for obtaining it. That House must proceed by Address to the Governor — the Governor must transmit the Address to the Queen — Her Majesty referred it to the Colonial Department — the Colonial Department referred it to the Board of Trade — and the Board of Trade to the Imperial Parliament. He considered it would be far better, that we should have the power to make laws on the subject for ourselves, and let them be referred immediately to the Imperial Parliament, when, if having laid before that House thirty days, they were not opposed, they should be a law here. Mr. M. then proceeded to say, he would propose to the Mother Country a system of free trade. We would abandon our import duties, and she should abandon all her duties upon our exports, by which we should become part and parcel of the Empire; and he would substitute for the revenue which we now derived from our imports, which did not exceed £40,000, the tolls which would be received from the St. Lawrence Canal. He attempted to prove that if this were done, Great Britain would be the gainer, as it would be no longer necessary that she should keep up a Military establishment here, or expend the proposed £100,000 per annum, in building fortresses and other defences; that, in fact, Canada would defend herself and become the most desirable place of residence in the known world. He did not mean to press the adoption of the measure just then — his object was to bring it before the House and the country for their consideration, and he had no doubt, that, within a very few years, it would be acted upon.<sup>3</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said, the Hon. Member thought the proposition he had made so clear, that every body else must be of the same opinion. Now he entertained a very different opinion, and he was not disposed to make so bad a bargain. It was, to use the favorite figure of his Hon. friend from Carlton, (Mr. Johnson) "like a can, with the handle all on one side."<sup>4</sup> The duty on wheat, he affirmed, averaged 6d per quarter, (subject to a rise of 5s.) which he estimated to the farmer at about ¾d per bushel. The duty of 2½ per cent. which was levied on piece goods, he was of opinion, was only operated upon to half the amount — enabling one of the partners from each of the large houses to go to England yearly on business, out of the profits derived from an evasion of the duty. Even were it doubled, said the hon. member, such would be the trifling difference in the fabrication of a pair of small-clothes, that though a tailor possessed even the subtlety of a "Cocker," with all his arithmetical ingenuity, he would be unable to put down any additional charge in the bill, that would be borne out by any logical inferences, unless those to be adduced in solving the enigmas that are to be found on the exterior of those pictorial repositories (sic) of snuff and tobacco, which are to be met with in the pockets of intelligent and economical mechanics.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Merritt asserted that the very tolls arising from our Canals, if his project was adopted, would pay more than ten times the revenue we at present derived from our import duties.<sup>6</sup>

Dr. Dunlop thought the Hon. Member for Lincoln (Mr. Merritt) must have been studying Don Quixotte (sic), for, like him, he so long contemplated fancied things to be real that he believed them to be so.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Hincks said that the duties of imports into the Port of Quebec, had nothing whatever to do with the products which were exported to Great Britain. — British manufacturers, he affirmed, wanted no protecting duties, to enable them to compete with the rest of the world, an assertion emanating from that wealthy body itself.<sup>8</sup>

((He)) said all this country wanted at present was revenue, and he would ask if we sacrificed £40,000 per annum, by abandoning our import duties, how that sum was to be obtained? Instead of giving it up, we required to double it. He ridiculed the idea of relying upon the tolls of works, not only not completed, but the policy of completing which was not yet decided on. When they were completed, and the tolls became so redundant as the Hon. gentleman prognosticated, then would be time enough to abandon our import duties. What the country required was the protection of its agriculture, and the diminution of the cost of production — and what was the same thing, diminished the cost of transport.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Merritt explained — the proposition was, a reciprocal abolition of all duties between the colony and the mother country; an event which he predicted would be accomplished in four years from the present period — the counterbalance to be effected by imposing duties upon the products of the States and other countries.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Cartwright supported Mr. Merritt's views of removing all restrictions upon our commerce. With respect to Great Britain admitting all imports that came from us duty-free, he was afraid that it would be so far objectionable, that a glut might be occasioned in the home market, by admitting on these terms the products of the United States, which could not be considered as our own growth. He could well understand that we ourselves would be benefited by such a stipulation, if flour purchased by us at 20s per barrel, for our own consumption could be exported and sold in the home market for 30s. Considering the arguments that had been offered, he would vote for an address founded upon the resolutions.<sup>11</sup>

He went into a lengthened statement of the relative obligations which existed between this country, as a Colony, and the Parent Country.<sup>12</sup>

Capt. Steele supported the proposition of free trade between Great Britain and Canada. He thought, however, that by urging the matter, it might be productive of an irritation that would operate against us, the mother country having evinced every disposition to identify our interests with hers, and to carry out a system of wise legislation consistent with the welfare of both countries.<sup>13</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said, that it was an undoubted fact, the agricultural was the superior interest of the country, and every thing... that went to aggrandize any other, at the expense of that, ought to be scouted. He could have no intention of injuring the interests of agriculture, as he was sorry to say he was one of the few Members of the House that depended solely upon it for his support. The proposal of checking the importation, or rather the transmission of American produce through the country, he considered impolitic in the extreme. Until that wheat and flour which went out by the St. Lawrence would glut the English and West Indian markets, no injury could be done to the agricultural interests of this country. The whole panic on the subject arose upon a very erroneous idea of the enormous commercial transactions of Great Britain. He would venture to say, that all the flour exported, the growth of Canada, would not furnish a penny roll for the New Year's day Breakfast, for every individual of Great Britain and Ireland. As to the West Indies, Jamaica alone took 52,000 barrels of flour annually, a quantity which it would have puzzled us to supply not many years ago; and here we had a protecting duty equal to 6s stg. per barrel. He could see little harm, though it was against sound principles, of interdicting the importation of such articles as the Colony itself used, such as fresh beef, live stock, but he hoped that he would never see the day when the boon that the Mother Country had granted us, of being the shippers and carriers of foreign produce, so should be taken from us. The Americans, and particularly the Yankees, were a clear-headed people especially when their own interests are concerned. So far from rejoicing at any advantages they have gained over John Bull, they were lamenting in sack cloth and ashes, that for once the Cabinet of Great Britain had outjockeyed them. They did not stamp, and rave, and rail, and display their oratory in splendid paragraphs; they took a more mechanical mode of proving their point; they appealed to the Customs House returns of Montreal, Quebec, Boston and New York, and from them they proved satisfactorily that our commerce had increased exactly in the same proportion that they had diminished, — and they proposed as a remedy, that bonded warehouses should be established on the borders of our waters, to throw into Canada British and foreign goods as cheaply as they could be procured from Montreal, from which they said, and truly, smuggling took place to an enormous extent. Indeed, it is not at all likely that an American will take a cargo of flour to Montreal, receive his money, return to his own country, and buy his British goods at an advance of 75 per cent; if this be human nature, it certainly is not Yankee nature. Many in the House were old enough to remember Napoleon's Milan and Berlin Decrees. They were enacted to exclude British goods from the Continent; how did we receive them? by excluding Continental goods from Great Britain. Now, if Napoleon's policy was good, we were doing all in our power to help him, we were giving him our Army, our Navy, and our Customs Houses, to follow up his plans. Had we, on the contrary, allowed continental goods to come into Great Britain, we would have added to our revenue, and we would have had a market for our own products, as British manufactures must have been smuggled out and carried to the Continent to pay for what we received. The complaint therefore of the Americans not reciprocating, is chimerical; let us take their produce (sic), and they must and they shall take our manufactures in return.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Williams was in favour of levying a duty upon all American produce for the benefit of the Canadian farmer; and opposed to the produce of other countries passing through our waters upon the same footing as those of our own growth.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Hincks could not see how we were to be benefitted by adopting the report of the committee. As to the former addresses on the subject having been ineffectual, he shrewdly suspected that that might be imputed to counter addresses having been sent home to counteract them. If we desired to increase our revenue, he could not devise a better expedient than levying an additional duty of 2½, making it 5 per cent. upon British manufactures. Before, however, any action was taken upon the report by the house, he would be happy to hear the opinions of the Executive officers on the subject.<sup>16</sup> disturbances in Upper and Lower Canada, and on the Petition of J. W. Woolsey, Esquire, and others, of Quebec, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Barthe took the chair of the Committee.<sup>9</sup>

The hon. member ((Mr. Neilson))... was strongly in favour of his proposition, urging it upon the house as the only means whereby — “peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety were to be established among us for ever.”<sup>10</sup> He spoke in strong terms of the sufferings of some of the persons who had been engaged in the late troubles. He was aware that it was not the province of the House to interfere, except by petition or address, that it was a prerogative of the Crown to shew mercy, but when it was considered that England was 4000 miles distant, and how little acquainted Her Majesty could possibly be with the real circumstances of the case, he thought that the address he now proposed was but just and reasonable. He then proposed his address, which entreated a free pardon for all offences, and for all persons without exception, who had been implicated in the late rebellion.<sup>11</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said he should feel it to be his duty to oppose that motion. It had long been and ever would remain to be a puzzle to jurists and legislators to apportion punishment to crime. Two errors, they were liable to commit; over leniency encouraged crime, and over severity defeated the object of punishment, as it led the world to pity rather than to detest the criminal.<sup>12</sup> He allowed it was possible that either through a mistaken zeal, or lamentable ignorance, some unfortunate beings might have been led away by the voice of “the charmer,” but between such men and the turbulent and malignant agitator he made a wide difference. To extend mercy, said the member for Huron, the very ringleaders, who are even at this moment conspiring the destruction of the colony — would not only be a mistaken leniency, but an encouragement to all others who might devote their energies to a career of crime.<sup>13</sup> No man who knew him would accuse him of inhumanity, — yet on this occasion, he would say, that he was not prepared to go all the lengths of the Hon. Member for the county of Quebec. He would modify the request to the Throne, and confine it to those ignorant individuals who had been led by artful and designing demagogues, who were men of education, into a deviation from their duty (sic) to their Queen and their country.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Johnston, the member for Carleton, followed on the same side, saying that he was disposed to take into consideration the inexperience of those who as minors, had been betrayed by the artful machinations of demagogues and miscreants, to unite in revolutionizing the country; but to extend pardon to the authors and promoters of rebellion, he never would consent, though his voice should be the only one that uttered the negative to the one now before the House. —<sup>15</sup> Mr. Johnston would never consent to vote for the pardon of persons, who had made widows and orphans at the Windmill and other places. The supporters of this measure could sympathize with those rascals, but they had no sympathy for those whom their crimes had rendered destitute and defenceless. He would like to know how often the mover of this address had put his hands into his pockets to relieve them, as he had done no longer ago than yesterday. He could not forget the treatment of Dr. Hume, Captain Ussher, and many others, by about forty or fifty villainous leaders; and yet it was the object of the address to pardon them all, Mackenzie, Lett, &c. and bring them back again to repeat their abominable practices.<sup>16</sup> Talk of mercy! said the hon. member, what quality of such a character, existed in the breasts of those, whose bloody hands lopped off the legs of an individual who fell within their murderous grasp, sparing neither age nor sex, but with a ruthless hand destroying in cold blood every one whom chance or helplessness placed within the reach of their savage fury! Who, said the hon. member, will dare to stand up and claim a kindred sympathy with the ruffian Lett? — or plead in favour of a Mackenzie or a Papineau? — Let that man who has a heart within his bosom that beats with such a sympathy, stand forward and with blustering front proclaim his degeneracy; but for me, — while the lifeblood flows warm within my veins, I will never seal my condemnation by an avowal so base and so unworthy of a British subject. The hon. member then moved an amendment, that the address have respect to those only, who now living in the States, were under the age of 21 when they perpetrated their wickedness.<sup>17</sup>

Captain Steele would have his vote recorded for the motion. He hoped the voice of humanity would prevail — it was compatible with the conduct of brave men — the battle had been fought, and victory won — and he would encourage the same feeling which existed in the British Navy, which had often led him, after the battle, to seat the conquered by his side and enjoy a social glass together. He thought the Hon. and venerable Member entitled to their thanks for introducing the measure.<sup>18</sup>

Dr. Dunlop asked him — “Would you like to hobnob with Mackenzie?” — (A laugh.)<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Baldwin deprecated discussion, which would probably defeat the measure and weaken its effect. He had been led to expect that a proposition for an amnesty would have proceeded from the Treasury Benches, but he was disappointed, and his Hon. friend had nothing left for him but to bring forward his motion. He trusted that acrimonious expressions would be avoided, and he felt grateful to the gallant Member (Capt. Steele) for his manly declaration. He trusted that all would be disposed to forgive and to forget, and to bury the past in oblivion. He thought the application should be a general one, or that no application at all should be made. He was aware that it was the prerogative of the Crown to pardon, and, he had no doubt, it was often a most painful duty to select objects who were entitled to receive it.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Attorney General Ogden rose to express a hope that the Hon. Member would withdraw his motion. It had been admitted, in the British House of Commons, in the case of Hunt and others, that it would be improper to interfere with the prerogative of the Crown. The duty which devolved upon Her Majesty was often a most painful one — and as difficult as painful. Sir Robert Peel was taunted not a little, because he would not interfere on behalf of the Chartists; but he replied, that it was not the province of the House of Commons, that it was exclusively the prerogative of the Crown, and he refused to interfere. He trusted that the Hon. gentleman would do the same, and he might be assured justice would be done.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Thorburn would oppose the amendment. ((One)) of the individuals alluded to, he believed, was in France. He believed the difference of opinion, in the House of Commons, was so great, that the motion was negatived by the casting vote of the Chairman, the numbers being 58 to 58. He thought the measure proposed would put an end to all sympathy — and the persons who had prompted these measures sink into insignificance — in fact they had already done so, and were unable to get two boys to follow them. He thought if a general amnesty was passed, peace and goodwill would follow.<sup>22</sup> The great end of punishment, he remarked, was to deter others from committing crime. — Continuing his observations, the hon. member was of opinion that by the amnesty that was sought for, we should disarm a party that had been hitherto formidable — but who being now fallen and degraded, would, if they were permitted to return to this country be as powerless as they had at one time been influential.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Attorney Draper would ask whether the time had arrived, when a general amnesty would be desirable. He was glad to find that the House was not disposed to charge the Government with culpable neglect — and he could assure Hon. Members, that they did no more than justice. The most prompt attention had been paid to applications for the exercise of pardon, and there were many, at that moment, whose case was under the most anxious consideration. He could not, of course, mention names. He, however, must add, that there was nothing that he knew of, to prevent any one not under prosecution from returning. The statute required, that all prosecutions must commence within three years of the time in which the offence was charged to have been committed, and more than the period had elapsed. In 1838 or 1839, a general proclamation had been made, that all those who chose to return, should have a free pardon, and very many did. He was not much acquainted with the proceedings in the lower part of the Province, but, with regard to the upper portion of it, he could assure Hon. Members that every attention had, and would continue to be paid to applications for the exercise of pardon, whenever it could be granted consistently with the safety, peace, and security of the Province.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Neilson said the case of England was very different from that of Canada, and also the cases cited by the Attorney General; though, to be sure, that of the Chartists was something like it. He would be the last man in the House to control the prerogative of the Crown, but he felt that the application ought to be of a general nature, not to presume to say who ought, or who ought not to be the subject of mercy.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Johnston said he would persist in an amendment, that no person who had been convicted, who was of an age above twenty-one years, should be pardoned.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Neilson said he was anxious for this expression of the House on this subject — which would go far to prove that angry feeling had subsided.<sup>27</sup>

Col. Prince said he should vote for the Address but he hoped his Hon. friend from Huron (Dr. Dunlop) would suggest a modification of it — he would not do so himself — and if some other gentlemen did not, he would vote for the address as it stood. He thought it would not be right in that House to say whether A B, or C D, should be pardoned, but to proceed on the broad principle of mercy, — “It might be thought,” said Mr. P., “very singular that I should be the advocate for the pardon of these persons — I care little or nothing for what is said or thought upon the subject — I am guided by principles of Christianity and honesty, which I hold to be above all other considerations.”<sup>28</sup> He denied that the case of Mr. Hunt, which had been alluded to in the House of Commons, was at all applicable to the case of these unfortunate though guilty men. He had no doubt that many of them, if pardoned, would return, and become loyal and good subjects. The Colonel alluded, in pointing terms, to the want of attention, and the delay which took place in attending to addresses to the Home Government, and noticed a case of hardship in the neglect of Mr. Manahan’s application for redress. He should support the motion for the address, without fear of what the Tory press should say of him, for which he cared as little as any man; he knew that three hundred of his constituents, Magistrates, farmers, and men of the most respectable character, have approved his conduct, and he cared not for a vicious and malignant press. He observed, too, that many of those who opposed the exercise of this mercy, were such as, like the grub in the kernel of the nut, were safely protected at the time alluded to. He concluded by saying he hoped his friend from Quebec (Mr. Neilson) would amend his motion, and make it less general; but at any rate he, Col. Prince, would vote for it.<sup>29</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab ... What said the gallant Knight, with atrocities and sufferings that can never be too frequently execrated, nor too deeply deplored, yet recking in our recollections, are we now called upon to extend the hand of fellowship to those who were the reckless and unprincipled authors of them? Was but so short a period only elapsed before our sympathies are appealed to in behalf of men, who though they have not the power have however all the inclination unweakened by the lapse of time, of plunging us again into those scenes of crime and bloodshed which raised them into notoriety? Talk not of sympathy said the gallant Knight, of sympathy with the midnight assassin, the plundered and the incendiary!! — Where, where is the sympathy to be found, in the hearts of those, who advocate their cause, for the widows and orphans left desolate by their murderous hands. No man said the hon. member is more alive than myself to the warm feelings that animate our nature, but when amidst the struggles of Canadian life, I reflect upon the sanguinary and atrocious conduct of those who would have desolated the land, and delivered us over to the mercies of a savage horde of neighbouring enemies, can I a Canadian by birth, bound by every tie to the soil, and by every bond of human affection that can stimulate a loyal heart to stand forward in defence of it — can I reckless of the past, and indifferent to the future, coolly sanction a measure that is to let loose upon the country those restless and unhappy spirits, that are only impotent because they are exiled — only penitent because they are punished — are only harmless because they are disarmed. No, Sir, the same feeling that animated me to expose myself to the rigours of climate and to the perils of open or midnight attacks, from those men, who aided by a crew of ruffians from the States were seeking every opportunity to destroy us, the same feeling now impels me to oppose that extension of mercy to them which their callous hearts denied to the appeals of others. In expressing these sentiments Sir, I stand forward fearlessly at the bar of public opinion, being fully assured, that although they may not be approved of by all, they will nevertheless respond to the feelings of those, who with interests to protect and with sympathies kindred to my own, will warmly support them as the emanation of true patriotism, without which no man can be a lover of his country, a supporter of its laws, a friend to its institutions or an example of loyalty and fidelity to his fellow subjects.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Buchanan was decidedly opposed to a general amnesty. The hon. members (sic) objections were that it would give encouragement to those who were actually organizing invasion. On a future occasion should his services be similarly required to what they had been during the late revolution, he declared he would only give them to shoot every villain in arms against the country. — With these views thinking that a general return would only expose many to destruction, he most determinedly opposed all efforts for a general amnesty.<sup>31</sup>

Dr. Dunlop readily assented to the gallant Colonel's proposition, and suggested an amendment, to the effect — that mercy should be shewn to such of the offenders, as Her Majesty should think it right. He would be glad to see back all the misguided, and those who were misled, but he would not endorse the application for the return of those, who, if they came back, it would be the want of power rather than of inclination, if they did not further mischief.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Moffatt thought that if the well understood wishes of the people were properly expressed, it would contribute to promote the ends of justice ; he could not, however, vote for the pardon of all without distinction.<sup>33</sup> ((He)) thought the interference of the House might be injurious.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Attorney General Ogden hoped that the motion would be withdrawn, it was the undoubted prerogative of the Crown ; and when a similar measure had been proposed in the British House of Commons, Sir Robert Peel had refused to entertain it, on that principle he considered it an unconstitutional measure.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Harrison felt the difficulty of making the application general — or, indeed, of making it at all. He was glad to find that no complaint was made against the Government, for any want of attention to such cases as had been brought before them. The utmost anxiety had been felt to comply with such applications as had been made. It was, undoubtedly, the prerogative of the Crown to pardon, and not of that House, though he was not disposed to say there was any thing unconstitutional in an Address, petitioning that the attribute of mercy might be displayed on this occasion.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Viger spoke in strong terms of the cruelties which had been inflicted on the Lower Canadians, and supported the motion.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Hincks said he had expected a measure of the kind would have long since emanated from the treasury benches. — He did not intend to convey blame to the government ; he was aware that in many instances its clemency had been exercised, which had deserved and obtained the gratitude of those who were the subjects of it, and he should vote for the motion.<sup>38</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab would be sorry to hurt the feelings of any one, but he could not support the measure, and very pointedly alluded to some demagogues who have misled the country into ACTS OF REBELLION ... and ((he said)) that he was treading upon a mine, which a single spark would have exploded.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Roblin also addressed the Committee ; he deprecated the conduct of the leaders of the rebellion.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Merritt supported the measure, and said the leaders of the rebellion were now become perfectly harmless.<sup>41</sup>

Mr. Morin thought the measure would have a good effect upon the country generally.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Aylwin ... said that the trial and conviction of these men by a Court Martial was illegal.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Chesley said he would oppose the measure in all shapes and in all its stages. — He disclaimed vindictive motives, but said he'd had this house burned over his head and his family turned into the fields in the most wanton manner.<sup>44</sup>

Mr. Day contended that the House was not the channel of mercy, but that it was the prerogative of the Crown, tho' he did not agree with his learned friend the Attorney General East, that it would be unconstitutional for that House to address Her Majesty.<sup>45</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Resolution reported.

And Mr. Barthe reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth :

Resolution.

Resolved — That it is the opinion of this Committee, that an humble Address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, as representing the Crown in this Province, praying the Exercise of the Royal Prerogative for granting a free pardon, indemnity, and oblivion of all crimes, offences, and misdemeanors, "That the Royal mercy be extended to such of Her Majesty's misguided subjects as may be compatible with the safety of the Crown, and of this Province," connected with the late unhappy troubles in the late Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, committed, or supposed to have been committed, within the last four years ; and of all attainders and outlawries during the same period, and of all sentences or judgments, from Civil or Military Courts, amounting to such attainders and outlawries ; most humbly assuring His Excellency that whenever it may please Her Most Gracious Majesty, through Her Representatives, and out of Her own free Will, pleasure, and mere motion, to transmit a Bill to that effect to the Provincial Legislature, the same will be received and accepted by the Legislative Assembly, with humble gratitude, and will tend still more to confirm Her Majesty's faithful subjects in this Province in their affection to their Sovereign, and to strengthen the connexion which happily exists between this Province and Her Majesty's Empire.<sup>9</sup>

((Question Re : Petition from Three Rivers.))

In the Legislative Assembly, in answer to an inquiry addressed to the Attorney General, East, what was the fate of a petition from Three Rivers; he Attorney Gen. (Mr. Ogden) replied, if the Hon. Member had been in his place for the last two weeks, he would have known that the petition had received every attention which it deserved, but he would not pledge himself to a compliance with its requisition.<sup>47</sup>

Mr. Aylwin thought the petitioners from Three Rivers had just cause of complaint against the Attorney General.<sup>48</sup>

There is evidence that many more speakers took part in this debate than any of the papers reported. For example, the WESTERN HERALD, 15 September copying KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 1 September 1841, noted that "A good deal of discussion took place ... a discussion of about 4 hours...." The BRITISH COLONIST, 8 September 1841, wrote: "A great many others whose sentiments are not given, spoke on different sides during the debate, but to repeat the sayings of all, would engross the entire sheet of a newspaper without adding to the stock either of public edification or amusement."

"Your Committee, after a careful consideration of the Resolutions referred to them, are of opinion that the means of inquiring into the laws and practices of the Feudal Tenure, with a view to its gradual extinction, would be by the appointment of a Commission for that purpose; they have therefore prepared a Resolution, on which to found an Address to His Excellency, the Governor General, which, together with the draft of a Bill to authorize a voluntary commutation of lands held under that tenure, they beg leave to recommend to the consideration of Your Honourable House."

House in Committee on Message on Public Improvements.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to Public Improvements, together with the documents accompanying the same, and other references being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Gilchrist took the chair of the Committee.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Harrison rose to submit to the House the resolutions he had the honour to lay before them, connected with the public improvements of the country. In the Printed paper the improvement of the St. Lawrence Canal was placed in the second class. He confessed he did not coincide precisely with his hon. friend as to the propriety of placing it there; at all events there was no reason why that important work should not be commenced as soon as the necessary funds could be obtained. He was quite aware of the importance of that great measure. It had been remarked that we had the benefit of the Rideau, and that the expenditure contemplated for the St. Lawrence was unnecessary.<sup>11</sup> He happened to be at Montreal last year, when a report prevailed that an accident had occurred to one of the locks on the Rideau, and he was witness to the anxiety which existed on the apprehension of such an event at the commencement of the season.<sup>12</sup> A discussion arose as to whether the Canal should be on the north or south side of the River. Engineers (sic) had, he believed, reported that the site on the south was as good or better than that on the north. If so, and the capital necessary would be advanced by the company which had been alluded to at 1½ or 2 per cent lower than it could be got elsewhere, it would of course be desirable to obtain it — but if it was a less advantageous site, gentllemen would agree with him that the saving of 2 per cent would not probably be an equivalent. —<sup>13</sup> He thought that where so large interests were involved, we should have two outlets.<sup>14</sup>

It was obvious that the consideration of the resolution involved a consideration of the question of the Bank of Issue, and as gentlemen seemed desirous of taking up that Resolution first he would consent to it, though it did not appear to him to be the proper course. He then proceeded to answer several objections which had been made to the scheme, one was that it would curtail the accomodation at present derived from the Banks, he denied that it could have that effect, whilst it certainly would have the effect of preventing the irregularity which so frequently occurs with regard to discount. Banks would be able to use all their circulation without the fear of their notes being returned upon them, or demand for gold and silver, it made no part of the measure to meddle with Bank capital. On the contrary the Chartered Banks may if the Bank of Issue is established have all their charters extended if they desired. But it was said that it would diminish the profits of Bankers — several respectable Bankers had asserted that the contrary would be the case, that by an increase of business their profits would be increased. The profits in Banking are stated to be large, and the Committee have contemplated some arrangement by which the interests of the Bank may be properly protected. The Commercial Bank, he had understood, had done all it could for the accomodation of the public, and there was no desire on the part of the Government to do injury to that or any other Bank.<sup>15</sup> He heard it stated that the whole of the Bank profits amounted to £130,000 per annum. Now, as he apprehended it, if the Commercial Bank, for example, had a circultion (sic) of £205,000 in round numbers, and was obliged to keep in its vaults, one third of that amount in specie, the loss which would be sustained, would be the interest on the difference between £205,000 and £70,000, surely a sum not sufficient to bring ruin and desolation, as had been by some prognosticated. But he, Mr. H., believed that no such loss, even as that, would accrue, and that it was possible, considering the comparative rate of interest here and in England, that a beneficial arrangement may be made.<sup>16</sup> The object of the Government was to benefit the country, and he believed that it was capable of demonstration that the Bank of Issue would have that effect. Money in Canada is worth 8 per cent, in England 3½ to 5; why was it? because of its scarcity, the want of capital and its insecurity. Capitalists in England would gladly loan their money in this country if they could be persuaded it was equally secure, where they would get 8 per cent instead of 4. It has been said that this measure would expose the country to political danger (Hear, hear.) Nothing could be less true. The proposed bank was not a bank of deposit or of discount, it was merely a bank for creating one million of money, or so much more as the exigencies of the country may require, a mere money arrangement, and no more capable of being a political engine than the mint was where bullion was coined into sovereigns. The advantages must be obvious to every one, it would increase the circulation, it would beyond all other measures add to the stability of the credit of the Province, the Notes of this Bank would circulate over great parts of the United States, in consequence of the adjustment of the currency, and it would add to the revenues of the Province immediately £20,000 per annum, and enable us to pay the interest, £400,000 at 5 per cent, and which revenue as the business of the country is increasing, would always be increasing in proportion. It had also been suggested that it might be desirable to make the large notes, above £50, payable in London, which it is believed would be a greater convenience to commercial men.<sup>17</sup> He concluded by saying he should now sit down, and listen with great attention to what other gentlemen, who were fully qualified to discuss the measure, should have to say on the subject.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Merritt objected to the discussion of his amendment, and the Bank of Issue at the same time; and inquired of the hon. mover which of those subjects he preferred having first disposed of.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Harrison replied that it was immaterial; he would take the sense of the House, first, on the amendment.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. ((Merritt)) said he would confine his remarks wholly to that one subject. The hon. mover objected to dividing his scheme — that it was an evidence of a weak government to pledge any particular revenue, for any particular object; instance Spain in pledging the revenue derived from the Quick Silver Mines — that we should pledge a certain revenue to raise a certain sum, from a consolidated fund, and apply that to those various objects as circumstances required. Mr. M. dissented from those opinions, he could easily understand the necessity of European Governments pledging specific revenues, to receive Loans to expend in War, or waste them in preparing material, from which a return could never be hoped — but the same reasoning was not applicable to Canada — we were about contracting a Loan for a particular object, one which would yield a revenue when finished, sufficient to repay the Capital expended for its construction. All we require is credit; to loan this capital for a limited period until the revenue anticipated from those Tolls could be raised; — he would not delay a single day, neither for the credit of the House, Government or the North American Company — if they found it ((to)) their interest to extend this credit, well and good, we would receive it thankfully; but if we ever expect to improve our country, we must rely on our own exertions. Our resources are abundant and our security undoubted; which he would shew from the following simple statements reduced to figures. At the close of this year the Canal from Lachine to Coteau du Lac and the Welland should be finished; the widening the Lachine commenced, and the towing-path made above the Long Sault, and the Locks at the Gallows and Rapid Plain commenced.

The adjoining state of New York where it is universally admitted — that they have adopted the best system, and effected more improvements within a year, than any other government or country known. They created a revenue consisting of 2½ per cent. on Auction Sales, and 12½ cents and recently 6 per Bushel on Salt, for the express purpose of paying the interest on the debt incurred for a specific object, viz. constructing the Erie and Northern

Canals. $10,000,000 were borrowed, the canals made, and in 1836 paid interest and principal on their cost out of the revenues collected from those canals, which last year was upwards of $1,700,000. They have constructed nine lateral canals, connecting navigable waters to extend 4500 miles, and loaned $4,500,000 to private companies to construct other canals and railroads. They are at this moment in debt $15,000,000, and have undertaken works to a similar amount; for the payment of which they rely on the revenue from tolls alone. The auction and salt duties vary from 3 to $400,000: they have no other revenue whatever except the tolls, from which $400,000 per year is paid for the support of their civil government. In 1816 the most sanguine supporters of that policy ventured to estimate within 20 years, 250,000 tons would be borne to the Hudson and other canals: in 1836, 697,347 tons was the amount: in 1840 we find a return of 1,435,713 tons; in the same year (( ))<sup>21</sup> tons of merchandize. On the St. Lawrence and Rideau we estimate about 100,000 tons in all, only 17,000 tons of merchandize. Timber is not included, but may be averaged at 100,000 tons. May we not with safety estimate in the year 1845, when our entire line is finished to divert from the Hudson and Erie, together with the increase of the western country, at least 400,000 tons; if so, at the moderate calculation of 5s. per ton the Welland and St. Lawrence, we will receive £200,000 per year. I am happy to find that the hon. gentleman has admitted that the Rideau Canal is not to be a barrier to this improvement. Having already shown that the work has not cheapened the transportation, I call the attention of the committee to the great saving to the country by opening this canal: from New Orleans to Cincinnati, a distance of 1600 miles, 30 s. per ton are paid; from Montreal to Prescott, a distance of 130 miles, we pay at present from £2 10s. to £3 15s. per ton, at the same rate as on the Mississippi, it would be reduced to 3s. 3d. per ton,
 To which add toll, 5s.

And it gives,

7s. 3d. per ton, (sic)

The report of the Board of Works in Ohio for 1840, shows that the tolls on their canals already pay 7 per cent. interest on the cost of their construction; thus forming but one line of the numerous communications leading to Lake Erie, which is the focus or point, where this immense trade will be concentrated. This House is pledged by the amendment made by my hon. friend from Montreal, to connect Lake Huron with the Ocean. I have no doubt the means can be procured for this object, and I hope it will be clogged with no other.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Buchanan rose, and suggested the withdrawal of the amendment, the Bank of Issue to be taken as the vote upon the present occasion.<sup>23</sup> ((He)) must oppose the Bank of Issue. He denied the assumption of the hon. Secretary (Mr. Harrison) that "the only difficulty was to be found in the existence of the present Banks, and that were we to begin again we would adopt the system of one Bank of Issue." He (Mr. Buchanan) thought that no new country in adopting the system of Banking could afford to theorise in the matter. The simple question would be, under what plan shall we best emerge from a barter system and attain the two grand objects of procuring our supplies of imported articles at the lowest or cash price, and of securing the highest price for our grain by increasing competition for it, by bringing a bank capital of our own to compete with the foreigner or merchant in its purchase. In the commencement (to suppose the thing for a moment) this Bank of Issue would require to have issued to individuals because there were no Banks in existence? And even now, after upsetting a bank system to which we are indebted for all our advancement, and against which no complaint has ever been made, Government would leave us dependant (sic) for a new system on the co-operation of these same chartered institutions, with whom we had broken faith most grossly. If the chartered banks should wind up their affairs the distress of the country would by its clamour soon transform the Bank of Issue into a bank of discount also, and thus there would be established in Canada, by a side wind, the most dangerous political engine that could be conceived in the hands of government. He (Mr. Buchanan) never would commit the fraud on the public of founding issues of paper payable on demand, on the credit of a country liable to so many contingencies as Canada; and he foresaw that (their own interests to one side) the chartered banks might decline being accessory to the circulation of such paper, seeing that, though in doing so they themselves might be safe enough, as keeping a sharp look out that the Government securities were not very much depreciated, yet they would by taking the notes of the Bank of Issue be instrumental in inducing the ignorant to place confidence in them, not aware how many events and circumstances could operate to the depreciation of our Provincial debentures, or in fact that at present they are very much under par. It is a favorite illustration with the hon. Secretary to say that "this would in fact be a paper mint." He (Mr.

Buchanan) thought that as metal is necessary to the coin, so convertibility is necessary to the security on which Bank paper should be issued, and Canada stocks are neither convertible nor at par. He (Mr. Buchanan) must blame Government for thrusting on Canada so precipitately, without intimation, and wholly uncalled for, a measure of this important nature. We know that a committee of the House of Commons had declined reporting in favour of the principle being applied even to a country like England, where the chief object is to regulate its own money, and where they have not that additional object in every new country of inducing capital to come among us. We know also that the Committee on Banking appointed by this House of Assembly the present Session, would not report in favour of the Bank of Issue, after it had been the subject of the most prolonged discussion. Under these circumstances it was surely improper for Government to make the adopting the Bank of Issue a condition of our public improvements being proceeded with. — He (Mr. Buchanan) could only suppose that it was wanted to have it to say that the principle is in existence in some country, so as to attempt it in Scotland, and afterwards transfer it to England. The possibility of its affecting the existence of every great interest in the country formed no part of the consideration. In Canada, in fact, the principle was to be tested as in "corpore vili." He (Mr. Buchanan) never listened to a greater absurdity than the position of the honourable member for Oxford (Mr. Hincks) — "that the object of paper was to circulate just exactly the same amount as otherwise would be in circulation in coin." — Why sir, the circulation would be reduced to almost nothing in Canada, were the circulation of paper abandoned. The views of that hon. member and his (Mr. B's.) were as apart as day and night. "He advocated what is practically a barter system, I advocate a banking system," he would have our views as limited as our means, and his advocacy of such a state of things is the more dangerous, that we are now involved in another system so different, and that we are indebted to the Banks, Three Millions of Pounds, on the faith of the coming Crop. We could not (were it desirable) make a fresh start and adopt a barter system, without going through the ordeal of a general bankruptcy. The hon. member (Mr. Hincks) wants the Banks to surrender back ! to the people £35,000 which they make by circulating notes, but he forgets that the people in Canada never gave away anything, that the presence of the Banks created the advantage which they enjoy, that with their existence it would vanish and the profits of a Bank of Issue would be left insufficient even to pay the salaries of the Commissioners ! The hon. member makes use of popular language when he said that "their profits should be derived from their customers, and not from the public at large," as if these customers will not make the public pay for all the disadvantages common to us all. This he (Mr. Buchanan) contended was a country in which the Bank circulation is held chiefly by those who owe the Banks, or who owe those who owe the Banks. The Government plan amounts in fact to this ; it throws open Banking after it has done away all inducements to Banks ; it proposes to make Canals and public highways after having stifled the trade which was to use them, it attempts to raise the public credit at the expense of the Commerce of the Country, not seeing that to reduce trade is to reduce the revenue, and as a consequence the public credit. He (Mr. Buchanan) would recommend Government to raise the required revenue by means of a tax on produce, cattle, &c. coming from the United States for Home consumption. In this way not only would a revenue be raised, but Government would be performing a duty to the Canadian Farmer by protecting his industry, and he (Mr. Buchanan) could tell the present Executive that without doing so, they will not long retain these Benches in this agricultural Country. (Hear, hear.)<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Holmes said that he experienced no little embarrassment in rising to express his opinions upon the Resolutions of his honorable friend the member for Kingston — the whole series had been so ably discussed by those who had preceded him that he would not have troubled the house with any remarks was it not that he felt how ill he would discharge his duty to his constituents did he not avail himself of the opportunity afforded him of hastily reviewing the whole scheme (sic) now under discussion. The Resolutions of the honorable Secretary are based upon the promised million and a half, announced from the highest quarter at the opening of the Session ; which million and a half it is now suggested should be applied to the liquidation of the existing debt of the Province in the first place ; and the residue turned over to the recommended improvements — those improvements the honorable member for North Lincoln has strenuously urged should be confined to his own grand scheme for connecting and making navigable the waters of the great valley of the St. Lawrence. The honorable Surveyor General maintains that internal communication is of paramount necessity and I agree with that honorable gentleman in part, at all events ; what use will be the St. Lawrence Canal if the farmers in the back settlements are unable to avail themselves of its benefits — will the whole population of the interior not have just cause to complain if the entire resources of the Country are appropriated to the opening of a Road to the great markets of Montreal and Quebec, for American produce, while they are debarred by a selfish policy from participating in the advantage — they, as inhabitants of this Province have a right to demand that a portion of this million and a half should be laid out in the formation of Roads which will enable them to lay down upon the borders of those great lakes the produce of their farms. The deepening of lake St. Peter is also one of those improvements which must be attended to — its advantages its absolute necessity has been clearly demonstrated by my hon. colleague for Montreal ; but Mr. Chairman, why should particular portions of the works now under consideration be insisted upon by honorable members ; why should not the whole of the works suggested in the Resolutions before this Committee be undertaken ? There appears to me Mr. Chairman to be some mystification — we are told this million and a half is to be raised for the purpose, first of extinguishing the existing debt — now bearing a high rate of interest, and the residue to go towards the improvements recommended — leaving the Province to borrow the requisite remaining sums on the best terms it may, to complete the works. The whole of the works classed under the heads No. 1 and 2 will cost £844,000 — and thereto the estimates for the St. Lawrence, — the Lachine Canal, Lake St. Peter — the sum total is £1,629,300 Halifax Currency — borrow the £1,500,000 Sterling at the low rate of interest which under the the (sic) guarantee of the Imperial Government we have been promised, and apply it to the construction of those grand works, and leave the existing debt where it now lays — what surely have we that this million and a half to be borrowed at  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent, if applied to the redemption of the existing debt — what security have we I say, that we shall not be constrained to pay as high a rate of interest upon the money requisite for the completion of these improvements as now we pay on the already created loan — no — get the promised million and a half and apply it to the improvements — if we can then get sufficient to pay off the old loan upon as good terms, borrow it and reduce the rate of interest now chargeable on the Province, but do not rest the completion of these works upon a contingency. Ways and means are required to pay the interest on the new loan, and a Banking scheme is suggested — there are other means and ample means too, Mr. Chairman without resorting to that measure — the import duties upon British goods now produce £45,000 add  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent to to (sic) these duties, —  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent upon the million and a half Sterling is but £52,500, consequently you have but £7,500 more to provide — place that upon distilleries — in Lower Canada no duty upon those establishments is levied, and in this section of the country the amount levied is I understand too insignificant to mention. — A few years past 14,000 puncheons of West India rum was imported, upon which duties equivalent to £84,000 was paid — the distilleries have abstracted that amount from the Revenues of the Province — and it is but fair that they should be made to contribute now. Besides you have articles of luxury to tax. Wines and Brandies — there is no difficulty providing for the interest of the debt, if the whole of the improvements are undertaken and completed — generally they will pay for themselves and not require any interference with the Banks, as now by law established — what will be the consequence if the Bank of Issue scheme is carried out, the whole mercantile body will be so hampered as to shake their credit, and produce confusion and ruin to that very trade on which depends the resources from which is to be derived the means of paying the Interest upon the money requisite for these improvements. The Banks have now in circulation in round numbers £1,000,000 Currency — the several Institutions possess as the guard against this circulation £350,000 in Specie, but the amount lodged in deposits is also great — at least £600,000 now a part of their Specie is of course kept to meet demands upon them for deposits made ; consequently but a portion of the £350,000 is applicable to redeem their notes in circulation — well, we will say this is £250,000 it is evident therefore, that should the Banks be compelled to redeem their issues — that they must forthwith reduce their loans, and in the exact proportion curtail the accommodation afforded to the country. And I will ask hon. gentlemen, and there are many here capable of judging — is the country in a situation to admit of £750,000 being withdrawn from the accommodation now afforded by the Banks ; will the Province benefit by any accession (sic) of Revenue from the Bank of Issue to an extent equivalent to the injury it will and must suffer by the prostration of so large a portion of the trading community — as inevitably will be prostrated should the Banks be compelled to draw in their loans, or possibly to wind up their business. — The public papers have shewn to hon. members what are the feelings and what are the fears of the Commercial community. — Public Meetings have been held in Montreal, Quebec and elsewhere and loudly has the scheme been deprecated — I therefore call upon this house to refuse its assent to that part of the hon. Secretary's proposal and while I gladly join in every effort to carry out the grand scheme of improvements now under consideration, I must record my vote against an interference with the existing Banking Institutions of the Country, which without fear of contradiction I assert, merit the confidence of the people and the protection of the Legislature.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Morris wished to ask the hon. Secretary whether on the existence of the Bank of Issue depended the carrying into effect the public improvements.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Harrison said he had before stated that the Government had determined on not borrowing money till a revenue was found to pay the interest, and if the revenue to be derived from the Bank of Issue was not available, either some other source of revenue must be supplied, or the sum to be borrowed must be diminished.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Johnston said the Giraffe bill (the District Council Bill) and the Bank of Issue were evidently wedded together, the Bank would be a shaving shop, and a ruinous one — was a wild scheme of Lord Sydenham, and would be so much a political engine that that house never need meet again, (a laugh) — just as wild a scheme as that of his hon. friend (Mr. Merritt) on the St. Lawrence Canal.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Moffatt wished that the Secretary would allow of the order of taking these resolutions into their consideration being changed.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Harrison said he would have greatly preferred pursuing the course laid down in the resolutions, but nevertheless if it was the wish of hon. gentlemen to depart from it he must yield to their decision.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Moffatt was favourable to the 4th Resolution ((of) the Bank of Issue, (Mr. Harrison having consented that it should be the first put to the vote,) not however to come into operation this session. In answer to Mr. Holmes' remark that £750,000 would be withdrawn from circulation, he asked, whether that amount, when paid into the bank coffers, by such withdrawal, would not be transferred to the credit of the stockholders, and whether in that case they would not seek the means of investing it in other speculations that offered a remunerating profit? the banks, he said, would not be called upon at 24 hours notice to stop their issues. As to where the capital of the proposed bank was to be derived from, he would observe, that all monies paid into the Receiver General's hands, would be deposited in the Bank of Issues (sic). The time of issuing notes as at present done by the colonial banks, would be limited by the government, but those at present in circulation among the community, were entirely at the disposal of the holders, to do with them as they thought proper — subject to no controul whatever on the part of the government. As to the bank being a political engine, the 4th clause giving to the Governor the appointment of the commissioners in addition to the patronage invested in such commissioners by the 5th clause, certainly gave to the executive a great influence over the Bank, which he proposed so far to modify, as to submit an amendment when the bill came before the house, restricting the removal of the commissioners to an address from both houses. He would also propose that branches of the bank for public convenience, be established in various parts of the Province, and that the Receiver General be expressly enjoined by the bill to keep his account with the bank.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Hincks had already, more than once, expressed his decided opinion in favour of the principle of the Resolution submitted by the hon. and learned Secretary for the West. The object of that Resolution was, that the Government representing the people at large, should become the sole issuers of the paper currency of this country; and that the revenue to be derived from that circulation should go into the public Treasury, and constitute a portion of the "ways and means" to complete those great public improvements which are so loudly called for by the country. It was not, however, solely as a means of obtaining revenue that he (Mr. Hincks) thought that this Bank should be established. He believed that it would be the means of giving to the country a sound currency, not liable to the contractions and expansions to which Banks of Discount and Deposits are necessarily liable. In his (Mr. H's) opinion, the paper circulation of a country should be precisely what the specie circulation would be if there were no Banks; and that would be the amount requisite to exchange the commodities of the country. He could not admit the principle, that Bank issues should be resorted to as a means of creating capital. The advantage of a paper currency was — 1st. its convenience, — 2nd. its cheapness. If a million of money be required to exchange our commodities, and that by substituting a million of paper for coin, we can obtain the interest on £750,000, reserving £250,000 in specie to meet the demands of the public, it is evident that a clear gain of £45,000 per annum will accrue to the issues. At present that revenue is derived by certain privileged Corporations. It was contemplated by the Resolution that it should go into the public chest. What are the objections raised to a proposition apparently so very advantageous to the public? It had been said by his hon. friend from Toronto (Mr. Buchanan) that this was an experiment that no other country is willing to try. But let it be recollected that there are difficulties in the way in other countries which it is much to be hoped, do not exist here. — He (Mr. H.) alluded to the power and influence of the interested parties (the Banks.) The principle of a Bank of Issue was advocated by some of the leading Bankers, and writers on political economy, both in England and the United States, and could not, therefore, be considered a crude theory. The hon. member for Toronto has stated that his calculation depends on the state of the crops, and on the foreign exchanges, and that it would be extremely dangerous to limit the issue of Bank paper. In this opinion he (Mr. H.) entirely concurred; but he had yet to learn that any limitation to the issues was contemplated. The Bill provided that in case the issue did not exceed a million, three fourths should be invested in securities, and one fourth in bullion, but all over a million should be vested in bullion alone. This proviso did not restrict the issues in the slightest degree. As to the provision that a portion of the Securities should be furnished by the chartered Banks, that had nothing whatever to do with the resolution before the Committee. It was one of the details of the bill which might be amended, but it was right to state most distinctly that this was a deviation from the original plan of the Government, which was to have the issues based solely on Provincial Securities, and on Coin. He (Mr. H.) had warmly advocated the alteration, and he did so, not that he liked the principle, but to relieve the mercantile community from the danger of being suddenly called upon to pay up these debts to the Bankers. It certainly did appear strange to him that the hon. member for Toronto, and the hon. member for Beauharnois should object to this provision, which was introduced solely for the benefit of those very classes with which those hon. gentlemen were most particularly connected. But if it were deemed inexpedient to make laws to (sic) the chartered Banks, an amendment to the Bill could be proposed when the proper time came. The hon. member for the City of Montreal (Mr. Moffatt), after advocating with great ability the principle of the Resolution, had declared that he would not consent to carry the measure into effect during the present session. He (Mr. H.) would state the grounds on which he was opposed to the delay suggested by that hon. member. We were about introducing a large amount of capital into the country to go on with public works. Could a better opportunity be taken of establishing the circulation of the Banks? All the money required for these works might be paid in notes of the Bank, which would thus be circulated in every section of the Province, from Gaspé to Port Sarnia. But there was another objection to delay. The hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Holmes) had forcibly urged, and it was the only argument that he did urge, the danger of compelling the Banks to withdraw their loans to the public. He (Mr. H.) entirely concurred with the hon. member, that this was the great objection to the scheme; but to relieve the Banks and the Public, it was proposed to loan to them half the amount (sic) which they had at present under discount, on the basis of their circulation; and surely if a reduction of the Bank loans was to take place, it could not be effected at a more seasonable time than when so large an amount of money, as the proposed outlay on public works was introduced into the country. These were the reasons which induced him (Mr. H.) to believe that if the principle were a sound one, and for the benefit of the people at large, no time should be lost in carrying it into operation. Several objections to particular clauses in the Bill made by the hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Moffatt), in some of which he (Mr. H.) fully concurred; but these had nothing to do with the Resolution now before the Committee, which simply affirmed the principles of a Bank of Issue. He (Mr. H.) would go as far as any hon. member to divest the Bank from all Executive influence. He contended, however, that such influence could not be exercised. The limits to the issues was prescribed by Parliament, the nature of the securities was also expressly defined, and unless it was supposed that the Government would conspire with the Commissioners (sic) to defraud the Banks, there could be no danger whatever from its influence. — He (Mr. H.) did not believe that even our most corrupt Governors would have been parties to direct fraud. Having now answered the objections which had been made by hon. gentlemen both to the principles affirmed in the Resolution, and to some of the details of the printed Bill, which was not strictly before the Committee, He (Mr. H.) would conclude by reminding hon. gentlemen, that if they were determined to go on with public improvements, "ways and means" must be provided to pay the interest, and the Bank of Issue afforded the means of getting a large and increasing revenue, without pressing in the slightest degree upon the people.<sup>32</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said he had heard many members complain that they were taken by surprise on the subject of the Bank of Issue Bill. How it could have happened to them he could not say; as for himself, for the last three months he had resided in Kingston, he had heard of nothing else but discussions on its merits; unless when these were occasionally agreeably diversified with argumentations infinitely more vociferous than logical, on the merits and demerits of the District Council Bill. It was a curious circumstance relative to the measure, that not only every thing he heard in its favor, but much that he had heard against it, tended to confirm him in the belief that it was a wise and salutary measure. The hon. member for Toronto, for instance, had said that we may as well make a metallic currency at once, as a paper currency which was equal in value to Bullion. The opinions of that gentleman ought to be received with the greatest respect by this House, as he and all his tribe dealt largely in monish, but to his untutored intellect it appears a sharp objection to a pound note that it was as good as a sovereign; as to his fear of the good faith of the Governor and the Government, he would remind the hon. gentleman of a proverb which he must have heard in his own country: that "ill doing were ill dreading." As for the interference of Government in Banking institutions, two philosophers, at least as liberal as any in this house, — Berthom and Cobbett, were of opinion not only that the Government should interfere with Banks, but that the Government should be the sole Banker of a nation; and that in a commercial country especially, the profits obtained by this arrangement would entirely or nearly supersede the necessity of taxation, direct or indirect. On this continent various schemes have been resorted to, and all in vain, to render the system of Banking by chartered joint stock companies secure to the public. The Americans had tried their safety fund, which by taking a certain sum from the prudent and provident to pay the debts of the thoughtless and speculators, had thought to attain this object, but it proved abortive, and right it should do so, for it was on the same unjust principle that a Merchant or a Tailor in London charged 1s. 3d. more than he otherwise would do to make those who pay but too well, balance on his books with those who never pay at all. It is an undoubted fact that no modern country ever thrived without paper money — witness Spain, Portugal, and Italy; but we may have too much of a good thing; witness our neighbors in the United States, where a newspaper the size of the London Times is published weekly to inform its subscribers what Banks within the Union are good, what bad, and what indifferent. We have not arrived yet at that happy state, because our Banks have a sufficiency of business to remove from the temptation of discounting bad or indifferent paper, but let the Banks increase and multiply and replenish the Province, and we will soon be in the same enviable condition. Now is the time to prevent that evil, before so many are interested in the preservation of it, as to render its cure impossible, and the Bank of Issue as proposed, is the only feasible remedy that I can see for the mischief. It has been asserted that Government debentures are no security, because they varied in price — we will be much obliged if any gentleman will tell us what does not vary in price — not gold or silver, certainly, for if you look at the Price current you will find their marketable value given as regularly as that of Pork and Flour. The hon. member for Richelieu had said, give us a sound state of Banking and you will have no need of a Bank of Issue. — I fully concur with him, now have we a sound state of Banking, are joint stock companies with charters which limit their losses and leave their gains virtually illimitable, a sound state of Banking, — no, Government has a right to interfere with them — they are the creatures and creation of Government, and what Government has made it has a right to mend and modify. In Scotland we have met a sound state of Banking, on the foundation of Capital, chiefly vested either in lands or in the funds — and every partner of the Bank is liable to his last shilling or his last acre, and such has been the beneficial effect of this system, that though the landed proprietor(s) of a whole country have been ruined during a century and a half, the public have never lost one shilling by a Scotch Bank note. Much has been said about the depreciation of the currency, what did the hon. member for Toronto require but a depreciation of the paper currency, and give that for a dollar which was not a dollar, nor worth a dollar. Or to be consistent he ought to recommend that we call in all the coin, as was formerly practiced in Europe, and still is by the Sublime Porte; adulterate it, and reissue it at the same nominal value, or perhaps, according to Mr. Atwood of Birmingham, whose system I, nor I believe, he himself (n)ever very clearly comprehended, clip a shilling in two, and make each half pass for a shilling. — Mr. Viger had stated the case of the assignats in France, they fell to be worth nothing, he says because they were Government paper, that regime in consequence has ever been esteemed bad logic; the assignats fell in value because the revolutionary movements of the mob at that period, by tearing up every institution of society by the roots, utterly destroying public confidence, as political revolution will do more or less according to its intensity. Witness the revolution in commerce during the passing of our own reform bill; the wealthy classes hoarded their money and converted it into Bullion to be ready for the struggle or the bolt which ever might be deemed very advisable; all tradesmen who deal in luxuries, the Coat maker of Long Acre, the Jewellers and Goldsmiths throughout the City, even dealers in the fine fabricks (sic) and Brussels lace — say even the fashionable Booksellers had to give publishers royal quartos at a guinea and a half, and take to half crown duodecimo. The assignats did not fall because they were Government paper, but because the rabble had destroyed confidence in Government, and in every thing else, in Heaven or on Earth.<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Thompson considered that the Bank of Issue would be a great political Engine, that the government was too strong already, that it would sweep away all other Banks, that the capital now employed in them would be driven back upon the proprietors of it, — that they not knowing what to do with their money would become speculators in wheat, and having the command of the market would buy it at their own price, to the ruin of the farmer. That the effect of this Bank would be such as in fact to recoil upon Europe.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Moffatt then moved that it is inexpedient to pass the Bank of Issue Bill this session.<sup>35</sup>

((This was)) seconded by Mr. Dunscomb. ((He)) had been on the Select Committee to whom this measure was first submitted, and was amongst those who looked upon some change, some system as desirable — at present there was an absence of all system. We had companies with charters, companies without charters, and individuals, in some cases irresponsible and even unknown individuals issuing paper currency; and what he thought the country required was a Bank that could act as a regulator of the paper issued in this Province, and secure a uniform and sound circulating medium, and he believed that was the recorded opinion of a majority of the select Committee. But that Committee had, after the most patient, and he might say even laborious investigation, come to the determination that there were insuperable obstacles at present to the establishment of that Bank. He might now be told that those obstacles were only rubbish and could be removed. There were six Banks with long charters yet to run out, granted by the Legislature of this Province, and then there was a Royal Charter lately granted to a Bank with one million capital, and which was deemed of sufficient importance by the select committee to induce them to represent the subject to that honourable House, and to recommend the Legislature to address a remonstrance to Her Majesty on that very subject. Now if this Bank thought they might take away charters that they themselves had granted, did they think they could repeal a Royal Charter, and unless that could be done the whole scheme was utterly impracticable. It was the duty of the honorable conductor of this measure to shew them how these charters were to be got over, for that honourable gentleman well knew that the very vitality of the scheme was in its furnishing all and the only paper issued in the Province, — if the sole issue of paper could not be secured to it then must the whole scheme fall to the ground. But allowing the difficulty of existing charters were got over, he (Mr. Dunscombe) still hoped that this Committee would entertain the amendment to postpone all proceedings in the matter for the present. He begged that Committee to reflect a moment on the consequences of now pressing that measure on the people. He contended that the country was not prepared for it, the public mind was excited to a degree that was alarming on the subject, the good people of Montreal and Quebec were in a perfect state of ferment, (hear, hear, hear) — in commercial communities it was well known that panic, that fright, was next to death, — and he shrunk from the great responsibility of pressing the measure under these circumstances, but he also contended that the gentlemen who had charge of the measure were no better prepared than the country was for it. They had not matured their scheme as it ought to be, they required time to perfect it, for he would say that a more imperfect Bill than he held in his hand had never been presented to that House. He asked if this bill established a Bank simply as a regulator of the Currency. This was no Bank of Issue. Issue paper it might, but it was also a Bank of discount, aye, and on the largest scale.<sup>36</sup>

The hon. gentleman was here interrupted by Mr. Hincks, who said that the bill was not under consideration; the Committee, however, appeared to think differently.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb resumed. The hon. member said we have nothing to do with the Bill, but he (Mr. Dunscombe) said we had every thing to do with the bill. It was idle to endeavour to lead hon. gentlemen to think that they had nothing to do with the Bill. — What, he would ask, was the Bill printed and placed in the hands of every hon. member for? Now he would caution the Committee, and tell them that if they adopted the resolution, they passed, virtually, the bill, it might undergo some alteration, but nothing affecting its principle. The Bill he held in his hand was for a Bank of discount, and of the most dangerous principle, for it lent its money for discounted notes, private securities. Now he was astonished that the hon. Secretary could for a moment advocate so monstrous a proposition, to lend the public money for private security, and the judge of those securities to be Commissioners at the pleasure of the Crown, — the thing was impracticable; and Mr. Chairman, why, I should like to ask, should the Banks receive this money at  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent, — why should the Chartered Banks enjoy so valuable and exclusive privilege as to make 3 or 4 per cent out of this money, for, Sir, you must bear in mind that the hon. Secretary has earnestly denied that the Banks have any claim on the country: that being the case, then why Sir is not your name inserted in that Bill, and mine, and that of all other hon. members; surely we would like jointly with the Banks to enjoy the opportunity of making 3 or 4 per cent per annum out of this money. Sir, I reiterate the plan can never be entertained, and I solemnly protest against the money of this Province ever being lent on private securities. (Hear, hear, hear.) The original proposition, as I understood it, laid down the whole operation of this bank by Act of Parliament; but, Sir, the Bill I hold in my hand appoints Commissioners at the pleasure of the Executive, and provides that the paper shall be issued in such quantities as the Governor of the Province shall direct. — I use the words of the Act, Sir, — and that these Commissioners so appointed shall give out this money so issued, to the Chartered Banks for discounted notes or other sufficient security. If hon. gentlemen are prepared to support such a Bill, then let them vote for that resolution; but, Sir, I sincerely trust that this Committee are not prepared to press such a measure on the country, but that they will support the amendment that I have had the honour to second. — (Hear, hear, hear.)<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Durand made some observations, but the noise of the House rendered what he said wholly inaudible to us.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Small was in favor of the principle of the Bill.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Baldwin had listened with attention to the debates. He had concluded that measure was purely theoretical, and wholly without precedent. He was afraid of the extravagance of Parliament, — he alluded to the effect of war on the Issue, he asserted that it would add to the patronage £10,000 per annum, for as far as he understood it the real profit would amount to £25,000 per annum, but the available profits were stated to be only £15,000. He supposed, therefore, that the remaining £10,000 would be spent as the patronage of the Government. He believed that patronage already too great. He would recommend the House to pause before they passed this bill.<sup>41</sup>

He ((Simpson)) said the governing principle of the members seemed to be the effect of the measure on the banking interest, without any reference as to the gain the public would derive from it; that he was as anxious as any hon. member could be for the prosperity of the banks — that the Fiscal Bank proposed would minister to the profits of the banks as well as to the advantage and safety of the public. Honorable members seemed to indulge in most melancholy forebodings as to the effect of this measure on the banks and the public — he felt no apprehension for either. The profitable issue of bank paper would be in the exact proportion which that issued would bear to the reserved or protective fund, or in other words, to the amount of specie retained by the banks to redeem the paper issued. Now, judging by that criterion, what was the amount of profit divided by the banks from this coinage of paper money:

The issue of the Montreal Bank was .....	£ 227,048
The Bank had in its vaults cash to protect that issue .....	139,720
So that the absolute gain derived from this attribute of sovereignty, was only .....	87,328
Something more than £5,000 per annum.
The City Bank had notes out to the am't of .....	£ 108,572
Cash in its vaults .....	45,770
The Bank therefore gained by its issue £3,700 per annum .....	62,802
The Upper Canada Bank has notes .....	£ 142,849

Cash .....	55,125
It gained therefore only .....	87,724
Or £5,000 per annum.

The Commercial Bank of the Midland District issued notes to the amount of .....	£ 205,429
Cash in its vaults .....	82,890

Great privilege of coining only a profitable issue of ..... 122,539
 For it could be easily understood if the banks gained by the interest on the amount of the notes issued, they lost by the interest on the specie unemployed in their vaults. Say then, that these four banks together issue as they do by the statements before the house, the sum of £683,898, — to guard this issue, they keep in their vaults specie to the amount of £323,505, — this leaves them only a profitable issue of £360,393.

The four banks then gain interest at 6 per cent. on the whole amount of their issue, and that is £683,898, at 6 per cent. ....	£41,033
They lose by the interest on their dormant, or protective fund, say £323,505, at the same interest .....	19,430
The gain is therefore only .....	21,603

Their entire issue then guarded as it is, by the specie in their vaults, yields only 3 per cent. or a small trifle more. Now then, suppose the banks took this £360,393, the whole of the profitable issue from the Fiscal Bank, they would pay for this at 3 per cent. the sum of £10,895, — they could then discount with this sum of £360,393, borrowed from the bank, and the sum of £323,505 specie in their vaults, being £683,898, at 6 per cent., this would give the sum of ..... £41,033

Deduct the sum for interest paid the Fiscal Bank .....	10,895
The Government would gain this sum of £10,895, and the banks would gain .....	30,138
On the former calculation the banks only gained on their whole issue .....	21,603
They would therefore gain .....	8,535

after paying 3 per cent. to the bank, £8,535 more than they actually gain now.

Much has been said as to the diminution of the capitals of the banks and the general and inevitable prostration of commercial credit, — he believed in no such results, or he should be the last to advocate such a system. Suppose that instead of issuing notes, these four banks took the whole amount of that issue from the Fiscal Bank, at the rate of 3 per cent., the whole amount issued is £683,898 — the banks then would pay to the public £20,516 per annum. The banks would discount with this

£683,898 at 6 per cent. also with the specie ..... 323,505 now employed, this would be ..... £1,007,403 at 6 per cent .....	£ 60,444
Deduct the amount paid to the public for the use of the notes .....	20,516
The profits on the whole would be .....	£ 39,928
Now the banks only gained interest on the £683,898, which at 6 per cent is .....	41,033
Yet after paying £20,516 per annum towards the improvement of the province, the banks would gain .....	39,928
Only .....	£ 1,105

less than at present.

It is however evident that the banks have lost the interest on the £323,505, and that instead of using a capital of both issue and specie of ..... £1,007,403
 they use only to the extent of ..... 683,898 leaving the amount of ..... £ 323,505 in unprofitable unemployment.

If, therefore, these four banks paid 3 per cent. to the province for the whole amount of the notes it can keep in circulation, they would require no specie in their vaults, to protect that circulation, — it follows then that these banks would discount as well with their specie now dormant, as with the notes of the Fiscal Bank, and thus increase their discounting power to £323,505, the amount of the reserve fund. These four banks alone then would, by the means of the Fiscal Bank, increase the amount of capital employed, £324,505, the province would gain £20,516 per annum, and these four banks would lose about £1,105, or £276 5s. each.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Simpson replied to the objections urged against the Bill — he vindicated the right of the Government to the profits of Currency Paper Money as well as Metallic (sic) Money — he denied that the Bank Coin could become a Political Engine — the privilege given to the debts due the Banks objected to by an hon. member would enable us safely to lend money to all the Banks of the Province on the credit of those Banks. It would be ((in)) the interest of those Banks to support the credit of the Fiscal Bank not to run against it as they severally do run against each other. It would give a sound and safe Currency to the country — the exchange between the different & distant parts of the Province would cease. If the principle be acknowledged by the House the details of the Bank could be altered or amended in the Committee. It would not be difficult to reconcile the interests of the Banks and then all clamour and opposition would cease, the measure only had to be understood to become popular throughout the whole Province. It would not be long before the Country would force this measure on the House or send others to carry it through.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said that he thought that he might be misunderstood if he was silent. It was expected of him that he should explain his views, and notwithstanding (sic) what had already been said he should trespass for a short time on the patience of the Committee. It appeared to him that when a change was contemplated in the great questions of Currency of and circulation (questions which in all countries and none more so than in England, had divided as well as occupied the attention of the greatest statesmen and political economists, and which all admitted to be delicate and exceedingly difficult to grapple with,) the hon. member from Kingston should have proved or at least have attempted to prove that the change that was to be introduced and which would (as all admitted) produce apprehensions, was certain to bring about his object, viz., a revenue of £45,000 a year to the public, & at the same time afford to the Agriculturist and Commercial community equal advantages and facilities with those they now enjoy. It has been admitted that the present chartered banks have been of great benefit and have done much towards production, & therefore before a measure passed which would virtually deprive them of all power to aid the country with their credit, it was only reasonable that the advocates of the new system should at least show a probability that their scheme would not set us all adrift. It would be his (Mr. C.'s) endeavor to show that the idea of a revenue of £45,000 a year was not certain that it would compel the Banks to discontinue their operations — and that the Bill, if passed into a law, would be a direct violation of the public faith solemnly pledged to the holders of Bank Stock on several occasions, and on the reliance of which the Stockholders had taken their capital from other places and placed it there. An hon. member in the course of this debate had said that the circulation of a country should be no more than what it would be if Gold and Silver and not paper was the only circulating medium — this was a position that never could be maintained, how was it possible to procure Gold and Silver in sufficient quantities. It was very clearly proved by Jacobs in his work on the Precious Metals, that there was not as much Gold and Silver in circulation as there was in 1809, it had decreased from various causes, which it was unnecessary for him to mention, such was the fact. Now altho' Gold and Silver had diminished — Capital had not, business had not — but on the contrary had greatly increased. How was this? It was by the substitution of a cheap medium in the shape of Bank paper. How could the trade of Great Britain be carried on with gold and silver? Take the Bank of England as an example, its gold and silver about 5,000,000, with a circulation of more than 20; reflect upon the other Banks, and the state and amount of trade, and then say if it ever could have been brought to its present condition without this substitute. Take the United States; how could its trade have been sustained or produced — its canals and rail roads — the developement (sic) of its vast resources created, without the aid of Bank paper? He believed he was correct in stating that there was not as much gold and silver in the world in coin, as would pay the debts of that Republic. He would now return to the question of revenue, and the effect on the Banks. Any one acquainted with the trade of the Canadas (he spoke more with reference to Upper Canada) must be aware that, prior to 1820, it was but a slight degree removed from a system of barter; long credits and large profits were the order of the day. The country merchant received from the farmer the products of the soil, and he sent them to his correspondent in Lower Canada. It had been clearly shown, by an honorable member, that a few only had capital; it was the custom of these to meet together, affix the price at which they would receive the produce of the country, and 1s. 10½d. had not been an unusual price per bushel for wheat. Now, would any honorable member desire this state of things? Prior to 1820, there had been but a trifling amount of revenue received at the Port of Quebec, but it had since increased; why? because, by the extended credits which, by means of the Banks, the country had obtained, they were enabled to purchase British manufactures. This country was rich in raw materials, if he might use the term; it had timber, productive soil, and every natural advantage, but we were poor in circulating medium; and without credit, our timber might rot in our forests, and our lands be uncleared<sup>45</sup> and unoccupied, and if our agriculture were depressed our commerce could not thrive, and without commerce our revenue would be gone. If our revenue was diminished, we could not pay the interest contracted for our loans, and therefore in our anxiety to get more revenue, we should take care that we did not diminish what we already had. The revenue depended on our trade, but if the Farmer could not get money for his produce — which could not be unless the merchant got accommodation — he would not purchase British manufactures, and our import trade would be greatly diminished; and he did not hesitate to say, that if the Bank of Issue was carried, it would in this way diminish instead of increase the revenue on imports, and the object proposed prove visionary. It had been stated that the public were in debt to the Banks one million. He would inform the House that the public owed the Banks 3 millions. The Bank of Montreal alone were creditors for £950,000. Now suppose that the Bank of Issue is passed, the Banks must cease their operations, and call upon the public for payment, because being reduced to their capital they could not carry on a profitable business, that is, they could not pay their expences (sic) and 6 per cent to their Stockholders. One hon. member (Mr. Simpson) had certainly, to his own satisfaction, proved that the Banks would gain £9000 a year by this arrangement, but he could tell that hon. gentleman that his calculations were erroneous. The Banks did not want this boon — they understood their own matters very well, and only wanted what the Merchants told Louis the XIV., to be let alone. Was there another member in the House who would sustain the calculations of that gentleman; even the hon. member from Kingston and the member from Oxford, who was (sic) the most strenuous in endeavoring to ruin the Chartered Institutions, admitted that it would be a serious injury to them, and only justified on the score of expediency. He would endeavor however to show that these Institutions could not be expected to continue their operations. It would be seen at once, by reference to the state of the Banks how impossible it would be for any of the present Institutions to carry on a profitable business: he would take the Commercial Bank for example, being best acquainted with it. That Institution had a capital of £200,000, its circulation was other (sic) £200,000, its deposits £50,000; it had thus the means of carrying on business to the extent of £450,000. But if you passed this Bank of Issue what would be its effect — they must call in their circulation of £200,000, and in order to do this they must diminish their discount one half, say £225,000; their capital is at once diminished one half. It may be said this circulation is to be supplied by paper of the Bank of Issue, but I ask how is this to be obtained. The £200,000 of discounts has been swallowed up by the redemption of the circulation — how then are they to obtain the amount from the Bank of Issue, for they must pay one-third in specie, one-third in Government Debentures, and one-third Bank Bonds on negotiable security. — They have only £200,000, their paid up Capital, — now if their circulation is withdrawn, how are they to obtain Government Debentures — they must pay in specie for them, for they would not pay the Notes of their Bank for Debentures, the only object of which is to procure the very paper they had already exchanged for it; then they must keep on hand sufficient to meet these bonds, or negotiable paper taken on their security, (for the Commissioners of this Paper Mint would not take it unless the Bank could be called upon to pay up their obligations on demand) and thus be obliged to have specie in their vaults as great as they now find we pay for these purposes if not greater — they might as well do business in gold and silver, and it must be apparent to every one, that the Stockholders not receiving 6 per cent. (for the expences (sic) of management, which are not trifling, must be deducted) would be obliged to shut up their establishment, call in their debts, and receive back their stock — this at once will produce some inconvenience, for if my position is true with respect to the Commercial Bank it must be also true with all other Chartered Institutions, and you virtually withdraw from the country £3,000,000, of Circulation, based upon a paid up capital of about £1,300,000 and you deprive the country at once of its credit. It appeared to him that the currency of a country was not to be considered without taking into consideration the operation of credit. Credit was virtually capital, and it was upon credit that the monied institutions were enabled to give their extended accommodation; and by it the resources of a country were brought forward, and our timber brought to market — the products (sic) of the soil greatly enhanced, and wealth created. It was needless for him to say what the effect of destroying credit would be — he felt persuaded it would be worse than a war or an invasion, and it would be much better to abandon public works for the present if it can only be done by prostrating the commercial credit of the Province. He would suppose that a gentleman in business had a real capital of £10,000, this of course gave him credit for £10,000, and he embarked in large and extensive mills and other improvements, relying on the credit which was furnished him heretofore, had gone into speculations and all at once his credit, and virtually half his capital is destroyed — he is at once ruined, for his calculations made with prudence and discretion, and based on public faith, are frustrated, and he cannot meet his engagements, and is compelled to close his business, which was proceeding with order and discretion. An hon. member (Mr. Hincks) had stated that there were great contractions and expansions under the present system, and had cited from the years 1838, '39 and '40, to show that at corresponding periods of the year, the amount had varied. That hon. gentleman seemed to forget that a circulation depended upon the state of the crops; it was always the case in England, and he (Mr. C.) could account for the change or difference alluded to; and believed that when the crop was good in the Western section of the Province, it was about 5,000,000 of bushels, worth about as many dollars; when that took place it made trade brisk and thriving, and greater facilities were required — discounts were wanted and sought after — the circulation became extended. — This was a legitimate course, for it was based on agricultural produce, and was caused by no overtrading or speculation. — But when the crop was deficient as it was in 1838-9, he believed not more than half a crop, it was evident that a corresponding contraction of circulation must take place, and without producing any distress in the Commercial community; because it was not required. It was not fair therefore to attribute to the Chartered Banks the desire to distress or controul the public without proof, and he on their parts denied that any idea existed but a desire (as was admitted even by the hon. member from Kingston) to afford every accommodation consistent with prudence and sound discretion. He would now proceed to show the state of the Province previous to and since the establishment of the Banks. It would be admitted by all acquainted with the country prior to 1820 that the amount of business at the Port of Quebec was very trifling, a very fair inference that both our import and export trade was small. Upper Canada, with a very thin and scattered population, without capital and little credit, was reduced to a state of barter. What little business there was, in few hands and money very scarce. It was suggested that it would give encreased (sic) facilities to every kind of business if Banks were established and the question was discussed. He believed in 1817 the Bank of Montreal was established, and the following year the Bank of Canada; these Institutions received Charters similar to those which the U.C. Banks now possessed; but notwithstanding that they were carefully drawn, the Provincial Government did not feel that they could sanction them, and they were received from the King in Council; they were, however, assented to. In 1819 the Legislature of U.C. passed an Act establishing a Bank at Kingston, which was also reserved and likewise received the Royal assent; but although the capital was £<sup>46</sup> and 2 years were allowed to enable them to get a portion of the stock taken up, and they were permitted to go into operation whenever £<sup>47</sup> was paid in; the state of the country prevented it, and it lapsed for non-user. In a subsequent session of the same year 1819, the Bank of Upper Canada was incorporated with a capital of 200,000 pounds, with permission to commence operations when 20,000 was paid up, this Act was also reserved and the Royal assent declared by Proclamation 1821. Yet such was the scarcity of capital that at the coming session the friends of the Institution had to come down to Parliament confess the poverty of the country, ask that the capital should be reduced one half, that they might commence operation on 10,000, and that they could do nothing until Government actually came to their assistance, and took one fourth of their capital. They commenced operations in the autumn of 1822, when the actual paid up Banking capital in Upper Canada was the sum of £10,000. Such was the commencement of Banks in Upper Canada. But from so small a matter much benefit had accrued. Previous to this we had no Wholesale Establishments, no Importers direct from Britain — a trade so trifling that two or three vessels sufficed to do all the business; the fact was we had no capital, our credit was limited. Would any one take the trouble to compare the assessment lists of U.C. in 1822 or '23 with 1838 and '39 '40; and then judge of the advance in wealth and population in these 18 years — it was astonishing. He contended that the banks had greatly tended to produce this state of things. The bank of Upper Canada for instance, had, during the ten years that it was the sole establishment, greatly aided by its credit in bringing forth the resources of the country. Had it not been greatly instrumental in making Toronto from a small village to be a great and flourishing City? Had not the whole country felt its effects? Men of business saw clearly these advantages; they perceived that we were rich in what was truly essential to render us populous and prosperous, that it was only necessary to have accumulation of capital, to aid with its credit consequent upon such accumulation, the energies of the country, and consequently in 1831 it was determined to give greater Banking facilities, and the following session the capital of the Bank of Upper Canada was doubled, the Commercial Bank created with £100,000, and further increased in 1835, when the Gore Bank was established. Would any one present be so daring as to say that they had not done incalculable benefit to the country.

He would affirm that nothing in their transactions had occurred to create apprehension or justify distrust, no dissatisfaction existed, no sign of uneasiness on the part of the country. It was not for him to say how the affairs of the institution over which he had the honour to preside were conducted, he would leave that for others. The hon. member for Kingston had admitted that they were prudent and liberal, and he could appeal with confidence to the Commercial body in particular, and the country generally, and he would be tried by their opinion. — Could any one say that the country could be served as well by 100 individuals who each had a capital of £1000, which they were willing to lend, as if that capital united was centred in an Institution. It was the confidence of the country founded on the knowledge of the large Capital of the Banks that enable these Banks to grant facilities for the purchase of produce, and other merchantile (sic) manufactures, which they never gave to individuals. In fact the Bank lent the credit to the country, and the country profited by it, it was credit which enabled the merchant to buy produce, for he went to the Banks with good security, or letters (sic) of credit, and got money (sic) at six months. On this he entered the market, made his purchases with confidence, reasoning that before he was called upon to meet his paper; his produce would be realised and he would be in funds. The Bank of Issue was not to be a Bank of Discount, no such accommodation was to be had, no merchant could go there with his paper for discount, and he must look to the Chartered Institutions alone, or if they were destroyed go without, unless indeed he was a large capitalist. He (Mr. C.) admitted that perhaps great capitalists would not be affected, but it would ruin every man who relied upon a fair proportion of capital and moderate credit, and these last were perhaps the most useful and enterprising class of individuals. Now he was not disposed for one to run the risk of destroying the benefits which had been conferred on the country by a resolution on the desperate chance of something better, why not leave well enough alone, at least until it was shown that there was a probability that the Bank of Issue was likely to produce a greater amount of benefit, a position which he defied all the friends of that scheme to establish.

But there was another argument, and one of no trifling character in his mind, viz., the breach of faith which would be committed towards the Stockholders of these Institutions. The Gore Bank had 19 years to run — the Commercial 16 — and the Bank of Upper Canada 8. The holders of stock had withdrawn their capital from other sources and countries and had invested it at, in many instances, a premium of 16 per cent, on the faith of the public solemnly guaranteed by the Acts of the Legislature and of the solemn recognition of the Sovereign. He never could believe that the Provincial Legislature would act so wantonly as to violate the first principles of justice. He knew he might be referred to the last clause of the Charter, but he was prepared to show that it could never justify a distinction of their rights. It never could be supposed that the Legislature would be guilty of duplicity. The whole object of the clause was to enable the Legislature to render the Institution more advantageous to the public not to destroy it. (Here the hon. member from Oxford said they would tax their issues.) The hon. member says, he will tax the issues. He expected no justice from that gentleman, but he expected it from the House — he never could believe that the Legislature would do that as a body which as individuals they would be ashamed of, but it might, in its omnipotence take his property, but not without compensation. He, however, felt confident that the Committee would be actuated by a spirit of justice towards the Stockholders and with a desire of doing the best for the interests of the country, and if they were actuated by that feeling it would not be long before they decided against the Bank of Issue, which in his opinion would ruin the best interests in the Province.<sup>48</sup>

Mr. Hincks could not refrain from again troubling the Committee with a few observations in answer to what had fallen from the hon. and venerable member for Richelieu. (Mr. Viger.) That hon. gentleman had warned the Committee most emphatically against adopting a principle for which there was no example for the history of the world, and almost in the same breath, the hon. member had declared that all the examples of governments issuing paper had been judicious, which had resulted in national bankruptcy and individual ruin. He (Mr. H.) admitted that there was no examples of such a bank, as that contemplated in the resolutions before the Committee, but he trusted it was not in the 19th century that we were to be told that we must be bound down to follow in the footsteps of our ancestors. The hon. member had declaimed about the evil consequences that had resulted from the interference of other governments with the issues of paper money, and had cited the cases of Russia, Austria, and of the French Assignats. It was hardly necessary that he (Mr. H.) should remind the Committee, that these were all instances for which the governments referred to, had issued inconvertible paper, a principle to which he (Mr. H.) was as much opposed as the hon. member, and which would not he believed find a single advocate on the floor of this House. The basis of the proposed circulation was to be bullion, and securities of the very best description that it was possible to obtain. The hon. member had called upon him (Mr. H.) to consult the history of his own Country. He had done so, and he could tell the hon. member that the result of that investigation was a conviction of the soundness of the principle which he now advocated. The history of his own country had taught him that there was but little confidence to be placed in the stability of Banks of Discount, Issue and Deposit, in periods of Commercial or Agricultural distress. It was unnecessary that he (Mr. H.) should remind the Committee of the numerous failures of private Banks of Issue, or of the injury sustained by the public therefrom. The hon. gentleman had also read a long lecture about the depravity of human nature, and the danger of trusting any individual with so important a charge as the management of a Bank. But was this depravity confined to the servants of the Crown? The hon. gentleman would trust private Companies with the entire control of the paper circulation, but instances might easily be found in which the public had suffered most severely from the fraud or mismanagement of the officers of private or chartered Banks. If such instances were called for, he (Mr. H.) would refer to the neighbouring States, to Banks in the City of New York, or to the great Mammoth Bank of the United (sic) States, respecting which such extraordinary disclosures had recently been made. It was a matter of astonishment to him (Mr. H.) that the hon. gentleman could be blind to the disadvantages of the present system, and to the dangerous and undue influence of the Chartered Banks. He (Mr. H.) had heard a great deal about government influence, which would it was said be greatly increased by the establishment of a Bank of Issue. He (Mr. H.) thought there was an influence still more powerful and more to be dreaded, — he alluded to the Bank influence, in the adjoining republic the people were literally enslaved by the Banks, he made this statement deliberately, and without fear of contradiction. Such was the extent of the Bank influence in the United States that it was idle and unprofitable time to attempt to resist it, and he (Mr. H.) thought there was but too much reason to fear that a similar influence prevailed in this Province if not within this very House. The hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Moffatt,) had more than once asserted that public opinion was stung (sic) against the Bank of Issue, and had referred to the recent meetings in Quebec and Montreal. He (Mr. H.) denied the correctness of the hon. member's assertion. The people of Western Canada were not in his (Mr. H.) opinion, against a measure which is so clearly for their advantage. As to the Commercial Cities there was no difficulty in ascertaining the reason of the opposition of their inhabitants to the proposed scheme. The Banks had put the screws upon the Merchants and had frightened them into opposition. It was declared that the necessary consequence of the establishment of the Bank of Issue would be a cessation of discounts, and perhaps an entire abandonment of business, it was not to be wondered at that under such circumstances there should be strong opposition to the measure, but it afforded another proof of the immense power and influence of the Banks. An objection had also been raised by his hon. friend from Beauharnois, that the Charter to the Bank of British North America was an insuperable obstacle in the way. Now he (Mr. H.) was compelled to say what was the real nature and extent of the privileges conferred upon the Institution, but he could not believe that it was beyond the control of the Provincial Legislature, and if no other means could be devised of controlling that Institute, a tax upon its issues would do so most effectually. His hon. and learned friend from Hastings (Mr. Baldwin,) had made some objections which were, it must be admitted, entitled to consideration. The first of these was the danger to be apprehended from the extravagance of Parliament, and the consequent depreciation of our debentures. If indeed such a danger was justly to be apprehended, it would be an objection, but he (Mr. H.) was unprepared to admit that the Provincial Legislature would again venture to issue debentures without providing "ways and means" to pay the interest. If we cannot have confidence in our own debentures, for the payment of which the faith of the entire Province is pledged, then indeed there is no use in our establishing the Bank of Issue, and very little propriety in our putting such debentures into circulation. The second objection suggested by his hon. and learned friend, was that in case of war or other emergency, there might be delay or trouble in negotiating their debentures. There of course is a difficulty but it would apply with equal force to the issues of the Chartered Banks. If the direful calamity of war were to fall on us, there might be a general prostration of credit, which would affect the Chartered Banks, much more than the Banks of Issue. The faith of the Province would be pledged for the issues of such a Bank, and even under the most disadvantageous circumstances a temporary suspension of specie payments would not have a very injurious tending. It was not the mere suspension of specie payments that was injurious but the expansion of circulation that generally followed, as a proof of the correctness of this assertion he (Mr. H.) would refer to the celebrated suspension of the Bank of England, and remind hon. gentlemen that so long as the circulation was kept within reasonable bounds, the Bank paper was very nearly on a par with gold, and it was not until the circulation was mutually expanded that its value was reduced. Even therefore under the most disadvantageous circumstances, a temporary suspension of specie payments might be resorted to, without injury to the public. The last objection made by his hon. and learned friend was the patronage which would be given to government, and which he (Mr. Baldwin) did not think it safe to entrust it with. Now the extent of that patronage had been much exaggerated. It had been stated at £10,000 per annum, and that was a very extravagant estimate. That however was the total amount of the Bank expenditure, over a great deal of which the government would have no control whatever. In conclusion he would observe that he had not heard a single satisfactory reason for postponing until another Session the adoption of a principle which if sound, ought to be carried into effect with as little delay as possible.<sup>40</sup>

House in Committee on Message on Public Improvements.

Mr. Harrison rose to submit to the House his views upon the remaining Resolutions on the Public Improvements of the country, and when he had disposed of the third, he would, in conformity with the wishes of the House, as expressed yesterday, proceed to take up the 5th Resolution. He said, as it had been supposed by some that the proposed grant of one million and a half would be affected by any change of Administration at home, he felt desirous of setting the House right upon that subject. If the House would allow him, he would refer to the Despatch itself, in which it would appear, that Lord John Russell stated that he was authorized by the Queen's Government to make this pledge — that pledge was made, in a way well understood at home, to mean that whatever changes might take place, the new Ministry, if there was one, was pledged to redeem it. He hoped, therefore, that no impression of that kind would be allowed any longer to exist. The pledge, however, was not an unconditional one; it was made a condition that part of the money, so to be advanced, should go to pay off as much of the existing debt of the Province as the creditors were disposed to receive, and upon such terms as could be most advantageously made for the benefit of the Province. Many of these debentures would not become due for fifteen years, and, as no doubt they would rise in value, it was probable the holders of them would not wish to part with them, but keep them as a security, for which they were receiving five per cent. If that should be the case, the Province would have a larger proportion of the million and a half to expend on improvement. It had been said, why pay off the debt at all ; all he would say, in reply, was, that so the Queen's Government willed it, and it would not be thought extraordinary, when it was recollected that these debentures had been issued without any provision either for their liquidation, or even the payment of their interest. It was thought (sic) best, therefore, and more for the credit of the Province, to pay off these debts — and that the Province, in a financial point of view, should begin "de novo." That, being out of debt, and the finances placed upon a sound basis, we may go into the market, if it became necessary, and with the means of making the most advantageous terms for ourselves. The resources which were at the command of the Province, arising out of the proposed arrangement, would give us about £20,000 per annum. This would be equal to pay off the interest of the principal sum of £400,000, which might be appropriated to the carrying on such of the works of the first class, as may be thought most desirable. He would now proceed to a consideration of the fifth Resolution, but as the House had thought proper yesterday, to disallow the proposed source of revenue, to be derived from the Bank of Issue, and which would have amounted to somewhere about £25,000, and have paid the interest of about £500,000, it would ((be)) something like an impossibility to raise the principal, when no means were provided to pay the interest. A tax on spirits had been proposed, which, he believed, would prove fallacious ; the tax on spirits, in the Upper Province, he believed, was as much as it would bear ; it was true there was no tax at all in the Lower Province, but the grain grown there was of an inferior quality, for the most part, and it would be considered injurious to put a tax on any thing affecting that article. The Custom duties had also been allued (sic) to, but it did not, at present, appear to him, that any considerable advantage could be derived from that source. He should, however, leave these matters for the consideration of the House, and reserve himself for any reply which he might feel it expedient to make in a future stage of their proceedings.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Thorburn complained that the Finance Committee had not done their duty ; they ought to have brought forward suggestions of ways and means. He believed an auction duty would be a profitable source of revenue. The late Collector at the Port of Toronto had increased the revenue, by his assiduity, fully one-third, and he had no doubt, other ports would admit of a similar revenue. The licensing system also required amendment — the District of Niagara now paid one-fifth of the whole revenue arising out of this department — and it was, therefore, impossible that improvement could not be made. He also thought a considerable additional revenue might be raised from articles supplied by the Americans, particularly that of cheese, most of our consumption being supplied by them.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Hincks thought, we ought to confine ourselves to the third Resolution — (hear) — it may be possible for us raise two or three thousand a year ; but it was impossible that we could raise four hundred thousand, without an additional revenue from some source. He had always considered an auction duty injurious to business — it was well known that a large extent of the business of the merchants of Montreal, was done by the medium of public sales.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Merritt wanted to be shewn what the interest of £1,500,000 would be in London — and he saw little difficulty in paying the interest.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Hincks said the Hon. gentleman would see all those calculations by a reference to the Finance Report, where the calculations were all accurately made.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Holmes could not understand why the old loan must be paid off, and why the whole million and a half should not be applied to the completion of our public improvements. There was a very easy way of raising the required additional £40,000 — and that was by adding to our import duties, by which £27,000, currency, would be obtained ; a direct tax on distilling, he could not but believe, would be productive, together with an additional tax on all wines and brandy imported ; and if 2½ per cent was levied, not in the way the Act was at present worded, but by a tax on all goods sold by auction, these items would produce a sufficient revenue to make up the £40,000. He would, therefore, move, in amendment that it is, in the opinion of this Committee, expedient that the several improvements recommended in the Message of His Excellency the Governor General on Public Works, be undertaken, as of the highest importance to the prosperity of this Province, — and the welfare of its inhabitants — and that the requisite provision be made by the House for the Payment of the interest upon the sum of £1,500,000, to be borrowed under the guarantee of Her Majesty's Government — but that the said million and a half be applied — not to the liquidation of the existing debt of this Province — but, exclusively, to the carrying out of the proposed improvements.<sup>7</sup>

Dr. Dunlop was glad to hear the Secretary's declaration, that the loan was guaranteed by the Queen. It had been the impression of many persons, that a trap had been laid for us, and that we had fallen into it. There was no tax on whiskey, there was, indeed, a tax on stills, but a tax on whiskey, which would not add a farthing a glass to the consumer, would raise a large revenue. He said he believed the tax on stills was called Arch-Deacon's Cheap Whiskey Bill. He denied that inferior grain was always used in distilleries; in his place, as fine wheat as was grown was used for that purpose. He thought the attention of the House should be directed to the collection of the Timber Duties — his Hon. friend from the frontier (Mr. Thorburn) had a fondness for dealing in "cheese parings and candle ends," but he did not think it would be a very profitable source of revenue. His Hon. friend from Lincoln (Mr. Merritt) did not seem to like figures — he thought to increase the revenue by taking off the duty — (a laugh).<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Harrison said he must oppose the amendment of the Hon. Member for Montreal (Mr. Holmes) — it went, decidedly, against the proposition of the British Government; that proposition contained their ultimatum, and we were at liberty either to accept or reject it. If we did not like the terms offered, we were at liberty either to accept or refuse them, but we were not at liberty to borrow the money upon our own terms. He then read the Despatch, together with the Speech from the Throne, at the opening of the Session; and made it fully apparent that his views were correct.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Moffatt also referred to the Despatch, and said he put a very different construction upon it from the Hon. Secretary. The Despatch was dated 14th July, and was, undoubtedly made in reference to the state of circumstances at that time. The revenue, if now consolidated, is equal to discharge the interest upon the debt; and, as the public creditor could not call on us for payment for fifteen years to come, he did not see why we should pay it off now. He thought the amendment would have a tendency to relieve the Government; it was evidently the object of the British Government, not only to raise the credit of the Province, but to carry on the Public Works. These debentures were now, he believed, at full 12½ per cent discount; no doubt they would rise to par, and the holders of them would not be anxious to sell them. He considered, too, that the revenue of the Province was pledged, by the Union Bill, to pay off the interest of the debt — he thought it far more advantageous to the country to let the existing debt remain, and make use of the whole loan in carrying on the improvements, which he believed was consistent with the intentions of the British Government.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Hincks considered the course recommended by the Member for Montreal, as impracticable, and (sic) if we proceeded to cavil at the mode proposed to us, the probability was, that we might lose it altogether. He had heard it said that the loan was all a humbug — he was, therefore, desirous of throwing it upon the Administration to carry out their own offer, and fulfil the pledge they had given. The plain and business-like view of the case was this — we have a revenue of £300,000 — we owe a debt of about £1,300,000 — and the expenses of the Government, with the interest of our debt, are about equal to our revenue. The Government are willing to lend us a million and a half, to pay our debt, or as much of it as can be demanded — provided they have the security that the interest of that debt will be the first clause on our revenue, as provided by the Union Act; but he (Mr. Hincks) doubted whether the Imperial Parliament would be disposed to guarantee so large a sum on the security of new taxes, the productiveness of which have never been tested.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Dunn made a very plain straight forward statement, showing that by this means at 4 per cent. we could pay off £600,000. We ought, said he, to be thankful to the British Government for having offered to do to us what it had refused to other colonies. For example, said he, the government of the Ionian Isles requested only £25,000 by way of loan, and I myself was applied to on the subject. (What success the application met with, could not exactly be heard.) The present value of our debentures, £83, or £84 per £100, he said was not owing so much to the depreciation of our stock, as it was to the fluctuation of American securities, which from a variety of circumstances, materially affected ours.<sup>12</sup> The British public ... ((did not distinguish)) between the two countries, all being considered as North American Stock.<sup>13</sup> However, he was of opinion that the holders of our debentures, would be very willing to allow us to purchase them as they now stood, rather than risk the value of them being still further diminished.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Moffatt thought the Member for Oxford, (Mr. Hincks) had not properly taken into account the ultimate liquidation of the debts proposed.<sup>15</sup> Mr. Moffatt contended that we had nothing to do whatever with a former debt — the British Government guaranteeing a loan to be applied to purposes that would make this country an enviable one.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Boswell said, that according to the amendment, the loan was supposed to be a mere matter of certainty, — he differed from such an opinion. With his view of the despatch of Lord J. Russell (the hon. member here read it,) it was expressly stipulated in that document, that the existing debt should be paid off, a loan being guaranteed according to "restrictions suggested by this Government." If any of the holders of the debentures refuse to accept payment of them, said he, then so much of the loan at a low rate of interest will be applicable to public improvements in addition to the surplus which would have remained had we redeemed the whole. In his opinion British capitalists would be much more ready to lend to a colony, where a sure provision was made to pay off the interest, than if arrangements were made of a precarious security. By the plan now submitted, he estimated that we should save £20,000 per annum, and be able to go into the market and make such a contract as would be advantageous to us.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb differed from the hon. member, construing the despatch to intend the loan to be applied exclusively to public works.<sup>18</sup> ((He)) proceeded to read the address and speech, and commented upon them as he went along. He would support the amendment.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Harrison thought the Head of the Government might be permitted to understand his own despatches, and the conclusion to which he had arrived, was that stated by himself.<sup>20</sup> The hon. member then read from the despatch, commenting upon the various passages throughout, which had clearly a distinct reference to the debt.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Merritt explained, and said we should be able to borrow any sum we required, without reference to the British Government. He proposed that we should offer as security the following revenues: — The revenue arising from the imports of 2½ per cent, which he estimated at £50,000; the Welland Canal, £25,000; the Lachine Canal, £15,000, the Burlington Bay Canal and the Harbour, £5000; together £95,000.<sup>22</sup>

((Mr.)) Roblin followed ... in terms not calculated to forward the proposed plan.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said he was desirous that the government should act up to what it had promised — The arrangement submitted, he thought might have been better, but according to the present plan, we should secure a disposable sum of £400,000; on the other hand, we should get nothing at all. The Receiver General's plan, he said, would offer a primary security, the amendment only a secondary one. — With respect to raising the revenue now required, he trusted the house would unhesitatingly give the government that efficient support which it needed for that purpose.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Small said we were all willing enough to have the million and a half. For his own part, he was disposed to place a sufficient degree of confidence in the head of the Board of Works, to be guided by his projects in its appropriation; indeed he believed we had no alternative.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Receiver General Dunn said great misconception (sic) prevailed about the finances of the Province. He had first negotiated £200,000 at £99 for £100; next £200,000 at the same rate; £60,000 had (sic) been sent to the house of Barings, to pay them for an advance they had made, and a few of them, about £25,000, perhaps, had been sold under par. The holders of the debentures at present, who were offering them at 84 or 85, were not the original purchasers, but persons who had speculated in such matters. He had no doubt whatever, that they would now get up to par, nor did he hesitate to say that he could sell any amount of stock, so as to obtain money at least as low as 5 per cent, if not lower.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Williams thought we were entering on a very useless discussion. We had received the offer of Government under certain stipulations, and the question was, should we accept it or not.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Hincks wished to explain, he had not attached blame to any one; he had merely stated that about £25,000 had been sold, he believed, at 82 or 83. The Home Government now knew our precise situation, they would not take upon themselves any responsibility of advising the guarantee of so large a sum of money without sufficient security.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Thorburn stated that the loss arose out of Messrs. Thos. Wilson's house; there was no other loss.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Johnston said the amendment advocated a wild and improvident scheme, which would be injurious to the farmers, who wanted only good roads by which to send their produce to market.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Aylwin addressed the House, but from the noise and confusion, and evident impatience which prevailed, it was difficult to get at his object.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was not prepared to involve the country in such an extensive debt — a large portion of which he feared would be expended in a way not the most judicious; but now that we had a Board of Works, with the Hon. gentleman, the Member for London, at its head, he would make all right. Now, he did not feel quite so much confidence as some did in the Board of Works. He observed most of these estimates were said to be made by Mr. Keefer. Now, Mr. Keefer may be a very clever man, but he preferred thht (sic) the President of the Board should have taken the responsibility upon himself. He would have the House pause, before they ventured to borrow more money. The Treasury brings down a programme of public improvements, for the sake of obtaining a temporary popularity — and with folded arms, lay them before the House. He was prepared to complete the St. Lawrence, out of a regard to justice to our brethren in Lower Canada, on whom we had imposed a debt, as well as a Constitution, without their consent, and contrary to their will. He would, therefore, consent to finish the St. Lawrence Canal, but he would then pause before he went further. He would make no other improvement, and he would not vote for the amendment as it now stood. He thought we ought to take up the minor improvements in Lower Canada (sic) also — it was very unjust to be spending so large a sum on the western parts of the Province. He felt bound to join in a vote for the completion of the St. Lawrence, which he thought would be the greatest benefit to the greatest number, and there he would stop.<sup>32</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said, if that was to be the case, the country had been greatly deceived. The promise of the million and a half was a mere bubble and the country would be disappointed (sic) from one end of it to the other.<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Draper defended the Government from the imputation of the Hon. and gallant Knight, and in his usual happy strain of eloquence and satire, replied ((to)) Sir Allan's observations.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Cameron had no wish to prevent every improvement which could be made — the observations of the Member for Montreal deserved every consideration. He (Mr. C.) could not vote for a measure, which, if carried, would be at the expense of every part of the Province.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Holmes agreed to withdraw his amendment....<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Baldwin moved that the St. Lawrence should be completed in the first instance.<sup>37</sup>

This, as Mr. Harrison said, would of necessity, absorb all the disposable funds, and it was useless, to proceed unless additional revenue could be suggested.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Merritt proposed that the item of the St. Lawrence, with the sum of £500,000 should be placed in the first class, which was seconded by Mr. Viger — and after a full hour of confusion, was carried by the the (sic) French party, by a majority of one.<sup>39</sup>

Yeas 29 — nays 28.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Aylwin ... ((modified)) the resolution, so as to specify the liquidation of the debt upon advantageous terms to the colony, carrying without a division.<sup>41</sup>

It was proposed by the Hon. Secretary ((Mr. Harrison)) to advance 2½ per cent on the import duties. It had also been suggested to levy a duty on wine and spirits imported — and on the latter the duty was to be regulated by the hydrometer — and not, as at present, by the gallon, whether the spirit was strong or weak — as it was clear that spirits imported of a strength, one to three over proof, when reduced to the strength at which it is usually sold in taverns, would admit of an admixture of one half water; and in fact the 100 gallons of strong brandy was equal to and ought to pay for 150 gallons if reduced in strength. He considered the duty of 5d per gallon on molasses too high and should propose to reduce it. Roasted coffee would bear a small advance.<sup>42</sup> With respect to salt, it was an article so important, that in order to enable us to reap the benefit of increased profit upon well-cured provisions, by substituting the use of Liverpool salt for that which we now procure from the States, he would propose to reduce the duty on it to as low a rate as possible, say one farthing per bushel, or $1 per ton.<sup>43</sup> An alteration was intended on the duties on tea, but as it was understood that the Americans were about to put a duty on that article, it was deemed desirable to let that article alone till they had legislated on it. The articles would, no doubt, add in some slight degree to the amount of the present duties, but the main article on which he would be disposed to rely was the duty on imports.<sup>44</sup> Then comes, said the hon. member, the great question of British manufactured goods, paying 2½ per cent., which I propose to raise to 5 per cent. Leaving out the item of tea, said he, the whole increase of revenue by these means to be obtained will be about £40,000, which with the reduced interest of the debt, will leave a yearly amount of £60,000 to be applied to pay off a loan for public works. The sum total then at our disposal, said the Hon. Secretary, having been ascertained, and such sum falling short of the amount required, it is incumbent on us to make a selection of those works most essential for the benefit of the province. The Welland Canal, he was of opinion, had a prior claim in point of importance; — with respect to the St. Lawrence, he was ready to concede the propriety of not allowing what had been expended on it to be thrown away, and the work to perish. The house would, however, decide according to its judgment, what amount it was expedient to lay out upon it.<sup>45</sup>

Mr. Hincks wished to know what money we were about to expend — the Hon. Member for Hastings (Mr. Baldwin) had said he should oppose all others but the Welland Canal, and it was useless to vote supplies, if the contemplated improvements were not ((to)) be made.<sup>46</sup>

Mr. Harrison said if his plan had been acted upon, that course would have been pursued — which was, find what works were necessary, what the cost would be, and how the money was to be got; however, he thought we had better now proceed, as we could find a way to spend whatever we could get.<sup>47</sup>

Mr. Thorburn thought the Hon. Secretary had not made out a case with respect to the duty on salt; he thought the duty on salt from the United States, would produce a revenue of two or three thousand pounds.<sup>48</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said, no doubt the good folks on the Niagara frontier were more honest than those on the Western, but he believed, that for every ten barrels which paid duty, fifty or one hundred were smuggled.<sup>49</sup>

Mr. Merritt, whose remarks for want of time cannot be given, then proposed an amendment, placing the St. Lawrence in the first class of improvements to be carried out. —<sup>50</sup>

Mr. Parke — All paid their share in raising these various sums, and it was only fair that all should participate in the advantages. He would ask what could be more advantageous to the welfare of the country, than the improvement of our internal communications. It would really seem as if some Members wished to distress the agricultural population; the Hon. gentleman for Hastings (Mr. Baldwin) was always afraid of his own shadow: he put himself in the light, and saw his own shadow, and was frightened at it. For his part, his principle was to get all he could of solid realities in politics as well as in improvements; we had means sufficient and to spare, if we had energy and foresight to make use of them. It was ungenerous to give the whole of the improvements to one object, however valuable it might be; the plan now proposed would keep back Upper Canada five or six years for the purpose of ((a))liding the Americans.<sup>51</sup>

Mr. Roblin was not a little surprised to hear the Hon. Surveyor General. He was a farmer, and yet he would repudiate the idea of giving a preference to any particular District; his District never had asked for any thing, and did not want any thing; they had all they desired; the Surveyor General had given them a regular dressing. He said that all the produce of the country, from Sarnia, came through the Welland, and latterly through the St. Lawrence. —

(Yes, but what is the interior of the country to do without roads, asked some Member.) I understand, said Mr. Roblin, the want of roads — but we must begin somewhere, and it was as well we should begin with the St. Lawrence as any where else.<sup>52</sup>

Mr. Hincks entirely concurred with his hon'ble friend from Prince Edward (Mr. Roblin) that the scheme of public improvements submitted for the consideration of this Committee should be discussed with as little reference as possible to sectional interest. His hon. friend had referred to Lord Durham's Report, to His Lordship's condemnation of local jobbing, and the remedy suggested that all propositions for money grants to go on with improvements should emanate from the Crown. There was now before the Committee a most comprehensive scheme of public improvements recommended by the government on the responsibility of the chairman of the Board of Works. The object of establishing the Board of Works, which a very large majority of the House concurred in thinking absolutely necessary, was that our public improvements should be carried on under the supervision and on the responsibility of the head of that department. — He (Mr. Hincks) had a right to presume that the advantages of each of the great works recommended by government had been well weighed before the Message of His Excellency the Governor General had been sent down to this House. This message was now before us, and we were called on to decide whether we would assent to the recommendation of the Government. Before going further, he (Mr. Hincks) would observe that he entirely differed from the views of the hon. member for North Lincoln, (Mr. Merritt) who advocated borrowing money on the security of revenue to be derived from tolls on our unfinished public works. He (Mr. Hincks) would never consent that a single debenture should be issued unless "ways and means" should be provided at the same time to pay the interest. If the tolls should turn out as productive as the hon. member has anticipated, and he (Mr. Hincks) was not disposed to question the correctness of his calculations, then the consolidated revenue would be relieved from the charge, and we could either reduce our taxation, or go on with more improvements, but in the mean time let us take care to prevent the possibility of being placed in the condition in which the Union found the late Province of Upper Canada. Believing, then, that "ways and means" must be found to pay the interest of any new loan, he (Mr. Hincks) would have much preferred that the hon. Secretary should have put his scheme of improvements to the House, and have then made his proposition to raise the ways and means — but as the House seemed to prefer the other course, he (Mr. Hincks) must submit to their decision. At the same time he would express his entire concurrence with what had fallen from the hon. member for Middlesex (Mr. Parke), that there was no difficulty in finding sufficient ways and means, and he would take the present opportunity to suggest as one mode of obtaining revenue, to impose a tax of 2 per cent upon all bank issues. The Banks had contended most zealously for the privilege of issuing paper, and they certainly ought to pay for their monopoly (Hear, hear). This was no more than what they did in England, where Bank issues were taxed by means of stamp duties. Assuming, then, that "ways and means" can be found, if the scheme of improvements should be adopted, he (Mr. Hincks) would state as briefly as possible his views upon this subject. He certainly could not conceive, with his hon. and learned friend from Hastings (Mr. Baldwin), why all other improvements should give way to the St. Lawrence and Welland Canals. — Those great works ought certainly to be completed, and they were, perhaps, of the most essential importance, as a larger portion of the population would benefit by the reduction in the cost of transport; but he (Mr. Hincks) would never consent that all other improvements should be stopped until those works should be completed. As the representative of an agricultural population, he (Mr. H.) would contend that the internal communications should be improved, so as to enable our own farmers to get their produce to market at as little cost as possible. There were works of great importance recommended in the Message of His Excellency, every one of which had been already commenced, and ought to be completed. The main road from Hamilton westward was a work which he (Mr. H.) would never consent to have postponed, and even in the section of country with which his hon. and learned friend was more immediately connected, there were roads the completion of which it was most desirable to ensure; for instance, the proposed road between Toronto and Lake Haron (sic). He (Mr. H.) knew nothing of the proposed undertakings in the Eastern section of the Province, but he was bound to state that in his opinion all included in the scheme for the West were indispensably necessary. He would go further. He had to regret that in the resolutions no provision was made for those macadamized and planked roads commenced on the security of several districts in Upper Canada, for which appropriations had been made by the Legislature, on the faith of which those works had been commenced. He (Mr. Hincks) would explain to the Committee the absolute necessity that existed for including these works, and he could hardly entertain a doubt that the hon. and learned Secretary would consent to his proposition. When the assistance of Parliament was extended to these works, provision was made that if the tolls should not be sufficient to meet the interest, a direct tax was to be levied on the inhabitants of the balance. This then was unexceptionable security. Now it was proposed in the resolution to commence a planked road between Brantford and London, while on the east side of Brantford there were 8 or 10 miles of very bad road, which it was impossible to complete without the aid of the Legislature. It would be absurd to have these 8 or 10 miles in their present state, and to commence the planked road at Brantford. The same observation would apply to Yonge Street, which required immediate completion to the Holland Landing, which was the point at which the new road to Lake Huron was to commence. He (Mr. H.) felt that every hon. member must see the necessity that existed of completing these lines of road, and he would therefore move an amendment to that effect when the proper time came. He would conclude by stating that although quite ready to join in a vote to secure (sic) the completion of the St. Lawrence and Welland Canals in a substantial manner, he would not consent to any appropriation whatever, unless those improvements which were for the benefit of the agricultural population living at a distance from the navigable waters were placed on the same footing with those great works.<sup>53</sup>

Mr. Viger contended that the St. Lawrence Canal should be first completed; that the Lower Canadians had been accused of refusing to assist in its completion, and now, when desirous of doing so, they were opposed.<sup>54</sup>

Col. Prince could not agree to the very modest proposal of spending all the funds upon the St. Lawrence, and leave the Far West in its present miserable state of destitution. The Rideau Canal was quite as good as we could afford to have it — we have a line of communication, and shall we make another which is not absolutely necessary — shall we do so at the expense of all our internal improvements — he would never consent to that. The learned and venerable Member (Mr. Viger) had, in a very plausible manner, pleaded for the St. Lawrence Canal — the Hon. gentleman shakes his head, but he shakes nothing out of it — so, Sir, I will never submit to have a sponge upon the plan of improving our communication from Sarnia to London, and from Sandwich to London and Goderich. What will the Hon. gentleman say when he is told that such is the impassable state of the roads in that country, that persons are compelled to carry their grain on their backs to be ground; that an old woman cannot carry her basket of eggs to market; and that a pretty girl is obliged, in going to the nearest Magistrate to get married, to walk for miles together up to her knees in mud — (a laugh) — would not these improvements (sic) enable us to complete the others, by the larger quantity of produce which good roads would enable us to bring to it; extended agriculture and improved internal communications, would increase the tolls and render the whole more prosperous. We might go on very well as we are, for some years to come, with the St. Lawrence and the Rideau, and he thought we ought to be very grateful to the Queen's Government for the munificent assistance they were disposed to afford us.<sup>55</sup>

Mr. Cameron said the allusions made by the hon. gentleman from Richelieu to that great and liberal man — De Witt Clinton were by no means at point, or if an argument could be drawn from them it would be in favor of internal improvements, the Erie Canal ran through the centre of the greatest agricultural districts of the State of New York — it was to open up the wild and remote parts of the State — to induce emigration and to forward the agricultural interest, and not as in the case of the St. Lawrence to obtain foreign trade, the improvement of the St. Lawrence was in the power of the Americans but they never thought of touching it. He (Mr. C.) would not from this or any other statement be misunderstood — even allow any one to suppose him opposed to the St. Lawrence; he was willing now that £50,000 to complete the work lying in an unfinished state between the Long Sault and Cornwall, be put the first item on the list — but he would not consent that the whole contemplated expenditure be put on the list at once, and so leave nothing for local improvement. The hon. gentleman from Richelieu, knows little of the geography of Canada when he took upon himself to state that the work benefited the whole country, how for instance did it benefit the Ottawa District and the Bathurst District; did the hon. gentleman not know that their only outlet was the Ottawa — and that the noble River was entirely neglected? — that the roads in these Districts were impassable (sic), and the scheme before the House was to deprive them of the very trifling amount proposed by government, he (Mr. C.) could never agree to the proposition. The hon. member had alluded to the United States, he (Mr. C.) could assure him the government of that Country did not leave internal and local improvements to the poor emigrant, — no, in many cases before a settler goes into a Township, in fact before a survey takes place, the government often laid out public highways — military and state roads — and so the settlers had free egress and ingress to the market towns and navigable waters — not so had it been with the poor settlers of Canada, they were let into the wilderness — but left to work themselves out the best way they could. The hon. gentleman seemed to know as little of the West as he did of the North — the highway from Hamilton to Lake Huron was the greatest thoroughfare for American travel that could be made in Canada; and would pay better than any other expenditure. He (Mr. C.) would say no more — but felt assured that the greatest good to the greatest number could only be produced by the adoption of the scheme as it stood, and leaving the Beauharnois Company to get the £500,000 for the St. Lawrence, as there was good reason to believe they would do.<sup>56</sup>

After a great deal of discussion, the House divided upon Mr. Merritt's amendment that £_____ be voted for the St. Lawrence Canal, out of the sums to be raised, which was carried by a majority of one, the numbers being 29 and 30. The Chairman, Dr. Gilchrist, would have voted against it, had there been an equality of votes in the House. A great clamour accompanied the declaration of the numbers, and probably a greater degree of excitement never existed on any question.<sup>57</sup>

House in Committee on Message on Public Improvements.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency the Governor General, relative to Public Improvements, together with the documents accompanying the same, and other references, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Durand took the chair of the Committee.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Secretary Harrison again rose, and said it had now become his duty to propose that the blank in the amendment by Mr. Merritt, carried the evening before, should be filled up, and he should take the liberty of moving that it be filled up with the sum of £59,170, being the sum necessary for completing the Canal as far as Cornwall. It must be considered that the estimated sum to complete that navigation would require a sum of £750,000 more than any provision was made. It had been said that the revenue might be increased by the tolls — he did not think the tolls were exactly a fit subject to pledge in the shape of revenue; it would be many years before the tolls would be receivable; then there was the expense of management, besides which, sure calculation must be made as to the ultimate liquidation of those large sums. He regretted that a majority of that House had thought it right to oppose the scheme recommended to them by Government, in the establishment of a Bank of Issue; but as they had done so, some other source of revenue must be found. He should, however, have great pleasure in going with the House, in adopting any source they may recommend, and he would, therefore, move, that the blank be filled up with £59,170.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Merritt said, Hon. Members did not understand the position; he had at first filled up the blank with £500,000, but ran his pen through it, intending to make it a separate motion. He denied that it was his intention to exclude all other public works; nothing was farther from his intention; he wished them all to go on, and we had plenty of means open to us; he only asked for £500,000, to go on with the St. Lawrence, and nobody denies, except, indeed, the Member for Lanark, that a saving of freight to the country would be made of three-fourths of the present cost of up freight, and one-half of that down — this was no theoretical speculation — it was practically true, and could be made fully apparent. The Erie Canal had been conducted on credit, and now pays £100,000 per annum to the Civil Government; no taxes have been raised, but the tolls have repaid the outlay. He would pledge all the Canals to pay the interest of the sum necessary to complete this important work, and they would be fully competent to do so; it would be considered as good a security as could be offered, and any capitalist would gladly lend money upon it. He moved that the blank be filled up with £500,000.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Johnston protested against the House being carried away by the wild schemes of the Member for Lincoln.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Watts said he voted yesterday by mistake; he was decidedly in favour of all public improvements; and if he thought that the proceeding with the St. Lawrence would interfere with them, he would vote against it, but if funds could be obtained, he would vote for the St. Lawrence. He thought the tax proposed by the Member for Oxford (Mr. Hincks) on Banks, would drive capital out of the country, and he thought a tax on distilleries or spirits of wine, 6d. per gall. would be a productive tax. He also (sic) thought a large revenue might be obtained from an alteration in our inland customs. He certainly thought the St. Lawrence Canal ought to be one of our first works. In draining a field, a person always first made the main drain. He was always led to believe, that the necessary funds could be obtained from the North American Land Company, upon condition that the Canal was made on the south (sic) side of the river.<sup>5</sup>

Captain Steele in rising to oppose the amendment of the Hon. Member for Lincoln, (Mr. Merritt) did not intend to vote against the second Resolution — “That as soon as a loan of not less than £500,000 can be negotiated by the Government, at a reduced rate of interest, the improvements of the St. Lawrence should be completed,” — but he foresaw the Hon. Member’s amendment, by appropriating £950,000 to the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals, would exclude every other important work, particularly the great military and commercial communications to Sarnia and Penetanguishene, included in the second Resolution, involving the defence of the Province, opening to thousands in the back townships markets, and encouraging emigration. The staple commodities of the Province are agricultural produce and lumber; to protect and encourage them was the first duty of the House of Assembly, and he maintained that the back Townships, whose interests were represented by a minority, should have their share of the revenues of the Province. The front has always been the favoured object of legislation, and the constituency of that portion of the Province has no reason to complain. What avails these contemplated (sic) improvements, of doubtful utility, if the backwoodsman be debarred all access to the great lakes and rivers in his front. Already that magnificent gift of the Mother Country, the Rideau Canal, (and there is every evidence to prove it) is adequate to the commercial interests of the Province. The great roads intersecting the country will, when completed, be intersected by other (District) roads, calculated to effect an entire change in the face of the country, by inviting capitalists to settle on farms. The English farmer cannot clear wild land, but he will find every inducement to purchase cleared land. He (Capt. S.) repeated, that without these works, the object of the Governor General to combine settlement and public works, and to attract emigration, will be defeated, and emigrants turned away from the country. In a military point of view, he (Capt. S.) maintained that these roads are necessary for defence. He requested Hon. Members to look at the map, and tell him, if, in one month after a declaration of war by the States, armed steamers from Buffalo would not command the waters of the Huron, and effect a landing in Nottawasaga Bay, within three days march of Toronto.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Neilson said the Hon. Secretary only meant it as a joke to propose so small a sum as he had named; a vote had been given in that House the evening before, and no matter whether carried by a majority of one, two, or three, it had the sanction of the House and ought to be respected; the blank ought to be filled up with £500,000, and the decision of the House, of last night, carried out in good faith; he would always submit to a majority, let it be what it might — he said that the country was a manufacturer of food, and any thing which tends to enable us to supply food cheap, benefitted the country. Our predecessors were generally forced to kill wild animals for their support, we raise, food for ourselves and for the supply of others also. The question was, what was the greatest benefit to the greatest number — and he did not choose that what had been done last night should be frustrated today. The Act of Union designed that we should become a united people, but it seems we are not to act together; his object was to improve the great communication, and give the natural advantages to Lower Canada, to which she was entitled. The Union Act (he was understood to say) was based upon our being enabled by this means to send our produce into Europe, where a remunerating price could be obtained for it.<sup>8</sup>

Dr. Dunlop was of opinion that our ideas were too munificent for our means. If, said he, the iron, tin, copper, and lead of Great Britain, together with her merchandize on the vast scale which in relation to them capital is embarked, can find a transit by means of canals which the member for North Lincoln would call mere ditches, what right have we to incur the enormous expense of such works as the St. Lawrence Canal. The great saving that it was estimated would be derived from the reduction of transit charges, he disagreed with; we had already the Rideau Canal, a most efficient public work, and were we now to be called upon to cramp our energies and at an enormous expense cut another canal parallel to it.<sup>9</sup> The £59,170 now proposed by the Secretary, was the estimated expense of completing the Canal to Cornwall.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Boswell said, the House seemed divided into two parties, of about equal numbers; some were for expending all the revenue on our great high-ways, whilst others were desirous that our internal improvements should go on at the same time. He was astonished at the illiberality of the Members for Hastings and Quebec, there was a narrow mindedness in it that could not be expected — who will deny that however desirable it may be to have a great high way to the ocean, it was not equally desirable, at least, that our farmers should be able to get at this great high-way. He believed the Welland Canal to have been highly important to the country, nor would he deny that the St. Lawrence might also be; but when he recollected that nearly half a million had already been expended on the Welland at least £491,000, and that now it was proposed to add to that sum £450,000, together above a million — and when he recollected that £450,000 had already been expended on the St. Lawrence, and that now £500,000, together nearly another million, and on both works two millions, he did feel that there was a disposition on the part of the Member for Lincoln, (Mr. Merritt) and his friends to monopolize, which he could not admire or approve. No doubt, in the course of time, the St. Lawrence will make a return for the sum expended, but so would other works. He (Mr. Boswell) thought he had greater reason to complain, on account of his District, than any other Member. £50,000 only had been proposed, when the Legislature had by its own Acts granted sums amounting to 5 or £600,000; many of these works were begun, and were now standing still for want of assistance.<sup>11</sup> With regard to the Trent he was understood to say that upwards of £70,000 had been granted, but never expended on it.<sup>12</sup> He, however, was disposed to assist in carrying out the plan of Government, by which all responsibility would rest on them, whereas, as matters were now going on, the House was taking upon itself the responsibility and relieving the Government of it altogether.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Simpson said there had been great jobbing in the former expenditure (sic); if the Lachine Canal was improved, the navigation would be equal to the wants of the country for the next hundred years to come.<sup>14</sup> ((He)) said, that if the St. Lawrence was carried out independent of other improvements, it would resemble a work completed at one end and obstructed at the other. He was of opinion that the Rideau alone was sufficient to answer our present exigencies, without incurring the enormous outlay of the St. Lawrence.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Thompson said, that the Americans had on Lake Erie three hundred steamboats, whilst we had only two; in case of war, therefore, we could not, of course, compete with them. Now, he wished to propose to the House to make a plank road from Hamilton to Port Dover, it would not cost more than £30,000, and he would, with permission of the House, read a letter he had just received....<sup>16</sup>

No, no, from all parts of the House....<sup>17</sup>

He ((Mr. Thompson)) however, persisted....<sup>18</sup>

The Chairman, Mr. Durand called ((Mr. Thompson)) to order....<sup>19</sup>

((Mr. Thompson)) Well, if he must not read, he would tell its contents, it was, as we understood in the noise which prevailed, intended to show the extent of the traffic upon the road he was advocating. Mr. Thompson said his road would produce £2,000 a year from the tolls. He objected to the proposed tax on Banks, and recommended that on American produce instead.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Hincks said, there did appear to him to be some misapprehension on the minds of some Hon. Members, there appeared but little real difference amongst Members — and they were, as it appeared to him, splitting straws; this was, perhaps, not the proper time to discuss the question, but there was, no doubt, a mode by which the objects of both parties may be carried out. He regretted that the failure of the Bank of Issue had occurred, because it created a loss of revenue, which must be supplied from some other source, and it was very satisfactory to know that there were plenty of others which could be made available, and he was glad to hear from Hon. Members who differed from him, that they will support Ministers in accomplishing it. — <sup>21</sup>

Yes, yes, yes! from several Members.<sup>22</sup>

((Mr. Hincks continued:)) We had to raise ways and means upon which there must be no contingency, no misunderstanding, and it would be perfectly easy for Members to do so, so as to go on with further improvement.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, the matter was a very simple one, a mere question of figures; we must find a revenue to pay the interest of the money required, or we endanger the whole scheme; it was quite clear that if the larger sum should be carried, other sources of revenue must be raised, or the internal improvements must be abandoned, and he thought the House would agree with him that this ought to to (sic) be, — (No, no.) We had no authority to go into the the (sic) market, but so far as the million and a half was concerned, so far we may safely go.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Aylwin put a question to Mr. Harrison, but from the noise and impatience of the House, we could not catch it.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Merritt said, Members must vote for the larger sum, unless they wished to lose the great object, and it was with great satisfaction that he had heard the Hon. Members for Richelieu and Quebec support the completion of the St. Lawrence Canal. The Lower Canadians had been blamed for standing in the way of its completion, and they now came forward and repudiated that charge....<sup>26</sup>

Hear, from Mr. Viger....<sup>27</sup>

((Mr. Merritt)) They were now met by the answer yes; but now we want some other thing — some road, a Port Dover road, or a London road, or some other road, all of a local character. Now, these Hon. gentlemen came forward on more general and enlarged grounds. All sorts of objections and difficulties are started, but it is because gentlemen do not understand the object, or they would not vote against it; vessels will pass without unloading and it will be of immense advantage. It is remarked that England has only small canals, why there will be more produce, and a greater extent of country to be supplied through the St. Lawrence, than all the canals in that country.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Johnston said that only one half of the money granted for roads and bridges by the last Parliament, had yet been raised and expended.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Parke said that the expenditure had been nearer £1,200,000 than any thing else on these Canals, and as now £900,000 more would be added, it would exclude and cut off all our internal improvements, and would, however it might serve the American farmer, do the greatest possible injury to the farmer of our country, and as he was not disposed to sacrifice our interests to that of foreigners, he was willing to vote the sum now proposed by the Hon. Secretary, and then the party demanding it would have the larger half of the money to be expended. The Member for Lincoln had voted against the Bank of Issue, by which revenues were to be obtained, and now still demands the amount. In the interior of the London District, an improvement of the road would add 8d to 10d per bushel to the profit of the farmer. That important class of men are already sinking into despair, and the Member for Lincoln would give them ample cause for it.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Holmes said if the Secretary adhered to the smaller sum, he would vote for the amendment; but he thought it might be raised off the collection of our Custom duties, which he believed to be a mere nullity. A Comptroller should be appointed who should narrowly examine into the collection of all duties, and not allow (sic), as was now the case, that persons paid just so much duty as suited their own convenience, or their own fancy. He believed 1d per gallon on whiskey would yield an addition of £10,000 to our revenue. This, with the auction duty, and a moderate duty on Bank stock — for he would not deny that such a tax was a fair subject of revenue — would produce more than the sum required.<sup>31</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said he believed we could raise a sufficient revenue to do all the works now contemplated, and he hoped measures would be taken for that purpose, and that the Hon. Secretary would withdraw his motion. (No, no.) He was as desirous as any one that the Canal should be completed; but he never would consent to see that done to the exclusion of all other works. He hoped we should raise all the revenue required, for it would be now or never.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Harrison's original motion was then put, and lost by a majority of one.<sup>33</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab then proposed that the sum be £100,000.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Buchanan, who came to the House after the last vote was taken, then proposed that the sum of £315,700 be voted, which was carried, after a great deal of confusion, by a majority of one. This amount is the sum estimated by the Board of Works as required to complete the improvements of the St. Lawrence from the Longue Sault to Lachine.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Hincks then gave notice of his intention to propose a tax on Bank issues of two per cent, and contended that that sum would not be equal to the stamp duty paid by the English bankers.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Harrison said there was no objection to follow up the wishes of the House.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said that he thought we ought to stop where we were, and not to vote any more taxes.<sup>38</sup>

A great sensation was produced in the House by this declaration of Mr. Baldwin; when some Members called out, that now he had got all his party wished, he was about to skulk.<sup>39</sup>

Committee on Petition of E. Parent present
report.

Mr. Baldwin from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of E. Parent, Esq., presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"The Committee to whom was referred the Petition of Etienne Parent, Law Clerk of the late House of Assembly of Lower Canada, have carefully examined the said Petition, and after having satisfied themselves of the correctness of the facts therein set forth, have come unanimously to the following conclusions :

That it is not just that the Petitioner should suffer from the difference which arose as to the mode of his appointment, particularly as the same was acknowledged in the Despatch from the Secretary of State, sent down to the House of Assembly by His Excellency the then Governor-in-Chief of the late Province of Lower Canada, as being a mere matter of form; and the more so as the claim on the part of the Executive Government in respect of the appointment, was not absolute in its terms, but amounted merely to raising the question, which remained to be subsequently settled between two high constituted authorities; and pending which, it would have been presumption in Mr. Parent to have taken upon himself to prejudge the matter by declining to perform the duties of the office.

That the said question, owing to the peculiar circumstances that have occurred in the late Province of Lower Canada, has never been settled, or even discussed, and it has now ceased, in the opinion of your Committee, to be a question which it would be expedient to re-open.

Mr. Parent, has since become a Representative of the People, and thereby assumed duties inconsistent with the appointment alluded to; but your Committee are of opinion that he ought, in justice, to be placed on the same footing with all the other Officers of the late House of Assembly of Lower Canada, up to the day on which he consented to be elected as a Member of your Honourable House.

Your Committee is also of opinion that Mr. Parent, having been deprived for several years of the remuneration to which he was entitled, as an Officer of the House of Assembly of the late Province of Lower Canada, and having performed the duties of his Office until the suspension of the Constitution of that Province, should receive a reasonable compensation for the loss he has suffered, from not having received that to which he is, in the opinion of your Committee, entitled, at the same time that the other Officers of the House were paid their respective claims."

Committee on Petition of S. Garnsey and others, report.

Mr. Powell, from the select Committee to which was referred the Petition of Samuel Garnsey, and others, inhabitants of the Township of Bayham, and other references, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee have carefully considered the Petition of John Toyne and others, of the Township of Oakland, and are of opinion, that, from the peculiar position of that Township, it being situated at a remote distance from the District Town of the District of Brock, and within a much less distance from the District Town of the Talbot District, it would be conducive to the interests of its Inhabitants, if that Township were attached to the last named District; nevertheless, as it has appeared in evidence before your Committee, that a portion of the Inhabitants of that Township are averse to the change, your Committee are not prepared to recommend a compliance with the prayer of the Petition at present.

As regards the Petition of Samuel Garnsey, and others, of the Township of Bayham, your Committee are of opinion, that that Township has strong claims to being attached to the County of Norfolk, for several reasons, amongst which may be enumerated.

1st. — Its proximity to the District Town of the Talbot District.

2nd. — The doubtful position in which that Township is placed as to what County, if any, it actually belongs.

3rd. — The very general anxiety manifested by the inhabitants of the Townships as appears, from various Petitions and letters, that the said Township should be attached to the County of Norfolk. —

Your Committee have also considered the Petition of James Covernton, and others, of the District of Talbot, and are of opinion that the very limited extent of the District, as set forth in that Petition, affords an additional reason for annexing to it the Township of Bayham,

Your Committee, therefore, recommend, that the Township of Bayham be annexed to the County of Norfolk, in the District of Talbot."

Ordered — That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Monday next.

Ordered — That Mr. Duggan have further leave to absent himself from this House until the 10th Instant.

The Order of the day for taking into consideration the amendments made by the Legislative Council to the Bill entitled "An Act to regulate the currency of this Province," being read,

The House proceeded accordingly to take the said amendments into consideration.

House in Com. on Amendments of L. Council to Currency Bill.

Amendments.

1st. to 5th Amendments agreed to.

And the first to the fifth, inclusive of the said amendments being again severally read and the question of concurrence being separately put thereon, they were agreed to by the House.

6th & 7th agreed to.

(480)

The sixth and seventh of the said amendments being again severally read, and the question of concurrence being separately put thereon, the House divided upon each, and they were carried in the affirmative.

Remaining Amendments agreed to.

The residue of the said amendments being again severally read, and the question of concurrence being separately put thereon, they were agreed to by the House.

Ordered — That Mr. Holmes do carry back the said Bill to the Legislative Council, and acquaint their Honors that this House hath agreed to their amendments.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Baldwin moved to Resolve, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Viger, Resolution proposed respecting the influence of Parliament over the Executive Government.

That the most important, as well as the most undoubted, of the political rights of the people of this Province, is that of having a Provincial Parliament, for the protection of their liberties, for the exercise of a constitutional influence over the Executive Departments of their Government, and for Legislation upon all matters which do not, on the grounds of absolute necessity, constitutionally belong to the Jurisdiction of the Imperial Parliament, as the paramount authority of the Empire.<sup>2</sup>

Some explanation took place between Mr. ((Baldwin)) and Mr. Secretary Harrison, who stated that a series of resolutions had been prepared by himself and colleagues in which he Mr. Baldwin had concurred, and that he expected that these would have been proposed by that gentleman.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Baldwin stated that he wished his own resolutions put on record, but as he considered those referred to by the learned member for Kingston substantially the same, he should not oppose them.<sup>4</sup>

The Hon. Mr. Moffatt thought it useless to take up the time of the House with this subject....<sup>5</sup>

Orders of day moved.

(480)

The Honourable Mr. Moffatt moved, seconded by Mr. Sherwood, That the Orders of the day be now called.

Lost.

The question being put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.

Motion to consider the Resolution to-morrow.

Sir Allan MacNab moved, seconded by Captain Steele,

That the said Resolution be taken into consideration in a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

Lost.

The question being put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.

House in Com. on Message on Public
Improvements.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to Public Improvements, together with the documents accompanying the same, and other references, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Durand took the chair of the Committee.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, on the subject of our Public Improvements, which was next on the order of the day, it would be necessary, under the plan which had been laid down, before proceeding further, to propose a substitute for the Bank of Issue, which the House had thought proper to reject. He should, therefore, in the first instance, submit to the consideration of the House a tax upon Bank issues, or to speak more correctly, upon Bank circulation. He would therefore propose to the House, as a substitute for a part of that revenue, a tax of 2 per cent upon the amount of the circulation of the Banks in the Province. It had been proposed to levy the tax upon Bank Capital, as being the more easily ascertained, but he thought it unwise and impolitic to tax capital in any shape — the want of capital being the greatest evil we have to encounter. This tax will be analogous to the stamp duty in England, and will be paid periodically. It is a principle which has been clearly recognized in the United States, and he believed would be found as little oppressive as any tax which could be levied.<sup>8</sup> It was a legitimate tax, which we were justified in having recourse to, in order to make up the deficiency of the revenue. He would move, therefore, "Resolved, that it is expedient that a tax of 2 per cent, be imposed on the average amount of the issues of all banking institutions in the Province."<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said that it was a breach of faith, towards those who had embarked their capital, in the profits of banking, under the guarantee of charters granted by the government, and that we must be badly off indeed to be compelled to resort to such a revenue. That the Banks had been brought into existence, upon the contract which had been entered into with them; — that many had purchased stock at a premium of 15 and 16 per cent. who by this means would be robbed of their property.<sup>10</sup> He had noticed, what had fallen from his Hon. friend, the Member for Montreal, (Mr. Holmes) who had said that, under certain conditions, he would not oppose the proposed tax. It reminded him of an anecdote told of two Scotch Bishops, when His then Majesty asked one of them, whether he did not think it right that his brother Bishop should be taxed, replied, most certainly, — but when asked again, if he ought not to be taxed as well as his brother Bishop, replied, that was a very different case. Now, brother Holmes wants a new Charter — the Commercial Bank has no such application to make, because their Charter has fifteen years to run before it expires. He stigmatized the taxation of the existing Banks as a public baeach (sic) of faith, whether it was for so large or so trifling an amount. It might be true that Bank Stock was a profitable investment — but the Charters of these Institutions had been sought by the Stockholders, and granted by the Legislature for a given number of years, and however just and politic it might be to tax future Charters, he could not contend that to tax those now in existence, was extremely unjust — and a measure to which he would never give his assent, if he stood alone in his opposition to it.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Price thought this measure a very ingenious way of forcing the Bank of Issue into operation. He was connected with no bank, nor did he owe any bank a sixpence; he was not, therefore, in the power of any of them. He thought, too, that 2 per cent was far too high a tax. It would prevent capital being brought into the country, and induce the banks to close their business — for even if the profits of banking was (sic) now 8 per cent, to put on the proposed tax, would reduce the profits to 5 per cent, and no one would be induced to purchase bank stock. — (A laugh.)<sup>12</sup>

The hon. Secretary (Mr. Harrison) showed by various estimates of the capital, issues, and business of the various banks, that his proposition would not affect them generally to the amount of more than  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. throughout the Province.<sup>13</sup>

Dr. Dunlop in reply to Mr. Cartwright's observations, said Mr. Holmes had proposed taxing Distilleries to the amount of a penny per gallon on Whisky. Were that put into execution it would stop distillation throughout the Province, and we should have the whole of our Whiskey smuggled from the United States, as reckoning the price of it in Ohio it would be 8 per cent. Mr. Merritt said that taxing Banks would make the whole capital leave this country — and with his usual inconsistency read a passage which proved that the Banks of Massachusetts paid one per cent. for management, so that only six per cent. was left to the Shareholders. He called upon him to show why capital had not left taxed Massachusetts and flowed into the Banks of untaxed Canada. He had said much on taxing issues, as if circulating Bank Notes was the only profit Banks obtained; if that was the case the London Bankers in England who issued no Bank notes of their own, must be in a state of starvation. Lastly, he (Mr. M.) proposed that these taxes should be only temporary — until his grand Canals paid for themselves, if that were to be the case, he (Dr. D.) very much feared that the taxes would be permanent. Mr. Roblin had drawn a comparison between money invested in Banking and Farming securities — he showed £1000 in the former would yield at least £60 per annum, and in the latter could not be expected to yield more than £47 10s. 0d, yet he preferred the Farm as it remained forever, whereas a misfortune might ruin the Bank and leave it penniless. — (Dr. D.) would like to know where the Farmer would be, if his barn, stock, agricultural implements, and all that gave him the power of carrying on his business, were by an accident burned; he would have the land to be sure, but he would not be in a much more enviable situation than the Banker whose Bank had failed. Mr. Cartwright had said that taxing the Banks after giving them a Charter, was an absolute breach of faith in Government — he (Dr. D.) had received 1000 acres of land from Government for his services, long before land tax was dreamt of — he had purchased a farm since, when the land tax was only nominal, this House had since that period taxed land slightly — and by an Act of this Parliament had taxed it heavily, much more heavily indeed than Bank Stock, yet as it was for the advantage of the country at large, he objected not to a tax upon land, which did not yield him as much as a billet of firewood; while Bank Stock was yielding from 10 to 12 per cent., though he had as good a right to say that Government had broke faith with him in taxing land he had received for his services, or that he had afterwards purchased, as Mr. Cartwright had to say that they had done so to him in any other mode in which he chose to invest his capital. Mr. Price had gone into an elaborate argument to prove that as the profits on the Bank were only 8 per cent. a tax on its issues of 2 per cent. would reduce it to 5 (sic). Besides that, he (Dr. D.) could not see the arithmetical sequitar (sic) (a laugh) of this, the hon. gentleman had forgot the bonus, which generally amounted at least to 2 per cent.; and it may be remembered by many here that when the Bank of Upper Canada got their augmentation they issued as usual an 8 per cent. dividend and a 12 per cent. bonus — making in one year 20 per cent. Mr. Buchanan stated that this was only the Bank of Issue in another shape, that 8 per cent. which was what the Banks generally paid, was very moderate indeed. The Farmer — pay him and his family the usual wages of the country, & give them at the end of the year their wages, and 8 per cent. on the value of their Stock and Farm, and implements of Agriculture, would think himself exceedingly well paid, and he (Dr. D.) was convinced that no farmer in Canada made so much. But he (Mr P.) had still gone into the error that 8 per cent. was all the Banker gained — the fact was public and notorious that 10 per cent. was the usual profit upon Banks. Acts of Government to incorporate Companies gave no pledge whatever that these Companies should not be taxed; an Act of Incorporation only gave to a number of individuals some portion of the power of doing as a body what every one of them had a right to do for himself, and no more implied an immunity from taxation than an immunity from decease. Dr. Dunlop thought it was a matter of moonshine, whether you put the tax upon the Capital or the Issues, people had been racking their brains for subjects of taxation — he thought productive matters were the most proper objects to be taxed. Steamboats engrossed a great part of the property of this Province, but they paid no revenue to Government; even common Tavern License, that every log shanty selling Whiskey did.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. McLean said, how would you like a tax upon Bachelors? <sup>15</sup>

((Dr. Dunlop)), admirably — luxury is always a legitimate object of taxation. The Chancellor of the Exchequer seemed to think he had enough, but in cutting our cloth according to our coat, he (Dr. D.) would always wish to have a little selvidge (sic) for overlapping and cabbage — however, if it was not necessary to tax them now, we might accord to the Steamboat proprietors that grace which Polyphemus accorded Ulysses (sic), that they should be the last to be devoured.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Cartwright replied that if bank property was taxed, all property ought also to be taxed; he saw great difficulty, too, ascertaining what the issues were.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Morris said if this tax was necessary, the Banks ought to be allowed to increase their capital.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Cameron was much surprised at hearing the Member for Lenox (sic) and Addington object to the right of imposing a tax upon banks. He (Mr. Cartwright) (sic) had no objection to the imposition of a tax upon merchants' stores, and perhaps the House would be astonished to hear that the largest establishment in the Province paid a tax of only 16s 4d a year. A licence (sic) for selling liquor amounted, he believed, to £8; he thought an advance on the tax on Dry Good Stores, equally equitable with a tax on Banks.<sup>19</sup> Mr. Cameron affirmed that the average of Banking profits for some years past in Upper Canada had been together with bonuses about 12 per cent.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Morris said he was surprised to hear the Member for Oxford assert that the stamps paid by English bankers, amounted to a sum equal to what the proposed tax of 1 per cent on the Bank circulation would be. The truth was, that they paid a commuted tax of 3s 6d (sic) per cent. only, and he thought that the Hon. Member ought to have made himself well acquainted with the facts of the case, before he made such statements. He (Mr. Morris) felt persuaded that the proposed tax would not only prevent capital from coming into the Province, but that it would also force it out of the Province. If any tax was imposed on Banks, it ought to be only a very light one, as it was a matter of primary importance to increase the capital of the country.<sup>21</sup> Mr. Morris then moved an amendment — Resolved "That in order to make up the deficiency in the revenue for public works  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent. be imposed upon all paid up capital in banking institutions in the Province."<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Hincks said, it would not be thought surprising, that both Mr. Cartwright and Mr. Morris should oppose a tax upon Banks, connected as they both were with them. The latter gentleman stated that he (Mr. Hincks) was inaccurate in asserting that the English bankers paid a sum for stamps about equal to that which the proposed tax here would be. He had since found that a recent alteration had been made, by which banks in England had been allowed to commute the sum paid for stamps, and that it amounted to about what that gentleman (Mr. Morris) stated. The Hon. Member for Lenox (sic) and Addington admitted the principle of taxing Banks, but denied the right to tax the Commercial Bank, of which he is the President. There is little difference whether the capital is taxed or the circulation. Ways and means must be provided, and he was of opinion that taxing the circulation would be less objectionable than taxing the capital.<sup>23</sup> He was for one reason partly opposed to the resolution; — because it would prevent a Bank of Issue from being established, which he was decidedly in favor of, as a source of revenue, and securing a sound circulation.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Holmes had stated yesterday that, as it was indispensable to raise a sum by taxation, Banking capital was a fair subject for taxation — but he thought the tax should be much lighter. All we wanted to do was to raise a sum of £20,000 per annum. Now he believed that the sum (£20,000) required, could readily be raised by a tax of 1d per gallon on whiskey, which he believed would pay a revenue of £6,000; one per cent on all goods sold by auctioneers would realize £6,000; and he had no doubt, by a supervision of our method of collecting the existing duties, £10,000 per annum would be added to our annual revenue, which would furnish the required amount. There was nothing more wanted than the supervision of a Comptroller, whose business it should be to examine all the books of the Collectors — their mode of collecting the duties — and not allow the present loose mode of doing so to continue, in which Collectors applied to merchants to know what their duty amounted to. The duties were, collected he believed, in a very nefarious manner. If a duty on bank issues was levied, he thought (sic) 10s (sic) per cent ample, and would produce a revenue of £20,000. He thought a tax on issues a tax on industry, and in that view of it, objectionable. The Hon. Member for Lenox (sic) and Addington (Mr. Cartwright) had said that he (Mr. H.) did not object to a Bank tax, because the Bank which he had the honour to represent was applying for a Charter. He could not see why because some of the Banks, from mere accidental causes, happened to have a few years of their Charters unexpired, should be exempt. The fact was, in consequence of the troubles in Lower Canada, it had been found impossible to get the Charter revived for a longer period than when the first Parliament should assemble; and it was under these circumstances, that he now applied for a Charter — which, if not granted, they would wind up their affairs — a circumstance which, he believed, would be considered as disastrous to the Province. The Upper Canada Banks had no claims greater than those of the Lower Province, and he believed he might, with confidence, say, that they had by their conduct merited the confidence of the public in an equal degree — (Yes, yes.) He (Mr. Holmes) would second the amendment to make the tax half per cent on the capital, in the full expectation that the prayer of the petition for the renewal of their Charter would be granted — and he also relied that several useless restrictions would be removed — such as limiting their issues — or taking out of circulation all notes under the amount of $4. Government at home could not possibly understand the monetary affairs of a new country like this, and they ought not to interfere with them; how can they possibly be the judge whether our notes should be $1 or $4. He would like to know where the benefit to be derived was, in taking out of circulation the dollar notes, for the purpose of introducing silver dollars. Which was better, for a man to carry £100 of dollars in a bag on his back, or £100 in dollar notes in his pocket. It was (sic) well known that during the progress of the Rideau Canal, an escort of troops accompanied the casks of silver dollars necessary to pay the contractors, who, when they arrived, immediately carried them back by the same barge, for the purpose of getting notes from the Banks. Such an interference would be injurious to the community, and would withdraw large sums of money from circulation. The greatest safeguard the House could have, was to prevent Banks from issuing more than their paid up capital, in which case the public would never lose a fraction by them.<sup>25</sup> The hon. member said that in England, Bank Capital was taxed only 4/7 of 1 per cent; — reprobated the government for presuming to dictate how the banks should transact their business, and what notes they should issue, and proposed to amend the resolution by substituting a tax upon capital for issues.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Merritt said there was no difficulty in raising ways and means without taxing Banking capital; he objected to that tax.<sup>27</sup> ((He)) expressed his freedom from any inducement to support the Banks, which had been carrying on their business at 18 per cent. for money. He was ((of)) opinion that whether capital or issues were taxed it would amount to the same thing — an income tax he thought would be the most proper one to lay on. He would however vote for the present resolution if it was modified — 2 per cent. tho' he said would drive all the capital out of the country.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Roblin was for taxing the capital not the issues, an opposite course he regarded as a restraint upon industry. If any kind of property admitted of taxation he was inclined to think that Bank stock ought to be subject it among the first — he would say however that ½ or ¾ of 1 per cent. was an extent sufficient to carry it.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Simpson said the tax should be upon the issues which was a privilege granted to the Banks — justifying the Parliament in demanding some portion of an equivalent for it.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb suggested an amendment, to limit the tax to ½ of 1 per cent.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Hincks said that the amendment would raise only £11,000 out of the £20,000 required. His object to tax the issues was, that those who reaped the benefit of the privilege should pay for it, otherwise a bank which did not issue, if it was to be upon capital, would pay the same as one that did.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Buchanan thought it could not be denied that the capital of Banks was subject to taxation as well as any other property — but he thought the amount should not exceed the Bank of Issue scheme. He had received on that subject a petition from the Board of Trade at Toronto, which he would take the liberty to read. —

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, in Provincial Parliament assembled.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONORABLE ASSEMBLY, —

THE PETITION OF THE BOARD OF TRADE OF THE CITY OF TORONTO

Humbly Sheweth

That, your petitioners have beheld with serious apprehension and alarm, the projection of a scheme to establish a Provincial Bank, as set forth in a Bill now before Your Honorable Assembly, with the exclusive privilege of issuing Notes, and they deprecate this measure as being fraught with danger of the prominent interests of the Country.

That, in accordance with the general sense of the population, Your Petitioners express their perfect confidence in the Chartered Banks of this Province, and cannot approve of a restraint upon their operation so detrimental as is contemplated in the Bill to establish a Provincial Bank of Issue.

That the dividends paid to the Stockholders by the Banks here are, generally, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum — which cannot be deemed an exorbitant profit, nor is it so much as is frequently paid by the Joint Stock Banking Institutions of England. Besides, this kind of investment is almost the only one yielding a sure return for Capital in the Country; and, should it be interfered with, a farther (sic) influx of Capital will not only be prevented, but, many of the present Stockholders, retiring under pressure and disposing of their Stock at a sacrifice, there must eventually be a dissolution of the Banks.

That Legislative interference with the Banks, as in the manner proposed, would be unjust towards the Stockholders, — who have invested their means on the faith of the security and privileges guaranteed to them by the Acts of Incorporation.

That it does not appear that increased facilities would be extended to the public by the proposed Bank of Issue, but, on the contrary, that, under its operations, the means of the Bank to accomodate the Mercantile and Agricultural Community, would be materially circumscribed.

That, in view of the powers proposed to be conferred on the Governor and the Bank Commissioners by this measure, Your Petitioners disapprove of it as a hazardous and uncalled for experiment, — most dangerous to the growing interest of the country.

That, the said Bank of Issue, if established, will be particularly injurious to Upper Canada — where the circulation of Bank Notes is far greater in proportion to the Capital than in Lower Canada.

That the chief object of the Institution, as it appears by the Message of His Excellency the Governor General to the Honorable the Commons House of Assembly, is to aid the Revenue — but, in the estimation of Your Petitioners, the projects for which that Revenue is required are, in themselves sufficient to inspire the Government and Parliament with the highest confidence, to resort to other and less objectionable means to raise it.

That, entertaining these views and apprehensions of a Provincial Bank of Issue, and acknowledging the increasing wants of the Country; Your Petitioners respectfully suggest an enlargement of the Capital of the present Chartered Banks, to the extent prayed for by them severally — and they farther (sic) pray, that, you will not sanction the Bill to establish a Provincial Bank of Issue; but, that, at least, you will defer passing it into an Act until the public shall have had an opportunity of bestowing upon it, a more matured consideration.

And your Petitioners as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

Signed

G.P. RIDOUT

Pres. Toronto Board Trade, and others.

We find ourselves in a curious position — Last night we were endeavouring to do away the Usury Laws, and to-day we are taxing property; he would support the amendment. He believed a very large addition may be made to our revenue from a supervision of the mode of collection of the duties — and he felt assured that, that source of revenue might be increased £20,000 per annum.<sup>33</sup> However, if it was decided that the banks should be taxed, he thought that  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent. and not more should be levied upon the capital, not the issues.<sup>34</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought that the tax should be half per cent on the issues; if that alteration was made in the amendment he would vote for it; which would produce £10,000 per annum. — (No, no.) I say, yes. He (Sir Allan) did ((not)) like taxing capital, it was inconsistent with responsible government.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Moffatt said, although he should find himself in a small minority, he would oppose the measure altogether. He thought it very inexpedient to tax the Banks, either on their capital or their issues, but if a tax must be levied, let it be on the capital rather than the issue. He would greatly prefer a tax on distilleries.<sup>36</sup> The hon. member then expressed his opinion in favour of a Bank of Issue, as securing to us a sound and safe circulation. Indeed he regarded such an establishment as holding out advantages to the present institutions, the expense that would be saved in plates, and reduction of their establishments promising in a period of five years to make up all the deficiencies that might be incurred at first.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Harrison said, if a Bank tax was imposed at all, he thought the tax should be on the circulation.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Neilson was sorry to hear the Chancellor of the Exchequer confinen (sic) them to the issues — taxes were a choice of evils. He could not deny that Government had the right to tax Banks.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb said he hoped it was not the object of that House to get at the golden egg — he opposed, in strong terms, the scheme of taxing Banks.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Moffatt, also, again opposed the measure.<sup>41</sup>

Mr. Holmes proposed the sum of 1 per cent....<sup>42</sup>

This was amended by Mr. Dunscomb it being reduced to  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1 per cent.<sup>43</sup>

This was also negatived, as well as a motion for  $\frac{3}{4}$  of 1 per cent.<sup>44</sup>

Mr. Holmes' previous motion then carried and the house adopted the resolution to the amount of 1 per cent upon the average circulation.<sup>45</sup>

Appendix, 3 September 1841.

((Question re : Canada Company.))<sup>46</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said that before the orders of the day were brought on, seeing the hon. Secretary for the West in his place, he begged leave to ask him a question — a commission had been sent to the county he had the honour to represent, to enquire into the expenditure of the public money by the Canada Company — the Chief Commissioner had been some time at Goderich and other parts of the Tract last autumn, had made many investigations....<sup>47</sup> had examined numerous witnesses, gone over the ground himself, and taken voluminous notes on the subject ; but since autumn last, when he left the County, we had never ((heard)) of him or the report.<sup>48</sup>

Mr. Harrison had no objection to answer the question ; the facts were as he (Dr. D.) stated. The notes taken were in his (Mr. H.'s) office, but the Chief Commissioner, on arriving from Goderich, was suddenly recalled to England. It was expected he would soon return, but should he not, a new Commission would be appointed, in whose hands would be placed the document alluded to.<sup>49</sup>

1. The EXAMINER, 8 September 1841, commented : "These rates it will be seen are in the same proportion, the dollar at 5s. 1d. being no more depreciated than the Sovereign at 24s. 4d. Our currency will be of the same value as in the United States, for although the dollar will be nominally 1d. higher, it must be recollected that dollars are almost invariably worth one per cent premium over gold."

2. The debate which followed the presentation of the Responsible Government Resolutions was reported by : LE CANADIEN, 8 September 1841, which is identical to KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841, both containing just the official report of the Resolutions and a commentary on them ; MONTREAL GAZETTE, 14 September 1841, containing the officially reported Resolutions ; KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841, containing the Resolutions and a commentary ; BRITISH COLONIST, 8 September 1841 ; EXAMINER, 8 September 1841, containing the debate and officially reported Resolutions. Despite the importance the Resolutions played in political life during the 1840's especially from the point of view of the Reform party, the reportage indicates that the issue considered by the newspapers to be really significant at least on that day of 3 September 1841 was the Bank of Issue. 6. "Mr. Baldwin rose to move certain unintelligible Resolutions.

Mr. Harrison moved in amendment some which we might call counter Resolutions, though they were precisely the same, except that the Grammar was corrected. Mr. Baldwin very complacently yielded to his rival's superior knowledge of Lindley Murray. Every body perceived it was a farce — and nobody interrupted the performers by any observation. The Magna Charta of Responsible Government is therefore now on the Journals of the House, understand it who may. The public at large seem to be coming into Dr. Dunlop's opinion, however much they abused him for it at first — 'that Responsible Government was a trap set by knaves to catch fools.'" This commentary on the debate and Resolutions is found in KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841.

7. The debate on the Bank of Issue which occurred was reported by : EXAMINER, 8 September 1841, containing reports of the debate and a commentary ; LE CANADIEN, 8 September 1841 ; BRITISH COLONIST, 8 September 1841 ; KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841, MONTREAL GAZETTE, 10 September 1841, and EXAMINER, 15 September 1841, all containing reports of this debate misdated Saturday 4 September 1841 instead of Friday 3 September. The EXAMINER copied its report from the KINGSTON CHRONICLE, using only 13 speeches and omitting the rest. The KINGSTON CHRONICLE and the MONTREAL GAZETTE report the same number of speeches, and the speeches are usually identical, except that occasionally one speech is somewhat shorter in one paper. Sometimes the KINGSTON CHRONICLE has a longer version of a speech, sometimes the MONTREAL GAZETTE has. Also, the order of speakers is not quite the same in the two papers. The reason that some, but not all, of the speeches are identical, is probably that the reporters from the two papers co-operated by taking turns copying speeches and taking notes during their lunch and break periods, and working independently at other times. The possibility exists that one paper merely copied its report from the columns of the other as was frequently the case. However, in this specific instance all the evidence indicates that co-operation between reporters is the reasonable explanation. The other alternative is that only one reporter handled the entire debate, but this is not likely because the debate was one of exceptional length and the usual alignments of reporters and newspapers militates against that possibility.

Carried.
House in Com. on the same.

So it was carried in the Affirmative.
And the House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
Mr. Turcotte took the chair of the Committee,

Col. Prince then submitted for the adoption of the committee, the following resolution : —
Resolved — That it is expedient to impose a tax upon agricultural produce and stock imported into this country from the United States, for consumption. The gallant and learned member said his remarks should be very brief, the opinions of every hon. member being, he thought, already formed. It was only fair, he contended, that there should be a reciprocal duty, — that such of our products and stock as were taxed by the Americans should be subject to a similar tax imposed by us.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Child said this would cut off the inhabitants of the Lower Province from their best markets — large droves of cattle being purchased in the Seigniories by the Americans, which would, if such a measure was adopted, be comparatively profitless — that the amount of flour admitted by us free of duty, gave strength and energy to that part of the country, and employment to capital.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Thompson said, that under the present system we paid 23 per cent., in support of the American Government, in the way of duty, the Americans taking cash only in payment from us, and that unless we in our turn, were allowed to levy a duty upon them, agriculture could never prosper in the country.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Cameron supported the resolution, showing that our farmers were utterly unable to grow flour at the price for which the Americans introduced theirs.<sup>6</sup>

Messrs. Viger and Dunscomb were both strongly opposed to the resolution, as militating against the interests of Lower Canada, with regard to stock.<sup>7</sup>

The latter gentleman (Mr. Dunscomb) then submitted an amendment, to the effect that stock should be exempt from the tax, urging that Upper Canada was purely a grain growing country, and therefore required no such reservation of interests.<sup>8</sup>

Col. Prince replied — that such an argument was decidedly in favour of the resolution. If the upper section was purely a grain growing country, why not enact a salutary law, for its protection and encouragement, unless the inhabitants of the Lower Province preferred purchasing their flour of the Yankees. Besides the quantity of hay imported from the States into this country, said the gallant and learned member, there is a great amount of American stock also introduced, — the consequence is, the efforts of our agriculturists are completely paralyzed (sic), for they are absolutely driven out of the market.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Moffatt expressed his opposition to both the resolution and the amendment, saying that a protecting duty provided by the Imperial Government, our imposing a duty on American produce, would be injurious to Lower Canada. With respect to stock, he thought that our provision trade with the West Indies would be on a much better footing if the Imperial Government would place it in the same position as the home provision trade. — He also asked by this restriction, if the price of flour would be raised in the British market? contending if that was not the case our object would be defeated.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Cartwright opposed the resolution, but having left the house for a short time, he was only heard to say that a protective system would have the effect of inundating us with Baltic wheat, purchased at a low price, and imported into this country as ballast.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Buchanan seconded the resolution from no wish to undervalue, or at all to interfere with the interest of the miller or carrier, but with a determination to get prosperity brought within the power of the Canadian farmer, as the general result of industry. His own idea had always been that the colonial duty now about to be levied, might have been avoided by a free trade being established between the colony and the mother country, Canada made British ground, and an Imperial fixed duty levied on our frontier instead of at the British ports, on American produce. — But as there seems no immediate prospect of this, their natural guardians, our Colonial Executive, seem rather philanthropists than patriots, being quite as pleased whether in Ohio or on British ground they make "the two blades of grass grow where there was before only one," therefore he (Mr. B.) had made up his mind to join the agriculturist in his own way of reasoning this great and crying grievance. Before the Union, no executive in Upper Canada could have held office without agreeing to protect the agriculturist. If a duty on the products of America coming in for home consumption effects no more, it will at least guard our circulaion and secure us our own money for the purchase of our own crop. But it will effect much more. It will enable the farmer confidently to depend on a remunerating price for the cattle he raises, as well as for the grain he grows. He (Mr. Buchanan) did not deny that we now get our grain introduced into the mother country on very advantageous terms, but he must deny most unequivocally that the practical result of this could be expected to be, or in practice is, that the Canadian farmer sends off his wheat to England and eats cheaper from the United States. He contended that the farmer did not get, as matter of fact, the full price warranted by the state or prospects of the English market, and he is interfered with in his own (the Canadian) market. The wheat of the United States (if only floured in Canada) being admitted into England on the same terms as if it were of Canadian growth, has the effect of reducing the inland markets of Canada, and the farmer only gets the trifle more than the price in the United States which it will take to bring wheat from that country to the mills in Canada, instead of a price nearly equal to the English price deducting transport and duty. Not only is production impeded but we (situated as things are) lose the best of the immigration. Even when one of these settlers who are most valuable (men of science as well as capital,) arrives out by the St. Lawrence, he finds on arriving at Kingston that it will be for his advantage to locate himself in the neighbourhood of Oswego, on the American side, instead of in the neighbourhood of Kingston, because, (settled there,) he has open to him all the American markets while he can enjoy the same privilege in the British market as the Canadian does, by only sending his grain to be ground in Canada, and while (which is surely most absurd) he is as free in Canadian markets as the Canadian farmer himself, wherever he finds it suits him, although the Canadian cannot enter the United States markets except under the most exorbitant (sic) duties. We have, therefore, to give specie or its equivalent for all we buy of the Americans or nearly all. Protection to the Canadian farmer in his own market can be easily attained without throwing obstacles in the way of the American produce passing through our communications, by taking bonds in settlement of duties on produce in transitu, liable to be cancelled by certificates of the shipment at Montreal or Quebec.<sup>12</sup> An increase in our trading community and carrying trade does not benefit our farmers, because it is at present the American farmer who supplies Canada with food of all kinds, although our products are debarred from all the American markets. He (Mr. Buchanan) would only point out one instance of hardship to the Canadian farmer; wool sells very high on the other side of the lake, in the State of New York, and very low on this side of the lake. Now, not only does the duty to the States amount to a prohibition on our wool, but Sir, the high return on the American's wool enables him to deluge the Canadian market with Yankee mutton, at a price at which the Canadian farmer cannot possibly afford to raise it.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Merritt then rose and said, that all admit, that farmers and those interested in agriculture believe, a duty on grain would encrease (sic) its value. If no other cause could be assigned, at variance with opinions, it is a sufficient reason to discuss the subject, in order to remove this error, or confirm their opinions, if well-founded. Greater injury has been done to the agriculturists by their advocates attempting to defend unsound principles, than all the arguments advanced by those entertaining opposite opinions. Public attention has been directed to those theories while the true cause has been kept out of view. I allow at once freely, that any quantity of grain or flour passing through Canada to Britain or any other part of the world — or that any duty this Legislature may impose, will not depreciate the price in that market; that the value of the article in Montreal, (when even the markets are better in Britain than America,) is governed by its value in Britain — that the value of a bushel of wheat on the north side of Lake Erie is governed by its value at Montreal, and not, as some of our advocates maintain, by its value on the south side of that lake, where the article is grown in place of being consumed, but I deny that the Canadian farmer derives the advantage he is entitled to, from a home market, and to this point alone I will confine my observations. The hon. member for Montreal maintains, that the Canadian farmer obtains a better price in Britain for all he grows — therefore he may sell it and purchase what he consumes, and be a gainer by the transaction. — Entertaining those opinions for many years, I am not insensible to the effects they produce — but, feeling equally confident, however plausible it may appear, that practically it does not produce that effect. In every country where the grower can sell at once to the consumer, without the intervention of third or more parties to lessen the profit, he obtains the highest price; — when compelled to sell to a foreign demand, the charges incident to changing hands — commission, duty, &c., which nearly equals 15s. per barrel for flour, leaves the market subject to constant fluctuations — the purchaser only gives the price the lowest market will warrant in Britain — and this uncertainty causes the market to be governed in most places by the home demand — which on the frontier is supplied from the United States, thus virtually depriving the farmer of his natural market. By imposing this duty, the Canadian grower would at all times and under all circumstances, have the benefit of the market in Canada as well as in Britain. — The price of grain would be increased precisely to the amount of the duty imposed, — whenever bread-stuffs were higher in Britain than in America, and the operation of the discriminating duty in England, intended for our benefit, will be visible by a comparison of the increased value of Canadian over the wheat of the adjoining States, which at this moment is not seen or felt because the farmer in the United States has the full benefit of our Home market as well as that of the Mother Country.

I therefore draw this marked distinction — that although the latter does not injure the Canadian grower — the former does. The hon. member for Richelieu says it will be unjust towards that portion of Lower Canada who are not wheat growers. I admit that whenever prices are higher in America than in Britain, it will increase the price to the consumer — but if, as I maintain, the agricultural interest forms the greatest portion of the population, it will be just. In the United States, although the wheat growing country is confined the to (sic) middle States, from Virginia to N. York, the cotton, tobacco, and sugar-grower of the south, as well as the manufacturer at the north, cheerfully submit to the tax when necessary — well knowing the increase of price for the products of the soil enhances the value of the soil also. From the great distance that we are situated from the sea, and thence to the West Indies, we can never hope for a share of that market. New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Newfoundland, obtain their supplies generally from the United States on better terms. We must, therefore, rely wholly on our market — from the Mother Country, to which I hope we will soon have free access — and for Home consumption our own country — to which the grower has a natural right, and as it will interfere with no other interest — neither with the miller, the forwarder, the commission agent, nor the shipper, I give the measure my cordial and hearty support. — <sup>14</sup>

Capt. Steele, in voting for the resolution before the committee, did so as the representative of a great agricultural county. The Canadian farmer only desired to obtain from the legislature a moderate protection to enable him to come into the market, without being undersold, by the introduction free of duty, of produce and live stock from the States, for home consumption. Live and let live was the just maxim which actuated him, and he would deprecate any thing injurious to the other great interests of the province. Let the miller, the forwarder, and the merchant in their turn, bear in mind, that this is an agricultural province, — and he (Capt. Steele) would call upon hon. members who represented the more favoured population in the front, to consider the interests of the back townships, by granting the protection sought for. <sup>15</sup>

Mr. Cameron said this was a subject, which admitted of no delay. He should not impede it even by a speech; but he must allude to two points, the one mentioned by the member for Richelieu, and the other by the member from Montreal (Mr. Moffatt). The member for Richelieu yesterday ably, philosophically, and metaphysically proved that the usury laws should be abolished in England but not in Canada, and that in general the laws that were a shield to a manufacturing country would be ruinous to an agricultural country. He showed that England was dependant on manufactures, but that Canada was exclusively an agricultural country, to-day. The matter is changed. The same laws and the same system in the very matter of agriculture itself, applies equally to both. Yesterday the hon. gentleman proved that you must respect the rate of interest — the lending of money — and to-day every thing must be free as air. He (Mr. C.) was an advocate for general free trade; but where is it carried out? Not at all events in Canada. The farmer must pay 30 per cent duty for his boots and shoes; 30 per cent for his books; 20 per cent for his tobacco. — 15 per cent for his cotton sheeting or other goods. — 15 per cent for his leather; and then, forsooth, he told you must give free trade to all the world in agricultural products — the United States, the Russians — every body may sell in your market. Yet those countries will not allow you to go to their markets. At this moment wheat is 6s. 3d. in Cleveland, and 5s. on the Canada side of Lake Erie, and in which market our farmers must pay 1s. 3d. per bushel duty. He (Mr. C.) was in favour of the reciprocal treaties, let us impose this tax so long as the Americans keep on theirs, and no longer. We have had a long correspondence with their government on this subject, but they will never alter their duties till we shackle their trade a little. We have no manufactures to assist our markets, we are ashamed we cannot import machinery — not even a carding machine. England will not suffer us to manufacture, and we do not need ((to)) if our agricultural interest is well provided for. He (Mr. Cameron) would be the last man to discourage the forwarding or milling interest, let all the world carry their products through our country, over our roads, and through our canals, to pay duties, and enrich our commercial men — but, do not let them supply our troops or lumber trade, we can do that ourselves. If a revenue must be raised by taxation, surely this is a legitimate source, and let the tax be so low that it will induce the trade to go on. The hon. gentleman for Montreal remarked that if the man on the frontier sold his grain high, it enabled him to go back and buy of the farmer in the interior at a good price. Now in the first place from the interior we had no roads, and from the course taken by the hon. gentleman and others, he feared there would be none. In the next place, the idea was really trifling with the feelings and sense of the farmers.

The man who sold his own wheat high in the front instead of going back, bought American wheat and flour low to eat — it needed neither proof nor voucher. The measure, he contended, was just as equitable, and though he approved of the policy of the government, and had generally supported their measures, and would continue to do so so long as they were consistent with the principles they had professed, and for the “greatest good to the greatest number,” yet in this case he was bound to say that this measure being strictly in accordance with the interest and expressed wishes of the people, he could and would support no Government in resisting it. In short, he said it was a measure which must be granted.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Williams entreated the indulgence of the Committee to a few observations he had to make on this most important subject, — a subject of primary and paramount importance to the entire agricultural population of this Province. Having the honor to (sic) ((to)) represent a county essentially agricultural, it was his duty as well as his inclination to advocate the interests of that great class of the community. — He had noticed for years past with extreme concern, the vast quantities of American wheat imported into this Province free of duty, then ground into flour and consumed ; or imported into the United Kingdom from this Colony, as the growth of this Province. This traffic had naturally led him to the investigation of the authority on which it is pretended to be founded, and the conclusion deduced from that investigation is a conviction in his mind that the Parliament which passed the Imperial statute of the 5th July, 1825, never contemplated it could be so construed as to recognize the introduction into the United Kingdom of flour manufactured from wheat of foreign growth, on precisely the same terms as flour manufactured from wheat of Colonial growth. There is nothing in the act itself, nor in the discussion that took place in the Houses of the Imperial Parliament when the act passed through its various stages, that will warrant us to come to the conclusion that the Parliament intended to embrace a principle so subversive of the agricultural interests of the Empire ; and it is for this House to make known to Her Majesty's Ministers the extent of this traffic, that no such imposition may be practised on the British revenue, and that the British and Colonial grower may be protected in their legitimate rights. Mr. W. admits that the traffic alluded to is very profitable to all persons engaged in it, but in his opinion it is sacrificing the agriculturalist to the commercial interest, — his desire is that the one shall not predominate over the other. No consideration would induce him to advocate any measure that would prostrate the commercial interest of this Colony. The agriculturists do not desire it, all that we contend for is, that the Colonial grower shall be admitted into the market of the United Kingdom on more favourable terms than the foreign grower. Although the foreign grain be ground into flour in this Colony, and imported into England by British shipping, this may easily be effected by permitting all agricultural productions from this Colony to be imported into the United Kingdom free of duty and a moderate tax to be levied on United States productions when imported into this Colony, not exceeding the duties now imposed on the United Kingdom on that of Colonial growth. The adoption of this system would effectually protect the Canadian farmer, and it is the bounden duty of both Houses of the Legislature to transmit a joint address to Her Majesty, praying that Her Majesty will be graciously pleased to take the same into Her Royal consideration.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Buchanan was glad at all events to see it universally allowed, that agriculture is our most vital interest ; and that if we make it clear that the farmer sustains a loss, it will not by any be viewed as any adequate set off in a national point of view, that such loss is gained by millers or forwarders, however important these interests may be. Hon. members don't deny that American flour undersells Canadian flour in Canadian markets. How could they, when we know that even the troops are supplied with it ? It is, however, persisted in, that our privilege of shipping to England (a privilege shared by the Americans,) and of our having our supplies of foreign food at a low price ! are sufficient boons to the farmer. He (Mr. Buchanan) could not take that view of the subject, nor could he agree with an hon. member (Mr. Merritt) who seems to think that our farmer gets the full advantage of the British market. He was glad, however, that that hon. member went in favour of the tax “to protect our agriculturist in his own market.” He (Mr. B.) contended that the Canadian farmer has not in reality the full advantage of the British price, and certainly he has no protection in Canadian markets. He may get the British price if he likes to ship his own produce, — and there would be less cause of complaint if business was on a barter system !! The merchant then would give his goods in proportion to the price in the British markets, and receive the farmer's wheat in a like proportion to the British price of grain. Strange that the use of money or bank notes should operate so great a difference ! The speculator or the merchant paid for his goods, goes cash in hand to purchase wheat ; but does he then give you the nearest approximation to the British price? He (Mr. B.) thought it much more natural for him to say, why, its true, the British price would warrant me giving 4s 6d per bushel, but I can lay down the wheat from Ohio at 3s., I will not therefore give you more than 3s 3d. And he (Mr. B.) thought the operation of a moderate duty would be to secure protection to the Canadian farmer, both in his own and the British market.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Durand maintained that the Americans forced us out of the market — glutting it with their produce, and taking away all our ready cash. The duty proposed to be levied, he said, would add to the revenue, and protect the farmer, without whom neither the merchant, the trader, nor the storekeeper could prosper. If you are to have free trade, said he, let us have it free on both sides, — but if the products of the one are to be taxed, on fair terms of reciprocity, let the products of the other be subject to a similar impost.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb's amendment was then negatived, and the resolution carried.<sup>20</sup>

House in Com. on Message on Pub. Improvements.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to Public Improvements, together with the documents accompanying the same, and other references, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee. Mr. Durand took the chair of the Committee.<sup>22</sup>

The whole of the estimates commencing with class 2: The Bay of Chaleurs Road, down to the London, Chatham, and Amherstburg inclusive, were submitted seriatim, and sanctioned; not, however, without a good deal of animadversion on the part of Messrs. Baldwin, Aylwin and others, who appeared to look upon the whole proceeding as a mere farce, involving a delusive expectation of getting a loan which would never be realised, and indicative of a recklessness, in contracting an amount of debt which we should never be able to pay. The same gentlemen also gave the house to understand, that they would reserve their concentrated opposition for a future occasion, when the various bills would be introduced.<sup>23</sup>

A good deal of discussion took place relative to different roads, the President of the Board of Works ((Mr. Killaly)) rising several times to explain the grounds upon which the estimates relative to them had been formed.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Harrison then said, that having in accordance with the amount of funds raised, voted £315,000 to be expended on the St. Lawrence, and there being every hope, from the previous debates, that a sufficient revenue would be provided to carry out the whole scheme, he would move that £56,000 be granted for Lake St. Peter and £376,000, in addition to the former sum (sic), for the St. Lawrence, to render that work efficient; otherwise, we should be compelled again to go into the money market to make up the requisite amount. — These two last grants however, were to be based upon the provisions of the 2nd resolution, the words in italics applying particularly to the stipulations, to which the Hon. Secretary directed the attention of the house. The resolution is as follows: — 2. Resolved — “That so soon as a loan of not less than £500,000 can be negotiated and obtained by the Government of this province, from any private Company or Companies, at a reduced rate of interest, the improvement of the navigation of the River St. Lawrence should be undertaken and completed.” This, however, did not suit hon. members, who were all speaking together against it. Mr. Harrison expressing his desire to meet the views of all parties, the resolution was merged in the last paragraph of the first resolution, the expenditure of the St. Lawrence, not to be contingent upon the loans being obtained “from any private Company or Companies,” nor at “a reduced rate of interest.” £36,000 was also voted for bridges to reunite Quebec with Montreal.<sup>25</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Resolutions reported.

And Mr. Durand reported that the Committee had come to several Resolutions, which he was directed to submit to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the report be received on Monday next.

For the said Reports and Documents, See Appendix (G. G.)

Remaining orders of day postponed.

On motion of Mr. Aylwin, seconded by Mr. Christie,Ordered — That the Orders of the day that have not been disposed of be postponed until Monday next.

At 5 o'clock, Mr. Speaker declared the House adjourned until Monday next, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

1. The debate on this matter was reported by: KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841; BRITISH COLONIST, 8 September 1841; EXAMINER, 15 September 1841, containing the same report as KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841; EXAMINER, 8 September 1841 merely noted the debate; LE CANADIEN, 8 September 1841 contained a commentary on the debate. The EXAMINER, 15 September 1841, and the KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 8 September 1841, contain only 4 speeches each. Of these, 1 is identical to a speech in the BRITISH COLONIST, 1 is identical but longer, and 2 are not reported by the BRITISH COLONIST. The evidence indicates that there was co-operation between the reporters of the three newspapers, or at least between those of the CHRONICLE and the COLONIST.

21. LE CANADIEN, 8 September 1841, presents the following commentary: "Cette proposition a été repoussée par presque tous les membres du Bas-Canada, et soutenue par la majorité des membres du Haut-Canada. Nos membres ont prétendu que cela était imposer une taxe sur le Bas-Canada au profit du Haut-Canada, en obligeant le Bas-Canada qui ne produit pas assez pour sa consommation, de payer plus cher qu'il ne paie maintenant pour le surplus dont il a besoin. Il y avait en outre à opposer à cette proposition des motifs d'intérêt général. On dépense des millions pour ouvrir des canaux, et l'on veut fermer ces canaux aux produits Américains, sur lesquels on fonde pour beaucoup dans les revenus qu'on attend de ces canaux par la suite. Militait aussi contre la taxe proposée, le danger, reconnu par l'expérience, d'encourager par des droits protecteurs, par des moyens artificiels, une industrie quelconque, et surtout l'industrie agricole, au lieu de laisser ces industries aux moyens naturels que leur offrent la position géographique du pays, son sol, son climat et les aptitudes de ses habitants. Agir autrement c'est diriger (sic) les efforts et les capitaux d'un peuple dans des voies forcées, incertaines, précaires, sujettes à des révolutions et fluctuations ruineuses, au lieu de celles, toujours plus avantageuses, plus sûres, moins précaires, qu'ouvrent les voies naturelles du pays. Si une industrie quelconque dans un pays ne peut supporter la concurrence de la même industrie dans les pays étrangers, l'état doit chercher à diriger les efforts de ses sujets vers d'autres branches d'industrie capables de supporter cette concurrence. En suivant cette marche, on établit la prospérité d'un peuple sur des bases inébranlables; on pourra aller moins vite, mais on ne s'expose pas au danger de reculer; on pourra paraître pendant un temps jouir d'une moindre prospérité, mais on se met à l'abri de ces tourmentes commerciales qui produisent des sommes de souffrances hors de toute conception, souvent la cause de bouleversements sociaux et politiques. Rappelons-nous quelle alarme s'est répandue dans le Canada, lorsqu'on a appris que les ministres s'occupaient de réduire les droits protecteurs à l'égard de nos bois, et qu'il faudra que nous (sic) perdions tôt ou tard. Il en est de même de presque tous les droits protecteurs: un jour arrive où ces droits cessent, et alors les intérêts créés par les droits protecteurs sont détruits, et il en résulte une ruine, et des malheurs d'autant plus considérables, que ces intérêts comprennent une portion plus nombreuse de la société. Quelques fois il arrive que les Législateurs reculent devant les maux dont on est menacé, et d'une manière ou d'une autre ils viennent au secours des intérêts menacés ou sacrifiés, et cela par de nouveaux moyens de protection artificielle, qui ne font qu'augmenter le mal, ou le rendre plus difficile à guérir; et l'on marche ainsi de mal en pis, jusqu'à ce que le mal soit incurable."

Com. on Common School Bill report Bill as amended.

The Honourable Mr. Day, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Bill to repeal certain Acts therein mentioned, and to make provision for the establishment and maintenance of Common Schools throughout this Province, and other references, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's Table.

Bill referred to

Committee on Report of Commissioners on late Kingston Bank, present Report and Bill.

Report.

Ordered — That the said Bill and Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Thursday next.

Mr. Price, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Report of the Commissioners appointed by the Provincial Statute of the 10th GEO. the Fourth, intitled "An Act for setting the affairs of the late Bank at Kingston," with power to report by Bill or otherwise, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

That the affairs of the Bank were originally, by an Act of the Provincial Parliament of Upper Canada, passed on the 19th day of March, in the year 1823, 4 GEO. 4th, (Session I,) Chapter 22, placed in the hands of the Honourable George Herchimer Markland, John Kirby and John Macaulay, Esquire, as Commissioners and Trustees, under the style of "the Board for settling the affairs of the pretended Bank of Upper Canada, lately established at Kingston, in this Province ;" and in this Board was vested all the estate, both real and personal, bonds, bills, notes and other securities, and stock rights, credits and effects of the said Institution, with power to sue, sell and dispose of all such lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels, or effects, as might come into their hands by virtue of that Act, and to apply them, after paying the expenses of carrying the Act into effect, in discharge of certain certificates which were to be given by the said Board, to persons substantiating claims upon the said Institution. That further provision was made in respect of the said Institution, by the Upper Canada Acts of Parliament of 4th GEO. 4, (Session 2,) Chapter 21 — 9 GEO. 4th, Chapter 11 — 10 GEO. 4th, Chap 7 & 6 — WIL. 4th, Chap. 22.

By the Act 10 Geo. 4th, Chapter 7, the former Commissioners and Trustees having resigned, the late Hugh C. Thompson, the late John Strange, and Henry Smith, Esquires, were appointed Commissioners for the purpose of settling the affairs of the said Institution, with provision to appoint new Commissioners to supply vacancies, within one week after they should occur. That after several changes in the Commissioners, by death, removal from the District, resignation, and the omission to appoint new Commissioners within the time prescribed by the said Act, the Board had been reduced to but one Commissioner, Thomas McNider, Esquire — in consequence of which, the whole proceedings have been suspended.

That this has, in a great measure, arisen from the difficulty of finding gentlemen willing to undertake the responsibility of acting as Commissioners ; but Your Committee are happy in being able to report, that two gentlemen, residing in the Town of Kingston, and every day qualified for the duty, have been, at length, induced to consent to act, viz : James Nichols, Esquire, Barrister at Law, and Clerk of the Peace of the Midland District, and George Alexander Cumming, Esquire, Barrister at Law ; and Your Committee therefore recommend the appointment of these gentlemen, with the remaining Commissioner, Thomas McNider, Esquire, to make a final close of the affairs of the said Institution.

Your Committee are unwilling to say any thing upon the subject of the past management of the affairs of the Institution, but recommend that the Commissioners to be now appointed should be required, within twelve months, to make a full report on its affairs, to His Excellency, the Governor General, with a view to have the same laid before both Houses of Parliament.

It appears that an unsatisfied claim exists, on the part of the Clerk of the said Board, for services performed and moneys expended, in the performance of his duties. — Your Committee therefore recommend that a similar provision should be made for the discharge of this, as was made by the Upper Canada Legislature, by the Act 10th GEO. 4th, Chap. 7 in respect of the agent appointed under the authority of the then late Directors to the said Bank.

Your Committee have prepared a Bill for these purposes, which they also recommend to the adoption of Your Honourable House."

Mr. Price then presented to the House, a Bill to appoint additional Commissioners to settle the affairs of the late pretended Bank of Upper Canada, at Kingston, which was received and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the £20, deposited (in accordance with the Rule of this House, since rescinded) on account of the Bill to authorize the North American Colonial Association of Ireland to loan moneys in the County of Beauharnois, be refunded to the Petitioners.

Leave of absence to Mr. Boswell.

Ordered — That Mr. Boswell have leave to absent himself from the House, until the 27th Instant.

And Mr. Child reported that the Committee had come to Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth :

Resolution.

Resolved — That it is expedient to repeal an Ordinance passed by the Governor and Council of the Province of Quebec intituled "An Ordinance for preventing persons leaving the Province without a pass."

Bill to repeal above named Ordinance, brought in.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time to-morrow.

Motion for Address to His Excellency to appoint a comptroller of Customs.

The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, seconded by Mr. Dunscomb,

That it is the opinion of this House that it is expedient that a more strict surveillance, over all Collectors and Receivers of the Revenue, should be exercised, than now exists, and that this House should humbly address His Excellency, the Governor General, to appoint a Comptroller of Customs, under the Great Seal of the Province, for that purpose, whose duty it shall be, among other things, to visit all Receivers of public money, and to examine into the way and manner in which their accounts, vouchers, and books, are kept, as well as the form of the returns made; and that such Comptroller shall have authority to give such instructions and directions, in relation to the keeping all such books and accounts, vouchers or returns, as shall be necessary, in the Judgment of such Comptroller, to be kept and made; with power to suspend for the time being, any officer who may not be acting in accordance to any instruction which it may be found necessary to give to such officers; assuring His Excellency that this House will make provision for such Comptroller.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Harrison stated, that in consequence of several members of the House having expressed their opinions that the revenue was annually defrauded of many thousand pounds owing to the inefficiency of the Collectors or to their collusion with the Importers, he had taken this measure out of the hands of Mr. Thorburn who was about moving it, and had brought it in as an officer of Government.<sup>2</sup>

Amendment moved to appoint a Com. on collections of Customs.

Mr. Aylwin moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Buchanan,

That all the words after "That" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted: "A Committee of seven members be appointed, to inquire into the manner according to which the Customs are collected in that part of this Province heretofore Upper Canada, by the Provincial Collectors, and also the manner according to which the monies collected are accounted for by the Collectors; and also to inquire into any abuses in the collecting and accounting for the Customs — to report thereon with all convenient speed; with power to send for persons, papers and records.

Mr. Buchanan seconded the motion in the hope of suppressing a system of smuggling that prevailed; so injurious to the fair trader. The hon. member affirmed that all the goods imported from the States into Toronto were entered at the ports of Bath and Niagara.<sup>3</sup>

Dr. Dunlop supported the amendment, saying that according to the present system either a bribe was held out to the Collector of one Port not to be too strict, or to the same officer at another to shut his eyes.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Holmes strenuously urged upon the House the adoption of measures calculated to secure to the revenues of the Province the duties upon goods imported from the United States which if honestly and efficiently enforced would, he was satisfied, add at least £10,000 per annum to the provincial funds. It was notorious that in no department under the government was there so great a need for examination into the duties of the office as that of Collector of Customs. With upwards of 40 Customs houses spread along the great lakes accessible at every point to a nation of smugglers, those Customs houses were without surveillance — was it surprising that neglect and speculation existed. Until he came here he had not the most distant idea of the universality of the complaint. Why then not rectify at once the difficulty by appointing a Supervisor of Customs or a Comptroller, whose duty would be to travel round and visit those Collectors; compel them to keep and to exhibit their books and accounts — and not do as they now did. When quarter-day arrived, which, as he was most credibly informed, the system was, not to call upon the Merchants and shop keepers for payment of their bonds, but to ask them how much they were willing to pay for the goods they had imported — it was left for them to say — and it was easy to understand how easy the Custom House Officer was likely to deal with his friends & neighbors; with one with whom he dealt for his tea & sugar, with another for his whiskey, tobacco and cigars. The present system was ruinous to the revenue, and disgraceful to those whose duty it was to collect it — a system of neglect connivance and fraud, which nothing would check but the appointment by the government of a capable, vigilant, and well qualified inspector or Comptroller of the Customs, with a salary adequate to the importance of the office, which instead of being an additional burden to the country, would secure to it ten times, the amount of the emolument attached to the Office.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was desirous that the Inspector of Customs should act as Comptroller, that the Government might not be allowed any additional patronage by such an appointment.<sup>6</sup>

((Mr.)) Dunscomb ... spoke in favour of the proposition...<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Thorburn remarked that it was a most extraordinary thing that goods for Toronto should be entered at Niagara. He was not desirous that the government should enjoy a profligate patronage, but this he considered so far from being a profligate, would be a profitable influence. If nothing further was done on the subject, he felt convinced that even the present debate would have a wholesome effect.<sup>8</sup>

((Mr.)) Morris ... spoke in favour of the proposition...<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Cameron — said he had at the early part of the session, on two occasions, stated that the whole scale of the custom law and regulations was bad — that the system of collecting was loose and irresponsible — and that if well managed and proper checks were established, he had no doubt the amount collected would be doubled.<sup>10</sup> He was ready to allow that many of the Collectors were men who acted both conscientiously and with integrity; at the same time facts sufficiently proved that there were many who did quite the reverse, or else they were guilty of extreme negligence.<sup>11</sup> The hon. gentleman from Lincoln had said all you had to do was to put up a list every three months of the names of the persons that entered the goods, and the description of the goods, and that would do it — those who were not mentioned in the list would rectify it. Now, this was absurd. What was principally complained of was collusion between the merchant and Collector or his deputy, and surely those who were favored would not complain. There had often been such things as finding it cheaper to pay a tide waiter than pay the duties. The mystery about salt and other goods for Toronto being entered at Bath or Niagara was very simple. The duty on Salt was 2s. 6d. per barrel, half of which goes to the collector. The owner of the salt says to the collector at Bath, if you will remit me one half of your share of duties I will enter it with you — if you do not you will get nothing, as I shall enter it at home. Of course, it is the interest of the Collector to accede in this case — however, the revenue does not suffer — the only sufferer is the collector at the proper port. But the frauds are in false invoices — in misrepresentation of weight; and even of the contents of packages. 50 boxes of German toys have been entered at once, which censorious people thought a large quantity, and suspected that tea made up part of the contents. There was no possibility of finding out whether the Collector reported to Government all the goods he was paid for — and this was a very important point. One man should make the entries and give permits, another receive the money, and so check his account. The hon. gentleman from Hastings said he hoped he (Mr. C.) would not find it difficult to stretch the conscience to vote against the proposition. He (Mr. C.) would vote for it, and at the same time tell that hon. gentleman that his conscience was never so tied either to Government or Party that he would be found voting against principles he had advocated out of doors for years — nor to serve party would he be found sacrificing the interests of his constituents by voting in direct opposition to their wishes and hopes. (Hear ! hear ! )<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Holmes hoped the resolution would prevail, and he felt assured that it was not with a view to augmenting the patronage of the Government, that any member of that House would vote for the appointment of an Inspector of Customs. It was idle to talk of the Inspector General doing the duty; — could that officer find time to be travelling from Cornwall to Port Sarnia, examining collectors of Customs. Could he find time to inspect their books, if perchance any had books ; or if they had, were they such as could be examined ? No. It was notorious that in three cases out of four no books whatever were kept. Hon. members had got up in their places in this House, and stated positively the conduct of the Collectors of Customs in certain places that had been mentioned were most disreputable, so much so indeed that the hon. member for Toronto had said that he must either abandon his business or become ((a)) smuggler, unless measures were adopted to enforce the Revenue Laws, and to protect the honest trader. Talk then of the expense of an appointment — the additional patronage of the government. Are we to be told it is better to lose £10,000 per annum than to pay £1000 to a Comptroller of Customs ? It is too absurd an argument. And the hon. member for Hastings may well have smiled when he advanced for a reason why he would not vote for the resolution on the table, his disinclination to increase the patronage of the government. Some members talked of Government influence — of the numbers of expectants in this House, and out of the House — gaping for appointments. One would rather suppose that some dread existed in the minds of some hon. members, that the appointment of an efficient Inspector of Custom Houses would interfere with the revenues of certain collectors, than with the Province revenue, which it would increase. He trusted that the resolution would be at all events sent to a Select Committee, with instructions to report without delay, that the acknowledged abuses of the present system may be at once corrected, and the resources to which the Province was entitled made available to the country.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Aylwin said the objection with respect of the Comptrollers might be got rid of, if the member for Kingston would recommend to His Excellency the appointment of an efficient person pro tempore to exact from all collectors a strict discharge of their duties.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Harrison said that the Inspector General of Customs was so occupied, as not to be able to give the surveillance which was necessary, which could be only obtained by having a competent person employed to visit the different ports and ascertain practically what goods were or were not admitted ; if requisite means were adopted, he had no doubt that our revenue would be doubled. If agreeable to the house, he was perfectly willing to adopt the suggestion.<sup>15</sup>

Amendment moved to re-commit report.

Mr. Hincks moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Buchanan,

That all the words after "That", in the said motion, be struck out, and the following substituted; "the said Report be now recommitted, to "a Committee of the whole House."

In making the motion Mr. Hincks stated that his object was to move a resolution granting the sum of £109,355 to complete the several macadamized or planked roads already commenced on the faith of the Province, and for which the Districts were responsible. Mr. Hincks referred particularly to the road between Hamilton and Brantford, Yonge Street and the roads East and West of Toronto.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Price moved an amendment (so it was understood) that the works in Class 3, be included in Class 2. With reference to a particular road, the hon. member informed the house that when travelling upon it, on a certain occasion, the party with him had been obliged in one part of it, to be lowered by ropes to the depth of 20 feet. He deprecated any partial mode of legislation that would give to one part of the Province a share of the revenue for local improvements and at the same time, withhold it from another, expressing his determination if this was carried out, to oppose the whole measure.<sup>18</sup>

Capt. Steele said that as the roads were at present, had he occasion at a particular season of the year to go to Toronto, he would be obliged to wade through a complete sea of mud.<sup>19</sup>

Amendment carried.

The question having been put upon the motion of amendment, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

The question being then put on the main motion, as amended, it was agreed to.

House goes into
Com. on report.

And the House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Parent took the chair of the Committee,

Mr. Hincks moved — Resolved, that a sum of £109,355 be granted for the following roads : — Kingston and Napanee ; and Grimsby and _____ ; Toronto North, East, and West ; Brantford and Hamilton ; Dundas and Waterloo.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Merritt said that he thought that the vote of the house would have been for the works which had been already begun.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Baldwin was of opinion (sic) that we had already voted away money as if it was to be had for the asking, and expressed his determination under the present aspect of unlimited expenditure to oppose all, being of opinion that the British nation would not be found weak enough to accede to our demands.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Draper also opposed Mr. Hincks showing from the Statute Book that the sum of £100,000 was authorized to be raised by debentures for the roads under discussion.<sup>23</sup>

The debate was prolonged for some time after this.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Harrison ((said)) that although the resolutions was not included in the original ones, yet if it was a pleasure of the house to adopt it, he had no objection.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Dunn supported the resolution, trusting that the grant solicited would not be refused, the macadamized roads having paid what had been expended on them.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Price's amendment was then negatived.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Hincks resolution was then put, that the sum of £109,355 be granted for the completion of the roads (before mentioned) commenced under an act of the legislature ; to be insured by tolls and direct taxation to be imposed upon the particular districts through which they passed. A division took place — the motion passing in the affirmative — Yeas 32 — Nays 29.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Merritt then moved — Resolved, that with reference to the St. Lawrence Canal, the duties to be imposed on certain articles cease, when the net increase of tolls should meet the interest, with a surplus of £10,000 gradually to pay off the principal.<sup>29</sup>

This ((was)) ... carried....<sup>30</sup>

Sir A. MacNab remarked that it would have the effect of defeating the whole measure.<sup>31</sup>

Some discussion thereon arose....<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Harrison ((confirmed)) ... the gallant Knight's opinion....<sup>33</sup>

The resolution was recommitted....<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Merritt and those who had supported it ((yielded)) ... to the suggestions which had been thrown out....<sup>35</sup>

((The resolution)) fell to the ground.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Harrison then moved that the committee rise and report.<sup>37</sup>

(501)

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Additional resolution reported.

And Mr. Parent reported that the Committee, had come to an additional Resolution, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same : and also that he was directed by the Committee to move for leave to sit again.

Mr. Speaker ((Cuvillier)) ... informed the house that a fresh grant of money having been entertained, according to parliamentary usage, the report of the committee on the previous resolutions could not be received.<sup>38</sup>

In accordance with this nothing further could be done but to grant leave to the committee to sit again — to-morrow was then fixed upon.<sup>39</sup>

(501)

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Sit again
to-morrow.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again to-morrow.

on behalf of Mr.
Manahan, report.
Report.

Mr. Dunlop, from the Special Committee to which was referred the Address passed by the House of Assembly of Upper Canada, in favor of Anthony Manahan, Esquire, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

"Your Committee, on careful examination, are of opinion that the allegations of the claimant, Anthony Manahan, Esquire, are perfectly true, as will be seen on reference to the Journals of the last Session of the House of Assembly of the late Province of Upper Canada, page 368, which contains an Address from that House to His Excellency, the Governor General, recommending that remuneration be made to Mr. Manahan for his losses; and page 378, which contains His Excellency's answer thereto; also the first volume of the Appendix to the same Journal, where will be found the Report of the Select Committee to which the Petition of Mr. Manahan was referred.

Your Committee therefore feel no hesitation in recommending to Your Honourable House, to pass an humble address to His Excellency, the Governor General, requesting, on behalf of Mr. Manahan, the remuneration and redress which he has sought, and expressing the willingness of the House to make good, hereafter, any sum which may be advanced for that purpose; and have therefore prepared a Resolution to that effect, which accompanies this report."

Excellency respecting payment of certain sums granted in
U. C. ordered.

Resolved — That an humble address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to inform this House when the unpaid balance of £50,000, granted for the improvement of the Roads in the late Province of Upper Canada, by an Act passed in the 6th year of the Reign of His late Majesty, WILLIAM the Fourth, Chapter 37, intituled "An Act granting to His Majesty a sum of money, for the improvement of Roads and Bridges in the several Districts of this Province," may be obtained, for the purposes of said Act; and of an Act passed during the 1st Session of the 13th Parliament of the said Province, of the 7th WILLIAM the Fourth, Chapter 107; also when the sum of £12,500, authorized for the improvement of the Grand River Navigation, by an Act passed in the 7th year of the Reign of His late Majesty WILLIAM the Fourth, Chapter 73 may be expected to be paid.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Harrison said he apprehended it would now become the province of the District Councils to determine how the sums alluded to were to be paid. — There was, he believed, about 5 or £6,000 which had been expended by the Trustees, over and above the money paid to them, and which they had expended, whether prudently or not he would not say — which he believed it was the intention of the Government to advance. He would not object to the Address, but after what he had said hon. gentlemen could pretty well judge what the answer was likely to be.<sup>2</sup> on Feudal Tenure, reports Resolution.

Mr. Burnet, from the Committee of the whole House on the Report of the Select Committee to which were referred the Resolutions of this House on the 28th of July last, relative to the Laws of that part of the Province heretofore known as Lower Canada, touching the Tenure of Lands, and commonly known as "Feudal Tenure," reported, according to order, the Resolution of the said Committee, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Resolution for address to His Excellency on the Feudal Tenure.

Resolved — That an humble address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, representing that this House, being desirous of improving the condition, and promoting the welfare, of the People, by removing, in a manner consistent with Justice to all parties concerned, the difficulties and inconveniences which have resulted, and may hereafter result, from the Tenure of Lands commonly called the Seigniorial Tenure, as it obtains in that part of the Province heretofore called Lower Canada; and being of opinion that, to facilitate legislation on this important subject, an inquiry ought to be had in the state of the Law, and other circumstances connected with the said Tenure, and its operation generally, — into the relative position of the Seigniors and the Censitaires, — and into the means of establishing a general and uniform system of commutation, on a fair and equitable basis, — do humbly pray His Excellency to be pleased to appoint a Commission,

(514)

Resolution for address to His Excellency on the Feudal Tenure.

for the purpose of prosecuting the said enquiry, — and assuring His Excellency that whatever expenses may be incurred for the accomplishment of that purpose, will be made good by this House : also humbly representing to His Excellency, that the end in view, in the opinion of this House, would be best attained if a fit and proper person, residing in that part of this Province formerly known as Lower Canada, and well versed in the Law and practice of the said Tenure, and being a practitioner at the Bar, or a Notary of long standing, were appointed to inquire into the Feudal and Seigniorial Tenure, — and two other Commissioners, having been long resident in the said part of this Province, — were appointed to be Commissioners, jointly with the Commissioner above mentioned, and if the said Chief Commissioner were instructed to make the necessary examination and search into all Public Records and Notarial Acts, from the time of the settlement of the Country, and to establish, for several distinct periods, the true conditions on which grants of Land on Seigniorly have been made by the Crown, and on which lands have been conceded en arrière Fief or en Censive et Roture; and to collect all other requisite information connected with the said subjects : to inquire into the Laws which have, from time to time, governed, and now govern, the said Tenures : — to enquire generally into the present working of the system, by proper investigations in every section of Lower Canada, in a number of Seigniories, indifferently chosen by a majority of the said Commissioners, for the purpose of ascertaining as far as possible the present rents, dues, reservations, and charges of any kind, — the probable quantity of unconceded Seigniorial Lands in the Province, and their quality and value, — and also the quantity of Lands conceded but not improved, — the value of Seigniorial Mills in the Province, and the annual average value of Lods et Ventes paid or accruing thereon : and of obtaining such further information as may tend to throw light on the subject : — to consult the Seigniores and Censitaires respectively upon the most proper and equitable means of effecting, by Law, a commutation of the Feudal and Seigniorial Tenures (such commutation being founded upon a due regard to the rights and interests of all parties), and also upon the most proper means of effecting an arbitration in cases where it may be required ; and if upon consideration of such information and statements, obtained by him and the other Commissioners, the said Commissioners should report their proceedings and opinions to His Excellency, in order that the same might be submitted, with the original minutes of all proceedings, to the Provincial Legislature.

Motion to concur

Mr. Dunscomb moved, seconded by Mr. Watts,

Quest. of concurrence put on Resolutions of yesterday, and the present one.

Ordered — That the question of concurrence be now separately put upon the several Resolutions reported yesterday, and the one now reported, from the said Committee.

The first of the said Resolutions being again read,<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Harrison then moved the concurrence of the house on the report of the committee on public improvements. 1st. Resolved — that it is the opinion of this house, that with a view to reduce the interest on the existing public debt of Canada, it is desirable that the sum of £1,500,000 of English Sterling money should be raised by loan on the best terms that can be obtained, &c.<sup>5</sup>

1st Resolution put,
(£1,500,000 stg. loan.)

Amendment moved.

Mr. Neilson moved, seconded by Mr. Aylwin,

That the said Resolution be recommitted, with an instruction to amend the same, so as to omit any acknowledgement which it may contain of any public debt not contracted by and with the consent of the Representatives of the people of the late Province of Lower Canada.

((Mr. Neilson)) asserted that the British Parliament had no right so to legislate as to compel the Lower Canadians to pay the debt of the Upper Province, without their consent and against their will... ((He)) said this was the first opportunity which had been afforded him of expressing his opinion on the subject, and he pronounced the Act ((of Union)) illegal and unconstitutional.<sup>6</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab would vote for part of the Resolution, though not the whole of it. — He admitted that the Act of Union was unconstitutional, and he felt obliged to the Hon. Member for Quebec, for giving the House an opportunity of expressing its opinion.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Baldwin did not see any inconsistency in the Resolution — he was glad of an opportunity to make his solemn protest against many parts of the Act of Union. It was necessary to do so now to guard themselves from being committed. He believed a very large majority of the inhabitants of the Province were of opinion that the payment of the Debt of Upper Canada by the Lower Province was highly unjust. He believed also that giving an equal representation to the two Provinces was equally so.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Moffatt would vote against the Resolution.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Merritt could not support the Resolution, no injustice had been done to Lower Canada — as the advantages they derived were greater than the disadvantages.<sup>10</sup> ((He)) saw no injustice in the United Province being debited with the debt being fully assured that the works which had been commenced would return the outlay on them when they were completed.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Christie supported the amendment by similar arguments to those of the hon. mover.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Aylwin had heard the observations of Sir A. Macnab with some surprize — This was the first time they had been called on to express their sentiments on the subject, and he as a British subject would openly declare that the Act of Union was a gross violation of Magna Charta; and which applied equally to the Colonies as to Great Britain — that its subject were not to be taxed without their consent. The British Government had effected the Union, but it was by might not by right....<sup>13</sup>

Hear, from Mr. Baldwin.<sup>14</sup>

((Mr. Aylwin continued.)) It would forever remain a reproach to the British Government, and he would solemnly protest against it; that the Lower Canadians were a reproach to themselves, and unworthy (sic) of being neighbors to a country which took arms to defend themselves from similar innovations — and which ended in a separation from the Parent Country. The name of Washington would be handed down to posterity as a Patriot, to be admired, and as an example to be emulated. The hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Merritt) seemed to think that the liberties of the people were to be bartered for Gold.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Merritt interrupted the hon. member by saying that he always disapproved of the appropriation of the Lower Canada debt.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Aylwin resumed. — It was a gross violation of our civil rights, with regard to the Civil List, it might last a few years but it could not stand permanently; justice must and would be done, all honest members of the House would support his view of the case, the member for Lincoln said why complain — you have made upon the whole a good bargain. He would say we have been compelled to comply against our will; and that the conduct of the British Government was tyranny of the grossest description — it was iniquitous and unjust — a most iniquitous measure to compel them to pay the debts of this Province — and debts too of those who have been running not in the race of improvements upon a go-a-head system similar to that which had been practiced in a neighboring country. No man who had the feelings of a British subject (hear, hear,) would submit to such an imposition. He hoped the House would be of the same opinion with himself, and would remonstrate with the Parliament of Great Britain for redress. He would yield in loyalty to none; but if justice could not be obtained by peaceable means, he would resort to the force of arms — and he would spend the last drop of his blood in obtaining justice. The hon. member for Simcoe (Capt. Steele) cries hear! that hon. gentleman he understood was a British Sailor — and had during a long life been fighting for liberty — and he hoped he would support the views he had expressed on that occasion. As to the outrage which had been committed he was delighted that his hon. friend the member for Quebec (Mr. Neilson) had brought forward this measure. He had spent a whole life in the cause of liberty, and he was the proper man to give a rebuke to Great Britain, for the injustice of which she had been guilty.<sup>17</sup>

Amendment moved.

The fourth of the said Resolutions being again read,
Mr. Aylwin moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Neilson,
That under the terms of the Despatch of the Lord John Russell, to His Excellency, the Governor General, of the 3d May, 1841, the guarantee promised by Her Majesty's Government, was intended to facilitate the negotiation of a loan of one million and a half pounds, for the purpose of buying in the debt of the Province at a favorable rate, and for the purpose of completing public works necessary for the free passage between the Western portion of the Province, the Saint Lawrence and the Sea — and for those two purposes only.

Mr. Aylwin would object to the local improvements of Upper Canada. The members of Lower Canada were not possessed of sufficient statements or geographical knowledge to judge of their expediency, and wanted more time to be made acquainted with the country — and he could not allow the measure to pass without recording his vote against it.<sup>21</sup>

Resolution carried.

So it was carried in the Affirmative.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Harrison then proposed that the sum necessary for the completion of the Macadamized Roads, which had been already begun, and not completed, and which would require about £140,000 (sic), and which had already been granted by former Acts of Parliament should be added.<sup>28</sup>

This was opposed by Mr. Price, on the ground as he stated that the Home District would be liable for any deficiency in the interest, which the roads called Provincial Roads would not pay.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Hincks said if the hon. member for the 1st Riding of York intended to give such a vote, he was of course prepared to take the responsibility upon himself. Mr. Hincks explained the character of those roads, and their position in the country — that when their other works were completed gaps of 8, 10 and 12 miles would be left on the main line unimproved — and that too in some of the most travelled and important parts of the country. He pointed out the great injustice which would be done to the inhabitants of both the 1st and 4th Ridings of the County of York.<sup>30</sup> Mr. Hincks said that although the districts were willing to be taxed to pay for these roads, they could not raise funds, the object of this resolution therefore was to obtain the means of completing them, which notwithstanding their willingness, they could not otherwise do.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Baldwin opposed the measure.<sup>32</sup>

Capt. Steele affirmed that the inhabitants of Simcoe contributed to enhance the value of all the property adjoining these roads, and that common gratitude ought to induce those, who resided in Toronto and its vicinity, to give the resolution every support and evince an interest for the settlers in the back country.<sup>33</sup> Capt. Steele... spoke of the distress and inconvenience which the inhabitants were exposed to for the want of the improvements of those roads. Many of the inhabitants who brought capital to Canada were mere "hewers of wood & drawers of water."<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said that Mr. Price's objections were futile — that the road even now 14 miles of which cost £40,000, paid 6 per cent. and upwards — and as the remainder was to be plank road costing not over £1000 per mile — a large interest would be paid.<sup>35</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab made some allusion to the member for Oxford in reference to the apparent understanding between that gentleman and the treasury benches, which could not be very pleasing; insinuating that probably from his (Mr. Hincks') influence in the passage of the resolution through committee, he was a sleeping partner in the firm. Mr. Hincks' attacks upon others heretofore and his softened tone at this period, are said to be indicative of a certain influence that has had an effect before now, upon men whose professions of disinterestedness were quite as vehement as those, with which the member for Oxford stands accredited.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Small said that if Mr. Hincks had not brought the subject of these roads under the notice of the house, it was his decided intention to have done so.<sup>37</sup> ((He)) would also support the motion....<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Merritt said no member would oppose it if he understood the real state of the case.<sup>39</sup>

Dr. Dunlop bore testimony to the very defective state of these highways having he said been obliged on many occasions to risk his limbs in traversing them, frequently being obliged for safety to dismount his horse, drive him on before, and scramble through mud and various other obstructions the best way he could. For Mr. Price's expressed determination to vote against the resolution, he complimented that gentleman, observing that under the distinguished character of a modern Peter-the Hermit preaching a crusade against all improvements, he was entitled to the gratitude of the neighbouring farmers, most considerably struggling to insure to them like so many walking mud heaps, the perambulation of swamps in all their native luxuriance, secure from the effeminate smoothness of a macadamized road or the annoyance of a sixpenny turnpike.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Harrison said that he had on more occasions than one, advocated the principle of these leading throughfares being made provincial roads.<sup>41</sup>

Mr. Neilson was of opinion that if any member of the house unconnected with the government could originate and carry a vote for £100,000 for particular roads, he should consider himself entitled to a similar amount for a road from Quebec to Ottawa.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said, it was asking for no additional sum, but merely for what had been granted upon debentures.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Receiver General ((Mr. Dunn)) informed the house that the debentures alluded to were not available, as they would fall upon Upper Canada alone, instead of both sections of the province, now provided by the Union Act.<sup>44</sup>

Order for House in Committee of supply on Message and report on Estimates, read.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee of supply to take into consideration the message of His Excellency the Governor General, relating to the estimates for the year ending 31st December, 1841, and on the Report of the Select Committee to which was referred so much of the message of His Excellency, the Governor General, as relates to the said estimates, together with the Documents connected therewith, being read,

Mr. Neilson moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

Motion respecting appropriation by Imperial Parliament for support of Provincial Government.

That all aids and supplies granted to Her Majesty are the sole gift of the Assembly, and this House proceeds to consider of an aid or supply to be granted to Her Majesty, in the hope that justice will be done to the Inhabitants of this Province, in regard to an appropriation made by the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for the support of the Civil Government of this Province, out of the moneys levied on the subject therein.<sup>45</sup>

Mr. Neilson ((rose)) with a string of printed resolutions (sic), which he discharged into the house with the effect of so many hand grenades. The hon. member for Quebec said that whatever might be the opinion of the house relative to them, for his own part, he entirely approved of them.<sup>46</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab favoured the house on the occasion, with a prophecy from his budget, that in the next session of Parliament there would not be found ten members who would dare to vote for the civil list, as provided by the Union Act. What the wondrous acts of the next session will be, must remain buried in the wombs of futurity, until that eventful period arrives, to shed abroad with a dazzling lustre those rays of legislative wisdom, which have hitherto operated as regards many of our luminaries, with the genial obscurity of a dark lantern.<sup>47</sup>

Amendment moved.

Mr. Hincks moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Dunlop,

That all the words after "that" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted "it is the undoubted right of the Assembly to grant all aids and supplies to Her Majesty, as well for the support of the Civil Government of the Province as for all other purposes whatsoever."

((Mr.)) Johnston ... supported the resolution in opposition to the amendment and the act of union.<sup>48</sup>

((Mr.)) Merritt ((also)) supported the resolution in opposition to the amendment and the act of union.<sup>49</sup>

Mr. Moffatt expressed his determination to oppose both amendment and resolution. The hon. member was of opinion that we should have a permanent civil list, otherwise the popular branch, might eventually become too powerful. He would vote he said for the Union Act, until he saw the country in a more settled state.<sup>50</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was for a civil list to a certain extent, for a term of years.<sup>51</sup>

Mr. Baldwin: Arbitrary, unjust, unconstitutional, and oppressive ((he described)) the Union Act and the Imperial Parliament for having sanctioned it — The hon. ((member spoke)) against the apportionment of representation....<sup>52</sup>

Mr. Buchanan, in answer to the hon. and learned member for Hastings, (Mr. Baldwin), did not hesitate in the face of the country and of the house to stand up for a fixed civil list, though not to justify the particular amount which the Imperial Parliament had adopted. And he would tell that hon. gentleman that except the union bill contains a fixed civil list, neither he (Mr. Buchanan) nor any of his friends would have been found among the advocates for responsible government. He would give the people in the respective colonies the working of the machinery of government, but not the power to stop it; and therefore he must approve of a fixed and permanent civil list, while he remained satisfied that we have really responsible government in Canada, that in fact the Executive will not remain in office after the Assembly has voted against it a want of confidence. The hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Moffatt) advocated a civil list, in the circumstances in which this colony had been, but he (Mr. Buchanan) was of opinion that in any circumstances, representative institutions and responsible government could not be safely granted to any colony, without a fixed civil list being first secured. With practical responsibility in the executive no practical evil could result from a fixed civil and permanent list. Without such responsible government, the people would not be satisfied with a fixed civil list, nor indeed could we expect any harmony whatever, even if every popular theoretical concession were yielded to the colony by the British government. He (Mr. Buchanan) held that Canadian public opinion should indicate in a constitutional manner, (by vote of the lower house) who should fill the offices of government in the colony; but he would never consent that the existence of the offices necessary for the carrying on of the government, on a permanent footing should be affected by other than the Imperial Parliament, or British public opinion.<sup>53</sup>

Amendment lost.

Another amendment moved.

So it passed in the Negative.

Mr. Attorney General Draper then moved, in amendment to the main motion, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Harrison,

That all the words after "that" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted, "during the first Session of the Parliament of the Province of Canada under the Act of Union, it is not expedient to enter into any discussion of the principles upon which that measure was framed, or to express a premature condemnation of its detail."

Mr. Draper was of opinion that the first session ought to be permitted to pass, without any expression upon the Union Act — giving time for prejudices to soften down, and for a cool dispassionate opinion to be formed upon it, the result of experience, not passion, theory and declamation. The provision with respect to the civil list, he did not regard as the rule of right, but as the exception. Whatever his opinions upon the subject might be, or whether they might militate against his retention of office, he would reserve to himself the right of expressing them when a proper occasion called for it. The hon. member spoke at some length with his accustomed fluency moving an amendment, to the effect of postponing the consideration of the subject till the ensuing session, when time would have in some measure matured opinions that could now only be hazarded with a rashness that might be productive of confusion and disunion.<sup>54</sup>

On motion of the Honourable Mr. Harrison, seconded by Mr. Cartwright, Consideration of question postponed till to-morrow.

Ordered — That the said Order of the day, as well as the consideration of the main motion now offered, and amendment proposed thereto, be postponed until to-morrow, and that the same be then the first Order of the day.

House in Com. on Timber inspection
Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to regulate the inspection and measurement of Timber, Masts, Spars, Deals, Staves, and other articles of a like nature, in the Ports of Quebec and Montreal, and for other purposes relative to the same, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Foster took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Cameron said he anticipated great opposition to this measure, as wealth and power was arrayed against right. As the Lumber trade was the staple trade of the Province, he hoped the House would give it their most serious consideration. It was an export trade amounting to £1,500,000, and that was an amount involving interests not to be treated lightly. At present, the measurement, culling &c. was performed by the hired servant of the merchant, and all that he sought was, that it should be placed in the hands of a sworn measurer, who should be appointed by a Board, the head of which should be responsible to the Government, for the efficiency of those he employed.<sup>55</sup>

Mr. Black said, that if the House gave into this measure, they would stultify their own proceedings, as in the case of provisions and flour, they had already resolved that inspection should be optional with the parties; now, why should the inspection of provisions be optional, and that of lumber compulsory? <sup>56</sup>

Mr. Cameron said there was nothing compulsory to be found in the Bill; that it was meant merely to do justice between man and man; that he considered that a sworn culler, who had no interest in either party, would be more likely to do justice, than a man whose livelihood depended on doing what his master approved.<sup>57</sup>

Mr. Johnston thought the poor man who made the lumber got no justice; favour was on the side of the merchant, who bought it — he kept a culler of his own, whom he paid £150 per annum, and by his favouring his principal, he pocketed £2,500 a year; that culler had to do as he was bid, and sometimes he used a French tape; and French measure being considerably more than English, lumber turned out, when measured by the merchant to the shipper, considerably more than when measured by the lumberman to the merchant.<sup>58</sup>

Mr. Moffatt — The Bill proposed was not only different, but opposite to his own Inspection Bill for provisions and flour — his only went the length of making inspection of flour and provisions optional, — this made it compulsory. He considered this Bill as interfering with the liberty of commerce — on agreement between the parties ought to supersede the necessity of any interference of a Government officer. One inconsistency of the Bill before the Committee was, that it was compulsory as to quantity not to quality.<sup>59</sup>

Mr. Cameron denied that it was either one or the other — there was no compulsion of any kind to be found in the Bill.<sup>60</sup>

Dr. Dunlop — What was sought by the Bill was nothing new. In the ports of the Tyne and the Wear, there were coal meiers (sic), who were to see justice done between the owner of the coal works and the shipper. In the port of London there were corn meters, to do justice between the importer and the purchaser, and this Bill required nothing more than that, if either party chose, they might call in an indifferent party to judge between them.<sup>61</sup>

Mr. Derbishire — If the merchant did full justice to the lumberer at present, why object to measurement? It surely could do the former no harm — on the contrary, it would shew that the imputations against him were groundless. Instead of going round the matter, he infinitely preferred going at once into the measure on its merits.<sup>62</sup>

Mr. Cameron moved the first clause.<sup>63</sup>

Mr. Aylwin objected entirely to fettering trade by Government restrictions. What had made Great Britain so great a nation, but the entire freedom of the trade? He objected, moreover, to adding patronage to the Executive in appointing such an officer, seeing that it had more patronage already, than was at all consistent with the well-being of the community. His professional business had led him to the knowledge, that great frauds were practised by the Quebec merchants on the lumbermen — but the lumber trade was a series of roguery from top to bottom. He would allow no merchant to employ only one culler; if he did so, that one would necessarily identify his interests with those of his employer. But one set of persons had been overlooked in this Bill; there was no provision to do justice to the axe-man, on whose labour the lumberer and the merchant fattened, and he was more useful to the community than both lumberman and merchant put together. If he was deprived of his wages, as the law now stood, he had to seize the whole raft, and give security to twice the amount of its value. Was this fair — a poor man, a stranger in Quebec, had £30 due him for labour, and before he could recover it against a rich man, he had to find security to the amount, perhaps, of £10,000. There ought, in the Bill, to be a summary remedy for this; lumber was necessary for the trade of the Colony, but it was a fruitful source of fraud and immorality in the axe-man, the lumber-man, and the merchant who was the greatest rogue of the lot.<sup>64</sup>

Dr. Dunlop was much obliged to the Hon. and learned Member for his exposition of the law, as he and his brethren of the Upper Province always supposed, that the labourer had an easy lien on the raft, and that it could not be transferred until his just claims were satisfied.<sup>65</sup>

Mr. Aylwin (in continuation) — The axe-men were the parties who really did good to the country, and the sympathies of all good men were engaged on the side of the poor labourer, and he, for one, would never vote for a Bill, that did not make inspection voluntary, and provide an easy and summary remedy for the poor labourer, whose patient industry had created the property which enriched the lumberman and the merchant.<sup>66</sup>

Mr. Johnston said, the Hon. and learned Member was entirely out in his law — the law he spoke of had been repealed, and the labourer could now seize, and sell, just so many cribs of the raft as would satisfy his demands on his employer. The Hon. gentleman had asserted that every one engaged in the lumber trade were rogues; if so, the lawyer was the greatest rogue of the lot, for he would protect, without reference to their respective roguery, whichever rogue paid him best. All that the lumbermen wanted, was to know what they were doing — instead of giving them 8d. per foot, at the merchant's own measurement, let them give 6d. a foot for a just measurement, such as that insisted on from the shipper. The Member for Portneuf's opposition to the Bill, he considered factious, and arising entirely from his hope to be employed by the Quebec merchants.<sup>67</sup>

Mr. Aylwin — The Supervisor proposed would add to Government patronage.<sup>68</sup>

Mr. Johnston — No matter, his proceedings would be watched by the Board of Trade.<sup>69</sup>

Mr. Aylwin read the clause, and said he hoped that Mr. Johnston would be consistent, and oppose it. He was sincere in his opinions, and was influenced by no selfish motive. He never would vote for a Bill that made culling and measurement compulsory.<sup>70</sup>

Mr. Cameron defied him to show that there was any thing compulsory in the Bill before the Committee.<sup>71</sup>

Mr. Aylwin repeated that the axe-men had no lien on the raft, except by seizing the whole, and giving to the Sheriff double security.<sup>72</sup>

Messrs. Aylwin and Cameron now got extremely disorderly — many took advantage of this, and slipped off, leaving the House without a quorum...<sup>73</sup>

Several Members having retired,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The names of the members present were taken down as followeth : —

Mr. Speaker,

Mr. Black, Mr. Cameron, Mr. Solicitor General Day, Mr. Dunlop, Mr. Gilchrist, Mr. J. S. MacDonald, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Harmanus Smith, Mr. Steele, and the Honourable Mr. Viger.

No Quorum.

And at half past 10 o'clock at night, Mr. Speaker adjourned the House for want of a Quorum.

settlement referred to Select Committee.

Of Samuel Rowlands, of the Town of Niagara, Printer, praynig remuneration for loss said to be sustained through the violation of a certain contract.

Mr. Attorney General Ogden, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Bill to provide for the more easy and expeditious administration of Justice in Civil Causes, and matters involving small pecuniary value, in that part of this Province heretofore Lower Canada, reported that the Committee had gone through the said Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which amendments were again read at the Clerk's table.

Ordered — That the said Bill and Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow, and that it be then the first order of the day.

On motion of Sir Allan MacNab, seconded by Mr. Cartwright, Ordered — That the Order of this House of yesterday, that 300 copies of the Report of the Agent of the Bathurst District, relative to the Township of McNab, together with the remarks and letter of the Chief McNab, relative to the said Report, be printed for the use of the members of the House, be rescinded; and that the said Documents be referred to a Committee of seven members, to report thereon with all convenient speed; with power to send for persons, papers and records.

Mr. Small rose and said, he hoped the House would indulge him with the attention of its Members for a few minutes, on a subject which he considered highly important and interesting — though of a very unusual nature. He meant an address of condolence to His Excellency the Governor General upon his late accident. — (Hear, hear.) He believed it was the first occasion in which an accident of the kind had occurred, to demand an expression of feeling on the part of the House in this Province, but he thought it to be so proper a measure in itself, that he felt it to be his duty to proceed with it.<sup>1</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought it irregular, as a notice ought to have been given, and Members should have had time to make up their minds on the subject.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Cameron said a notice had been given.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Baldwin thought it ought to be deferred, and wished to know who had given notice of the motion.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Cameron said he had done so.<sup>5</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought it was irregular that Mr. Small should move for the address. He had no doubt that the Hon. and learned Member would withdraw his motion reluctantly, as it was one very likely to be remembered. — (A laugh.)<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Small said he would withdraw it, provided Mr. Cameron would move another.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Cameron moved, seconded by Mr. Williams, with His Excellency

on his late accident,

That an humble Address of condolence be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, assuring His Excellency that this House feel a lively sympathy in the serious accident sustained by His Excellency, and that they participate, with the community at large, in an anxious solicitude for his speedy recovery.

House in Com. on Timber inspection
Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to regulate the inspection and measurement of timber, masts, spars, deals, staves, and other articles of a like nature, in the Ports of Quebec and Montreal, and for other purposes relative to the same, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Williams took the chair of the Committee.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Cameron moved the second clause.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Neilson objected strongly to the disorderly mode in which the debate of the previous evening had been conducted — so disorderly indeed, that he could not tell what was and what was not resolved. The question in hand involved two great interests — that of the procurer of the lumber, and the purchaser. The Bill before the House was drawn exclusively by the former class, and must necessarily be supposed to favor their interests rather than those of their opponents — and seemed to aim at compelling a measurement whether either would or would not. He was ready to admit that where men disagree, it was necessary to the ends of justice that there should be an impartial party to judge between them, but he deprecated such interference where they were of one opinion; more especially as this Bill would entail a heavy expense on the trade, which expense must be paid by the consumer on the other side of the Atlantic, and would go so far to encourage the rivalry of foreign nations in the lumber trade, as to do away with the virtual premium which the mother country had granted to us. There were other clauses which he thought required modification, but those he would advert to as they were brought up.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Cameron would freely admit that the discussion of last night was tumultuous and disorderly, but recommended that they should let by ganes be by ganes — he once more insisted that there was nothing compulsory in the Bill, and was willing that that should be stated by any clause which the opponents should choose to introduce. If, as the hon. member for Quebec has stated, it was a tax — the men who had in a few years acquired immense fortunes were better able to pay a tax, than those poor lumbermen whom they despoiled. The people of Quebec had agreed to it, and they ought to know their own interests, and he cited among others, Messrs. Deane & Gilmour. The people in the lumber trade were (all things considered) just about as honest men as any other men engaged in commerce.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Black moved that the Petition of the Quebec Board of Trade be read, which was agreed to...<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Cameron. — This was only the old Bill amended, and instead of adding expenses as Mr. Neilson had asserted, it clearly tended to diminish them.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Johnston. — The whole Board of Trade were merchants, and that balanced at any rate Mr. Neilson's objections to the Bill having been drawn by lumber men, and more than counterbalanced it.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Black had no objection to impartial judges.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Johnston. — Quebec merchants took a mortgage on the farms and buildings of the lumberman — and then after having furnished him with the provisions, &c. necessary for his undertaking, at 100 per cent. profit — got the raft into his boom, and compelled him to take what prices he chose to give. In selling a raft there was no bulking — every stick had to be measured separately, and if the merchant had his own hired servant to measure it, the poor lumberman must necessarily go to the wall. All that the lumberman required was to know what he was doing, and what he was to get credit for — he only wanted to get what was accorded to the buyers of tea and sugar — 16 ounces to the lb.<sup>17</sup>

Clause 16 produced some discussion — the salaries of the Supervisor of Cullers being provided for in it, to the amount of £750 per annum. — Many hon. members appeared to regard the remuneration in a very extravagant light. — Among these were Messrs. Black, Neilson, Viger, and Small.<sup>18</sup>

An opposite view of it, however, was taken by Messrs. Cameron and Johnston, who very justly contended that in order to have a competent person to fill an important office, and a man of integrity, it was necessary to pay him well, otherwise no one of any standing would be found to accept of it.<sup>19</sup>

Upon the motion of Mr. Small it was then reduced to £500, the supervisor at the same time being freed from the charge of supporting a deputy at his own expense.<sup>20</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Bill reported with amendments.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Williams reported, that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Message from Legis. Council.

A message from the Legislative Council by John Godfrey Spragge, Esquire, Master in Chancery.

MR. SPEAKER,

Periodical Census Bill sent down amended.

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill, intituled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act therein mentioned, and to provide for taking a periodical census of the Inhabitants of this Province, and for obtaining the other statistical information therein mentioned," with an amendment, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly.

And then he withdrew.

Order for House in Com. of supply on Message and Report on Estimates, read.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee of supply, to take into consideration the message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relating to the estimates for the year ending 31st December, 1841, and the Report of the Select Committee to which was referred so much of the message of His Excellency, the Governor General, as relates to the said estimates, together with the Documents connected therewith,

With Mr. Neilson's motion thereon.

And for taking into further consideration Mr. Neilson's motion of yesterday, viz — "that all aids and supplies granted to Her Majesty are the sole gift of the Assembly, and this House proceeds to consider of an aid or supply to be granted to Her Majesty, in the hope that justice will be done to the Inhabitants of this Province in regard to an appropriation made by the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for the support of the Civil Government of this Province, out of the money's levied on the subject therein ;"

And Mr. Draper's amendment.

And also, Mr. Attorney General Draper's motion, in amendment thereto, viz : "That all the words after "that" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted, "during the first Sessions of the Parliament of the Province of Canada, under the Act of Union, it is not expedient to enter into any discussion of the principles upon which that measure was framed, or to express a premature condemnation of its detail," being read,<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Aylwin spoke for a long time in reprobation of the Union Act, its arbitrary and unconstitutional provisions, (so termed by him.) the sploiation (sic) of representative rights, and the virtues of the French Canadians. ((He made)) ... various allusions ... to the Yankees, with respect to their separation from the mother country...."<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Roblin said the Union Act was an experiment, which he was desirous of giving a fair trial, although he did not think that any one of liberal sentiments could sanction all its provisions. In accordance with the amendment which had been submitted by Mr. Attorney General, the previous day, he did not think that the time had arrived for an expression of opinion on it. — The change that was about to take place in the political world at home, would probably introduce men to office who would say, there is no pleasing of these people, the Canadians, nor any mode of government that will suit them ; for, before they have an opportunity of judging of it, their discontent and impatience of all controul breaks forth in clamours and denunciations, indicative of an utter impossibility of legislating for them with any hope either of stability or success — His Excellency Lord Sydenham's administration, ought in his opinion, to have a fair trial before it was repudiated, or it was impossible that those (the people) who had conferred upon them a seat in parliament, would do otherwise than regret having sent them —<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Small expressed similar opinions, saying that he had been elected expressly on the conditions that a fair trial should be given to the union. These conditions he would faithfully observe, until ... ((he)) saw the policy of the government operating against the liberties of the people. He would vote for the supplies, in the confident hope of all constitutional remonstrances being listened to, and although there were objections which he had to urge against the union act, he would defer them till a future occasion, under the conviction that the Home Government would never enforce any law upon the colonies, that was appealed against by the voice of the inhabitants.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Taschereau, the member for Dorchester ... spoke ... in favour of Mr. Draper's amendment, to postpone expression upon the union act until time had given it somewhat of a trial.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Sherwood ... ((was)) for the resolution and against the amendment.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Price ... ((echoed)) like sentiments.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Child. — He had not spoken on the question, and would make a few remarks before he gave his vote. We are not now, Mr. Speaker, considering the Union Act — that question is not necessarily before us — but the resolution had some bearing upon the Union. I am fully persuaded, Mr. Speaker, that no hon. member in this house, or out of it, will undertake to defend that Act on the grounds of justice — I believe that is impossible. The authors and greatest supporters of it, do not pretend it is, in its details, just. These details are only justified by its authors on the grounds of expediency alone. The hon. member for Port-Neuf has stated, just now, if I understood him correctly, that all Lower Canada opposed the Union. I must correct that statement, as far as the people I have the honor to represent are concerned. They do not oppose the Union — the principle they are willing and prepared to support. They do not agree to some of the provisions of the Union Act, — the permanent civil List of £75,000 Sterling is one which they do not approve of. There are others which I am prepared to mention at a proper time — but I will not now take up the time of this hon. house in referring to them. I hold, Mr. Speaker, that those who pay the taxes should have, and uninterruptedly enjoy, the power to say how much, and when and for what, those resources shall be voted. We do object to the taking of this permanent civil list from our chest by the Imperial Parliament, without our consent. We can never acknowledge their right to thus vote away our monies. We are not averse to providing for the Public Service, and shall feel it a duty to do so adequately, and we most solemnly protest against such acts and violations of our rights. I do not consider this a proper time to attack the provisions of the Union Act, — the time is not well chosen. When I deem it proper and timely to do so, I wish to do it effectually. I have no doubt that then we shall be backed up in such attack by the people of the whole country, — I am sure that the people I represent will support me in making an appeal to the present authorities, that will be listened to and that will prevail. The union has taken place — the act is not ours; — If it works well the advantages are ours and the honor of its success belong to its authors, — if it fails, the odium of its failure will belong to its authors. I would not make myself and constituents responsible for its failure by opposing it, — I would not make them nor myself liable for its success by endorsing it — but we will give it a fair trial and yield a passive assent to it, hoping to derive permanent benefit from its success. For these considerations, Mr. Speaker, I shall vote for the amendment, and not for the original resolution.<sup>28</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab ... joined the clamour against the civil list denouncing it as an invasion of our property. With respect to deferring the consideration of the subject, he was of opinion that the very first day of the assembling of parliament, ought to have been devoted to it. The member for Hamilton also said a great deal more of proportionate value with his general observations.<sup>29</sup>

Amendment carried.

So it was carried in the Affirmative.

The question being then put on the main motion, as amended, a division again ensued.

Yeas 35.

Noes 29.

Main motion as amended carried.

And the names being called for they were taken down as in the last preceding division.

Mr. Neilson moved, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

Motion that no votes of new salaries be considered as a recognition thereof in future.

That no votes of this House at the present Session, for any Salaries or fixed allowances, beyon those recognized by the votes on which the appropriations of the Act of 1832, for the support of the Civil Government of Lower Canada, was founded, or the votes of the Assembly of the late Province of Upper Canada, be held as engaging this House for the future, as to the amount of such salaries or allowances, or as a recognition of any such salaries or allowances not heretofore voted by the Representative Assemblies of the said Provinces respectively.

Amendment moved.

Mr. Attorney General Draper moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Parke,

That all the words after "that" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted: "this House, in thus deferring any expression of their sentiment, are actuated by an anxious desire to arrive at conclusions which shall be based upon actual experience, upon which they will be hereafter prepared to exercise their constitutional right, of claiming from the justice of the Sovereign and the Imperial Parliament, such modifications and changes as they may find necessary, for the peace, welfare, and good Government of this Province."

Mr. Neilson ... opened the debate, by an appropriate speech....<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Merritt.... Mr. Chairman — the hon. member from the county of Quebec, is entitled to the thanks of every man in Canada, for his open, manly and determined resistance to that provision in the act of Union, which appropriates a permanent Civil List.

It has been often asserted, and is at this moment very generally believed, that the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada sanctioned this measure. I feel it due to that body, to take the earliest opportunity to prove, that so far from sanctioning a permanent grant, they promptly and openly resisted it, in every stage. By reference to the message of his Excellency the Governor-General, of the 7th Dec. 1839, three propositions will be found — the first, equal representation for the two provinces; the second, a sufficient Civil List, in the following words:

"The second stipulation to be made, is the grant of a sufficient Civil List. The propriety of rendering the Judicial branch (sic) independent alike of the Executive and the Legislature, and of furnishing the means of carrying on the indispensable services of the Government, admits of no question, and has been affirmed by the Parliament of Upper Canada, in the acts passed by them, for effecting these objects. In determining the amount of the Civil List, the House of Assembly may be assured, that the salaries and expenses to be paid from it, will be calculated by her Majesty's Government, with a strict regard to economy, and the state of the provincial finances."

The third provided for the debt of Upper Canada being borne by both provinces, which appeared unnecessary, as the Union once effected, the debt followed as a matter of course. And I trust, in a few years after our communications are opened throughout, we will all become satisfied, that the income derived from them will soon repay the debt.

The second proposition appearing vague and uncertain, an address on the following resolution, was moved:

"Mr. Gowan, seconded by Mr. Parke, moves that an humble address be presented to his Excellency the Governor-General, praying that his Excellency may be graciously pleased to inform this House, what officers are included in the Civil List to be recommended to her Majesty's Government for the adoption of the British Parliament, together with the amount of salary to be given to each officer respectively, and the period of time to which such list is intended to extend; that Messrs. [illegible] and Thorborn be a committee to draft and report the same, and that the 31st rule of this House be dispensed with, so far as relates to this motion."

Yeas, 21 — Nays, 5.

On the 19th Dec. 1839, the proposition contained in the passage, was altered by the hon. the Attorney-General, who is now in his place, as follows:

"Resolved, That this House concur in the proposition, that a sufficient Civil List be granted to her Majesty, for securing the independence of the Judges, and to the Executive Government that freedom of action which is necessary for the public good. — The grant for the person administering the Government and for the several Courts to be permanent, and for the officers conducting the other departments of the public service, to be for the life of the Sovereign, and for a period of not less than ten years."

Yeas, 13 — Nays, 8.

On this resolution a debate ensued, in which the intention of the House was clearly understood. On a division, the eight members who divided against it, openly advocated a permanent Civil List; and those voting for the resolution, expressed their decided opposition to the principle — and I feel confident would never have assented to the Union, if a permanent grant had been contemplated.

The salaries of the Governor and Judges only were intended to be permanent: the Executive during the life of the Sovereign, and the remainder of the revenues of the province to be granted by annual supplies, as an equivalent for the grants made for the army and navy, by the Commons in the mother country.

The following is an extract from the Message in reply to the address of the Assembly:

"The generous confidence which you have reposed in her Majesty's Government and Parliament, respecting the Civil List, and the details of the measure of re-union, will be duly appreciated; and it will be the anxious endeavor of her Majesty's advisers, in all their proceedings upon this important subject, to justify that confidence and promote the permanent well-being of the people of Upper Canada."

This removed all doubt, if any existed, but I do not believe there was an individual in the House who did not place implicit confidence in the home Government — and who did not firmly believe the officers and salaries would have been placed on the same footing they then were. What return have we met with, for that confidence? Not only a permanent Civil List of £83,000, but in addition, permanent grants under existing laws of Upper Canada; also, the permanent acts or ordinances made under authority of the Special Council in Lower Canada, after the Union had passed in England; which, out of a revenue of £383,203 8 4, we have left the power to provide during the present session, for £45,053 16 3. And if this system continues, with the ordinary and unavoidable expenses arising from year to year, this House will soon be relieved from the trouble of granting any supplies whatever.

Having ever been a strenuous advocate of the Union, I am particularly desirous it should work well, and give general satisfaction: this can only be ensured by securing to this representative body the same power which exists in England, which can alone ensure the continuance of that harmony which was happily established by the constitution of 1688, and has continued to exist in the councils of the mother country since that period. This is the first opportunity, and I believe it to be the proper time, to express our disapprobation of the terms of the Union, particularly as they were never recognised or sanctioned by the representatives of either province. The hon. mover does not intend following up his resolutions with any thing more than an expression of opinion, although I would have no hesitation in supporting any address to the home Government, expressing opinions which I feel satisfied are entertained by the great body of the inhabitants of Canada, particularly as satisfaction will not be established until these provisions are removed; in the meantime I will oppose the amendment, and support the original resolution.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Baldwin observed, that he felt astonished at the remarks which had fallen from the hon. member for Oxford, and in opposing the amendment of that gentleman, and supporting the resolutions of his hon. friend from Quebec, he felt called upon to declare, that neither in office nor out of office had he ever concealed his objections to those obnoxious passages in the Union bill, which, as a British subject, he looked upon, and ever should look upon, as most unjust and unfair towards the Lower Canadians. — That hon. gentleman knew well, that he (Mr. Baldwin) had never, before he was a member of the Government, nor since he had ceased to belong to it, in any manner sanctioned the clauses of the Union bill, which had given, and justly given, such universal dissatisfaction in Lower Canada, and amongst the great masses of the people of Upper Canada; and he defied that hon. member, or any other hon. member, to charge him fairly with having given such approbation. He (Mr. Baldwin) was astonished, that any one could act with such inconsistency as some hon. gentlemen seemed disposed to, upon the present resolutions. No man was more loud, more violent, against the Union bill, in its details, than the hon. gentleman from Oxford.<sup>32</sup>

Only as regarded the Civil List, ((said)) ... Mr. Hincks.<sup>33</sup>

((Mr. Baldwin continued.)) Only as regarded the Civil List, the hon. member observes. Why, then, all I can say is, that I must have widely mistaken the sentiments of the hon. member, and that my hon. friends around me have long been laboring under a similar error. The Civil List, as fixed by the Union, was a most obnoxious feature in the bill, and he would denounce it as unjust towards the people of this province; but it is as bad, or is it so iniquitous, as depriving thousands of British subjects of their fair representation? Is it not notorious, that large counties, containing from 20,000 to 30,000, in Lower Canada, are deprived of their representation, while such towns as Cornwall, Niagara, Bytown and London, are given the right of representation? And all this because a portion of the people were unhappily in a state of insurrection!

As respected the debt of Upper Canada, which had been imposed upon the Lower Canadians by the act, whatever might be the opinion of some hon. members, on the justice of the clauses of Upper Canada to have a portion of that debt paid by the sister province, no one could deny that it had been imposed upon the Lower Canadians without their consent. Nevertheless, the Lower Canada members, while they had, from a sense of duty to their constituents, protested against the act, had ever, with a manly respect for themselves and their country, treated it as a debt that was to be paid, and as, therefore, a matter of pounds, shillings and pence, about which they would not contend. But the Civil List and the representation, were matters that could not be thus passed over; and he felt astonished at those who had, in the early part of the session, so loudly proclaimed their readiness to take a stand, when the time came, now shrunk from supporting the resolutions of his hon. friend, and and (sic) still more at those who were for having that stand, as far as a mere saving of their rights were concerned, taken in the answer to the speech from the throne. Let them reflect, that they have a duty to perform to their constituencies, and that before them they must appear, to answer for their acts in this House, and their advocacy of principles directly in opposition to their wishes, and against the liberties of the people. He (Mr. Baldwin) would support the resolutions of his hon. friend from Quebec, because they would shew to the people of this province, and to the Queen's Government, that the rights and liberties of the people of this province, were not to be taken away without a voice being raised against the injustice of the proceeding. He (Mr. Baldwin) would with his dying breath, declare his opposition to the exercise of any power which might control the just right of the people of this province, to appropriate their own resources as to them should seem best, or which might take away or unjustly infringe upon their rights as British subjects. He should, therefore, vote against the amendment.<sup>34</sup>

Message from Legis.
Council.

A message from the Legislative Council by John Godfrey Spragge, Esquire, Master in Chancery.

MR. SPEAKER,

Bills sent down
amended.

The Legislative Council have passed the following Bills, with several amendments, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly :

Criminal Justice administration Bill.

"An Act for improving the administration of Criminal Justice in this Province."

Larceny Bill.

"An Act for consolidating and amending the Laws in this Province relative to Larceny and other offences connected therewith."

And then he withdrew.

At 5 o'clock, Mr. Speaker declared the House adjourned until 7 o'clock, P. M.

7 o'clock P. M.

House in Committee on Commercial Bank
stock increase Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to increase the Capital Stock of the Commercial Bank of the Midland District, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Burnet took the chair of the Committee.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Cartwright opened with a long speech descriptive of the advantages of those Institutions to the country. The rapid developement (sic) of the resources of the Province was in a great measure to be attributed to the assistance of the banks. He went largely into the restrictive clauses proposed to be inserted in the several charters, in accordance with the treasury minutes, and the recommendation of the committee.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Baldwin enquired what was the amount of banking capital now employed, and what was the increased capital asked for by the several banks.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Holmes replied, explanatory, and to the satisfaction of the learned enquirer.<sup>39</sup>

The business then proceeded, and upon the clauses being read providing for a suspension of specie payments, — Mr. Viger rose and characterized that provision as an unconstitutional act of legislation, and one which he would never assent to.<sup>40</sup>

Several members expressed their disapprobation — <sup>41</sup>

Mr. Holmes rose, and said he too disapproved of the introduction into the charter of any Bank of a clause which he considered as unnecessary, in fact disgraceful to contemplate — for one he was willing it should be expunged, but he was bound to say the offensive clause was contained in the minutes of the Treasury, and being there, it was one of those which it had been given the Banking interest to understand must, along with others, be introduced in the several charters to ensure their obtaining the Royal assent.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Cartwright referred to the condition under which the Banks in Upper Canada had heretofore existed, that they were authorized to suspend specie payments with the provision that during suspension they should transact no Banking business — he considered it requisite to have that plan, and would insist upon it.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Holmes hereupon said he dissented entirely from the hon. member for Lenox (sic) and Addington, — he considered the provision relating to the Upper Canada acts as disgraceful, and would insist upon their being withdrawn. He was not desirous of shielding the Banks under any such protection. Let them pay their debts honestly — they needed no protection of the kind. He had no hesitation in saying the Bank of Montreal needed none — but that if provision must be made for such a contingency, let it be under legislative authority, or as in the proviso contained in the bill he then held in his hand.<sup>44</sup>

Mr. Moffatt considered the introduction of such a clause not creditable to any Bank, — it contemplated the suspension of cash payments, which should not be voted, and however any such provision was made, the proviso was the best part of the clause.<sup>45</sup>

Several members expressed similar opinions.<sup>46</sup>

Mr. Hincks reviewed the whole of the recommendations of the Banking Committee....<sup>47</sup>

Some warmth of feeling was exhibited between some of the Bankers — <sup>48</sup>

Mr. Holmes again rose, and said he appealed to the justice of that House, if a provision of that kind was contained in the act of one Bank, he should expect the whole to be placed on the same footing, but it appeared to him the Commercial Bank was seeking for the benefits of the old act, and the advantages of a new one. He should, therefore, as the opinion of the Committee was evidently unfavourable to the introduction of that clause, which he again characterized as a disgraceful one, insist upon its being expunged from the Commercial Bank charter, as he understood it would be from all the others — and he put it now to the Committee to declare whether it was the intention of that House to admit the clause or not.<sup>49</sup>

A division was called for, and the Chairman ((Mr. Cuvillier)) declared, amid much confusion, that the clause was negated.<sup>50</sup>

(529)

Several members having retired,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The names of the members present were taken down as followeth : —

Mr. Speaker,

No quorum.

Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Burnet, Mr. Cameron, Mr. Cartwright, Mr. Durand, Mr. Hincks, Mr. Holmes, the Honourable Mr. Moffatt, Mr. Morin, Mr. Morris, Mr. Price, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Henry Smith, Mr. Thompson, and the Honourable Mr. Viger.

And at 10 o'clock at night, Mr. Speaker adjourned the House, for want of a Quorum.

That all the words after "that" in the said motion, be struck out, and the following substituted — "the Schedule annexed to the Bill be amended, by expunging the several denominations of Methodists" and inserting one column only for the Methodists."

Lost.

The question having been put upon the motion of amendment, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.

spent therein,

Resolution reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Taché, reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's Table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —

Bill to amend District Courts Acts.

Ordered — That Sir Allan MacNab, have leave to bring in a Bill to alter, improve, and amend, the Laws now in force, establishing the several District Courts in this Province, he accordingly presented the said Bill to the House, and the same was received and read for the first time.

Mr. Aylwin moved, seconded by Mr. Cartwright, Motion for commission on Election for 2nd Riding York, to sit at Streetsville.

That the Commission appointed to take evidence in the matter of the contested election of George Duggan, Esquire, for the 2nd Riding of the County of York, be authorized to sit at Streetsville, to examine the witnesses of the sitting Member for the said 2nd Riding of the County of York; and that Joseph C. Morrison, Esquire, be the Chairman of the said Commission.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Hincks ... said that he had affidavits to shew that the lives of persons would not be safe from the effects of Orangeism in that Quarter.<sup>2</sup> ((He)) read an extract from evidence taken before the Commission showing that one of the witnesses had been threatened in Toronto by an Orangeman when attending to give evidence.<sup>3</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said if that motion was carried, he should add to it a condition that the Commander of the Troops should be requested to accompany the Commissioners by a Company of soldiers.<sup>4</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab laughed at the idea of such a measure.<sup>5</sup>

The Hon. Mr. Draper agreed with Sir Allan that a great deal more was made of Orange influence and of Orange violence than it merited.<sup>6</sup>

Capt. Steele thought as one side had been examined at Toronto, it was only fair that the other should be examined at Streetsville.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Baldwin's observations could not be heard but we believe he objected to the Commission sitting at Streetsville.<sup>8</sup> to the Bill moved.

That the following amendment be made to the said Bill : —

- Lost. The question being put on the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.
- Further amendment moved. Mr. Black moved, seconded by Mr. Neilson, That the following Proviso, in the twenty first Clause, be struck out: "Provided always, that timber re-dressed, whereby the first measurement and dimensions shall necessarily become altered, may be measured according to the provisions of this Act by a shipping Culler."
- Amendment lost. The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.

 "Be it further enacted and provided, that no Supervisor of Cullers shall be eligible to sit as a member of the Legislative Assembly of this Province."<sup>10</sup>

Messrs. Neilson and Viger supported the views of Mr. Aylwin.<sup>11</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought it unconstitutional to prevent any man from voting — if Mr. Aylwin would alter his amendment, and move that the Inspector be not allowed to sit in the House he would support him because he thought the influence of the Government in the House already too great.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Aylwin assented....<sup>13</sup>

- Bill to be engrossed. (538) Ordered — That the said Bill, as amended, be engrossed.
- Usury Bill (Legislative Council) read 2nd time. An engrossed Bill from the Legislative Council, intituled "An Act to amend the Usury Laws," was, according to order, read a second time.

The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, in amendment, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Daly, That all the words after "That," in the said motion, be struck out, and the following substituted: "the said Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Tuesday next."

A debate ensued. — Messrs. Viger, Neilson, and Baldwin spoke against the Bill, the latter gentleman objecting to all new experiments, of which he said we had enough this session.<sup>14</sup>

Messrs. Harrison, Dr. Dunlop and Hincks spoke in favour of the bill.<sup>15</sup>

Bill to define limit of Norfolk read 2nd time.

A Bill to define the Westerly limit of the County of Norfolk, was, according to order, read a second time.<sup>16</sup>

A long discussion took place on a proposition made we believe by Mr. Powell for the annexation of the Township of Bayham to the County of Norfolk — to which County he said it properly belonged.<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Surveyor General Parke strongly opposed this as unjust, and contrary to the wishes of the inhabitants.<sup>18</sup> ((He)) ... was desirous to defer it until the next session of parliament, to give to the inhabitants of the township of Bayham time to express their opinions relative to that township being annexed to the county of Norfolk.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Hincks also opposed it, and asserted that it more properly belonged to Oxford.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Cameron said the proposed alteration had been Gazetted according to law six months, giving sufficient time for any expression of opinion relative to it; in accordance with this a bill had been introduced which he trusted would pass.<sup>21</sup>

Capt. Steele said it geographically belonged to Brock, as it was the only outlet that County had to the Lake.<sup>22</sup>

((or))

Capt. Steele affirmed, that the township was so far removed from the county of Middlesex that the inhabitants sustained great inconvenience (sic) in consequence of it. As to the vicinity of Brock entitling it to be annexed to that district, it was a perfect absurdity and in opposition to the wishes of the inhabitants.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Parke said he was perfectly willing to leave it to the people themselves — whatever they decided on should have his support.<sup>24</sup>

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

House in Com. on Bill for collection of small debts in Canada E.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide for the more easy and expeditious administration of Justice in civil causes, and matters involving small pecuniary value, in that part of this Province heretofore Lower Canada, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Chesley, took the chair of the Committee and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported amended.

And Mr. Chesley, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Message from

The Honourable S. B. Harrison, one of Her Majesty's Executive Council, delivered to Mr. Speaker two messages, from His Excellency, the Governor General, signed by His Excellency.

And the said Messages were read by Mr. Speaker, all the Members of the House being uncovered, and are as followeth: —

Message recommending appropriation for Hamilton and Port
Dover road.

SYDENHAM,

The Governor General, considering the advantage which the formation of a line of Road from Hamilton to Port Dover would afford to the Public, recommends to the House of Assembly to take into consideration the propriety of making an appropriation of £20,000 for that purpose.

Kingston, 9th September, 1841.

Message recommending appropriation for Ottawa and St. Lawrence road.

SYDENHAM,

The Governor General, considering that the completion of the Military Road from the Ottawa, near L'Orignal, to the St. Lawrence, is likely to be of great public advantage, recommends to the House of Assembly to take into consideration the propriety of making an appropriation of £1,500 towards that purpose.

Government House, Kingston, 9th September, 1841.

House in Com. of supply on Message and Report on Civil Estimates.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee of supply, to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relating to the estimates for the year ending 31st. December, 1841; and on the Report of the Select Committee to which was referred so much of the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, as relates to the said estimates, together with the Documents connected therewith, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Roblin, took the chair of the Committee.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Thorburn drew the attention of the House to the item of £800 for criminal prosecutions saying that it ought to have been submitted to the committee on contingencies, and that although in troublous times large sums had been expended on trials of this nature, it was not to be understood that £800 per annum was always to be voted for them. With respect also to the item of £1,111 2s. 2d. for the Upper Canada College, the law provided that the funds of King's College should defray the expenses of the Upper Canada Institution.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Hincks said that he had ascertained, that more money had been expended on books and contingencies than the college dues amounted to. He was of opinion that the pupils ought to pay the expenses of their own boarding, and alleged that the institution had been conducted on a most expensive scale.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Harrison said that a few days ago, a very detailed account had been given to him of school lands, which reflected the highest credit upon those who had drawn up the report. It however convinced him, that much mismanagement had taken place relative to them.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Merritt affirmed that of all the public lands of Upper Canada, not one dollar had gone to the public revenue, having been invariably swallowed up by various charges of one kind or another.<sup>29</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Progress reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Roblin, reported that the Committee had made some progress, and had directed him to move for leave to sit again.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again at the next sitting of the House.

"consolidating and amending the Laws in this Province relative to they desire the concurrence of the Assembly.

And then he withdrew.

At 5 o'clock, Mr. Speaker declared the House adjourned until 7 o'clock, P. M.

7 o'clock, P. M.

House in Com. on supply and on Report and Message on Civil Estimates.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee of supply, to take into consideration the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relating to the Estimates for the year ending 31st December, 1841 ; and on the Report of the Select Committee to which was referred so much of the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, as relates to the said Estimates, together with the documents connected therewith, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Roblin took the chair of the Committee.<sup>30</sup>

((Mr. Harrison moved that)) £2,289 4s. 8d. ... be replaced to the Military Chest, for expenses defrayed in forwarding emigrants to their destination, after arriving in the Province, in 1840 ; together with the probable amount to be incurred for the same service in 1841, £3,500 — making together a total of £5,789 4s. 8d. ....<sup>31</sup>

((He)) said that such a demand would not again be made, as the British Government were willing to advance the sum of £8,000, annually for the furtherance of this object ; and he thought that sum would be found sufficient, with the restrictions which were to be put upon the system of Emigration in future, to meet all the expenses to be incurred in the transport of the Emigrant to his place of destination ; and that the Provincial Govt. should render any aid required in his location. He was not in favor of too great an influx of Emigration in one year — but thought that from 30 to 40,000 could be absorbed by the Province annually without detriment to its interests — and with great advantage to the Emigrant — and that that was the number about to be provided for by the Home Government, all over which of a certain class, would be subject to a slight indirect tax.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Neilson said, that according to the system that had hitherto prevailed of handling the public money, every farthing was disposed of, leaving nothing for any exigencies that might occur. As to peopling this country with the indigent, who were prevailed upon to come to it under false representations, he entirely disapproved of it — contending that it was productive of more harm than good.<sup>33</sup>

Dr. Dunlop required explanation about taxing Emigrants — and protested strongly against Quarantine stations — that they were more likely to generate disease than arrest it.<sup>34</sup>

Mr. Merritt said he thought the people of this country had offered too many inducements to Emigrants — that if the sums expended in paying Emigrant Agents and affording relief to Emigrants, had been laid out on public improvements thereby affording sufficient employment — it would have proved more beneficial to all parties.<sup>35</sup>

Dr. Dunlop thought that we could not have too many — that the epithet of pauper should not be applied to emigrants even of the poorest class — for there was no reason to doubt that the rich man's object in emigrating was to better his condition as well as the poor man. The Dr. further remarked that when the Lower Canada Legislature imposed a tax of 5s. a head upon the poor emigrant, they should have made it £10 on the rich one, in order to be consistent.<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Viger. — It was not just that the money should be refunded, and he would oppose the motion.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Johnston was opposed to any relief being afforded to Emigrants in the way of transportation. He was opposed to the Emigration system altogether — that if Emigrant Agents continued to aid and forward Emigrants from place to place, they "would make Cook's own voyages round the world in pursuit of the cow with the long horns."<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Price, and Mr. Small, made several inquiries about the mission of Dr. Rolph, and threw out some indirect insinuations respecting that gentleman.<sup>39</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab rose to repudiate such insinuations. He (Sir Allan) knew Dr. Rolph well, and was convinced that no man could be found who would be more zealous in the cause of Emigration.<sup>40</sup> That entitled him to the thanks of the country at large. — "He (Sir Allan) thought we could not have too many emigrants who were of sound constitution, and industriously inclined — they would be all required on the Public Works."<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Hincks was of opinion, that an explanation ought to be given to the house, why a sum of money was now to be voted for emigration. Was it to make up deficiencies occasioned by Dr. Rolph's expending those funds which ought to have been devoted to this purpose in the province? <sup>43</sup>

Mr. Harrison answered that it was unnecessary for him to enter into a detail of Dr. Rolph's movements, that gentleman precluding such a necessity by the mode which he adopted, of publishing them to all the world.<sup>41</sup> ((He)) said that if Dr. Rolph had been deputed by Government (which he denied) to act as Emigrant Agent for this Province, in England, it would have certainly been in strict compliance with the doctrine of Responsible Government; as public meetings had been held from one end of the Province to the other, and large subscriptions raised for the purpose of sending Dr. H. home. So that his mission was undertaken in accordance with the "well-understood wishes of the people."<sup>45</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said that if we wished to aid the exertions of Dr. Rolph, it was not the way to do so by reflecting upon him here.<sup>46</sup>

Mr. Small expressed himself decidedly opposed to emigration under its present form, being of opinion, that if it was left to the emigrants themselves to provide means instead of saddling this country with the burthen of it, we should have a much better class of settlers than we had now.<sup>47</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said, that no member for Upper Canada would have dared to utter such sentiments on the hustings.<sup>48</sup>

Mr. Viger asked, whether it was consistent that England, with all her riches, should call upon us in our comparative poverty, to tax our limited resources for the purpose of disburthening her territory of a host of paupers, who after enduring many hardships in their passage were exposed to want and wretchedness in this country? In his opinion, if the government here represented the matter in its proper light to the Home authorities we should be relieved from the claim that was now made upon us.<sup>49</sup>

Mr. Harrison agreed with the hon. member that Great Britain ought to bear the expenses of Emigration, which she could well afford. However, as on account of £8,000 per annum having been voted by the Imperial Parliament for this purpose for the future, the estimate now submitted would not again be called for, he trusted the house would not refuse it. — <sup>50</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said that Dr. Rolph had given the country to understand, that the Duke of Argyle and The McLeod had offered to place at his disposal £10,000 to aid in defraying the expenses of emigrants; he was desirous to know, therefore, whether he had received that sum, or whether there was any despatch relative to it.<sup>51</sup>

Mr. Harrison said that Mr. Baldwin having belonged to the administration during the period of Dr. Rolph's mission, he ought himself to be acquainted with all particulars relative to it. He had no doubt, however, that in due time satisfactory information would be obtained from that gentleman as to his success, and the assistance obtained by him from the noblemen and gentlemen who had promised him their support.<sup>52</sup>

Mr. Aylwin said that in whatever degree Upper Canada or the United States might have been benefitted, by the expenses which we incurred for emigration, Lower Canada had received no advantage from it; the halt and the blind alone remaining in that section of the province, a mere incubus on its energies.<sup>53</sup>

Mr. Black, in answer to the member for Huron with respect to his reflections upon the institution at Grosse Isle, said that they were both unjust and unmerited, and that it would become the hon. gentleman much better to make inquiries previous to hazarding assertions that would not be substantiated.<sup>54</sup>

After two or three speeches from Mr. Aylwin, of about half an hour each, the motion was put and carried by a large majority.<sup>55</sup>

Mr. Harrison then moved for an appropriation of £35,000 for a like object in 1841 — which was also carried almost unanimously.<sup>56</sup>

Mr. Aylwin ... ((made)) another speech or two.<sup>57</sup>

The estimate (£1,500) for the geological survey was submitted to the house.<sup>58</sup>

Mr. Aylwin began by saying, he would never vote for the Geological Survey, unless Ministers would name the person who was to make the survey. He believed it was a mere job, — and for aught he knew, got up for the purpose of employing Messrs. Fullam and Coffin, who had been employed as a Commission to investigate the late riots at Toronto.<sup>59</sup>

Mr. Attorney General Ogden replied, with great indignation, to the demand, and said he would never consent to state, as the condition of obtaining the Hon. Member's vote, the name of the person who would be employed, even if he knew.<sup>60</sup>

Mr. Aylwin followed in a strain of invective and abuse of the most personal kind, in a speech of above half an hour long — and ((was)) called to order by the Chairman... repeatedly....<sup>61</sup>

He got pretty severely handled by Mr. Daly.<sup>62</sup>

He got pretty severely handled ... as well ... by Mr. Atty. General Ogden.<sup>63</sup>

Mr. Aylwin assured the House that nothing on earth should ever induce him to accept office under such a Government as Lord Sydenham's — or to be associated with men such as those who occupied the Treasury Benches.<sup>64</sup>

Mr. Ogden assured the Hon. gentleman that he believed nothing was further from the intention of the Government, than to put him to the inconvenience of refusing office, either on the Treasury Benches, or even as a Professor to the intended survey for geological investigation.<sup>65</sup>

A loud laugh followed from every man in the House — persons behind the bar, and that space was literally crowded, laughed aloud, so as to call for the interference of the Chairman.<sup>66</sup>

Mr. Holmes presented himself, and said nothing could be more unjust or improper, than the attack of the Hon. and learned gentleman (Mr. Aylwin) upon the members of Government about this survey. The fact was, that he had been requested by several scientific men, to apply to the head of the Government on the subject of a geological survey — and that moreover he had presented petitions to the House to grant the necessary funds — that the Governor General first thought of getting the survey made, under the superintendence of Military Engineers, to save the expense to the Province, when it was considered that, though they might be very good Engineers, they may not be eminent Geologists, and after mature consideration, the present plan was adopted, and communications had been made, and negotiations were now going on, for the appointment of the most eminent men that can be found to engage in it.<sup>67</sup>

Mr. Harrison again moved that the sum of £800 expended by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, in despatching the Writs of Election throughout the country, should be granted.<sup>68</sup>

A desultory conversation arose, Messrs. Viger, Aylwin and Co. taking a most active part....<sup>69</sup>

((There was)) a long speech from Mr. Durand....<sup>70</sup>

Hon. members ... ((made)) noises to drown his voice....<sup>71</sup>

Mr. Aylwin became at length ... ((too)) disorderly....<sup>72</sup>

The Chairman ((Mr. Roblin)), unable to keep order, left the Chair....<sup>73</sup>

The excitement which prevailed did not readily subside. The Speaker ((Mr. Cuvillier)) came in for his share of attack, on the ground that he had no right to take the Chair....<sup>74</sup>

The Chairman of the Committee ((Mr. Roblin)) was voted out of it ((the Chair)) by the House, and the Speaker ((Mr. Cuvillier)) requested to take it.<sup>75</sup>

((The doors)) were again opened, and the motion was carried by a large majority.<sup>76</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Resolutions reported. Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,
And Mr. Roblin reported, that the Committee had come to several Resolutions, which he was directed to submit to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Remaining Orders postponed. On motion of Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Price,
Ordered — That the Orders of the day, that have not been disposed of, be postponed until to-morrow, and that they be then the first Orders of the day.

Then, on motion of Mr. Price, seconded by Mr. Morris,
The House adjourned.

((Motion Re: Bill for Justice to Lower Canadian Members.))

Sir Allan MacNab moved that the Report of the Committee for enquiring into the question of privilege, respecting the Bill rejected by the Legislative Council for the prevention of injustice to the Lower Canadian Members — be now read — he said his object was to place that Report upon the Journals.<sup>77</sup>

The Hon. Mr. Draper hoped Sir Allan would consent to delay it for a day as he had no opportunity of examining it.<sup>78</sup>

Sir Allan ((MacNab)) consented on the condition that it should be brought up to-morrow.<sup>79</sup>

Report.

Your Committee, in compliance with the instructions of Your Honourable House, have carefully examined the Statute Books of each of the late Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and find that the following Laws are about to expire :

An Ordinance of the Special Council for the late Province of Lower Canada, passed at the last Session thereof, and intituled "An Ordinance to facilitate the despatch of the business now before the Court of King's Bench for the District of Montreal" will expire on the 31st day of December next.

An Act of the Parliament of the late Province of Upper Canada, passed in the first Session of the thirteenth Parliament, and intituled "An Act to repeal and amend certain Acts of this Province in relation to the Gold and Silver Coin made current by Law, and to make further provision respecting the rates at which Gold and Silver Coins shall pass current in this Province," will expire at the end of the present Session of Parliament.

An Act passed in the second Session of the twelfth Parliament of the same Province, and intituled "An Act to repeal an Act passed in the forty ninth year of the Reign of His late Majesty King GEORGE the third intituled 'An Act to encourage the destroying of Wolves in this Province and to make further provision for exterminating those destructive animals,'" will expire at the end of the present Session of Parliament.

And Mr. Parke reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth :

Resolution.

Resolved — That it is expedient to continue an Act passed in the Twelfth Parliament of the late Province of Upper Canada, intituled "An Act to repeal an Act passed in the forty ninth year of the Reign of His late Majesty King GEORGE the third, intituled 'An Act to encourage the destroying of Wolves in this Province' — and to make further provision for the exterminating those destructive animals."

Com. on Petition of S. Lelièvre, report.

Mr. Black, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of Simeon Lelièvre, of the City of Quebec, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth :

Report.

"The Petitioner is the Interpreter to the Court of Criminal Jurisdiction for the District of Quebec, an Office which he has held since the 3rd July 1835.

The use of the two languages French and English, in the District of Quebec, renders it necessary that the Courts should be provided with a Translator, and the importance of the Office can only be appreciated by those who have attended these Courts.

Your Committee are convinced that the Petitioner is a deserving Officer, and that he possesses all the qualifications for the correct discharge of a duty, which requires a thorough knowledge of the two languages, and readiness and quickness in expressing, in the one, what has been spoken in the other.

Your Committee have ascertained that the Petitioner is bound to attend at two terms of the Court of King's Bench, and four terms of the Quarter Sessions, in every year, and that the labour of this attendance is severe.

The Salary allotted to the Office held by the Petitioner is Forty Pounds sterling, and has been so since the creation of the Office : and your Committee has felt surprise that notwithstanding the increase in the salaries of almost all the Public Servants in the late Province of Lower Canada, since the conquest, and the difficult and laborious nature of the duty of the Translator, that Officer has received a salary so inadequate, and so disproportionate to the emoluments of all the other Officers of the Courts, as well as of the Officers of the Government generally.

Your Committee have to express their regret, that notwithstanding the justice of the Petitioner's claim, it is out of their power to do more than to acknowledge it, it being necessary that the Petitioner should procure the recommendation and sanction of the Executive Government, before your Honorable House can extend to him any relief, and your Committee cannot do more, at this time, than to record their opinion that the salary of the Petitioner should be increased to £120 sterling.

Message from Legislative Council.

A Message from the Legislative Council, by John Godfrey Spragge, Esquire, Master in Chancery.

MR. SPEAKER,

Bill to repeal Ordinance requiring a pass, passed L. Coun.

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill intituled "An Act to repeal an Ordinance passed by the Governor and Council of Quebec in the seventeenth year of the Reign of His Majesty King GEORGE the Third, for preventing persons leaving the Province without a pass," without any amendment.

And, also,

The Legislative Council have agreed to the amendments sent up by the Assembly, to the amendments made by the Legislative Council to the Bill intituled "An Act to provide temporarily for the administration of Justice in the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of Saint Lawrence."

And, also,

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill intituled "An Act for consolidating and amending the Statutes in this Province relative to offences against the person," with several amendments, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly.

And then he withdrew.

Mr. Thorburn, from the Special Committee on the contingent accounts, and other expenses of the present Session, with power to report from time to time, presented to the House the third Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Your Committee have considered the Resolution referred to them by Your Honourable House, respecting the remuneration of the Speaker of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, and find that he received no pay beyond the 30th June, 1840, in consequence, Your Committee suppose, of the expiration of the term of the Parliament — though he still continued to perform the duties imposed upon him by the 16th standing order of that House ; therefore, as the salaries of the other officers of the Legislature of Upper Canada have been allowed up to the commencement of the present Session, Your Committee have prepared a blank Resolution, for the consideration of your Honourable House, for such remuneration to the late Speaker, as may be deemed fit and proper.

With reference to the Petition of Alfred Todd and Thaddeus Patrick, your Committee find that they were employed as Clerks in the office of the late Clerk of Assembly of Upper Canada, being paid at a rate which has produced to them, for several years past, an annual salary averaging £200 ; but that last year, in consequence of their being no Session of the Legislature, their receipts fell far short of that amount ; your Committee therefore beg to recommend, that as the Union of the Provinces has been the means, unavoidably, of depriving these individuals of their permanent standing in the office, and a similar allowance having been already made by your Honourable House to another of the Clerks under the same circumstances, the amount of the above deficiency for the last year may be made good to them — and submit, herewith, a blank Resolution for that purpose.

The Petition of P. A. Weibrenner, claiming the sum of £27 9s., as remuneration for acting as Clerk in taking evidence relative to the election of Oliver Berthelet, Esquire, as a member of the Assembly of Lower Canada, for the East Ward of the City of Montreal in 1833 and 1834, and making copies of the same, has been also considered ; the claim has already been recognized by the Assembly of that Province, and your Committee consider that he is justly entitled to the amount, and have therefore prepared a Resolution in his favour.

Your Committee have considered the Petition of André Jobin, and ascertain that an account is due him of £32 5s. for his services as a Commissioner for taking evidence in the same case ; the said sum was awarded to him by a Resolution of the House of Assembly of Lower Canada, on the 26th February, 1836, but was never paid, on account of the general supply Bill, in which it was included, not having passed into a Law — your Committee therefore report a Resolution in his favour.

Amendments of Assembly to amendments of L. Coun. to Magdalen Islands Justice Bill agreed to.

Bill respecting offences against the person sent down amended.

Com. on Contingencies present 3rd report, on remuneration of late Speaker of Upper Canada Assembly, on Petition of A. Todd & T. Patrick, P. A. Weibrenner, A. Jobin, Alpheus Todd, R. Defries and others, and M. McCarty, and on Report on Petition of E. Parent.

Report.

Report.

With reference to the Petition of Alpheus Todd, praying remuneration for a work compiled by him, intitled "The Practice and Privileges of the two Houses of Parliament;" your Committee have ascertained that the said work was printed in order of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, for the use of the Legislature, with an understanding that the Petitioner should be allowed such sum therefor, at the next Session, as, upon a due examination of the work, might be considered sufficient to remunerate him for his labour and research. The amount claimed by the Petitioner is £200, the work having occupied him, with very close application, for upwards of a twelvemonth. Your Committee, conceiving that your Honourable House are sufficiently acquainted with the work to be able to decide on its merits, have prepared a blank Resolution, to be filled in with such sum as may be deemed adequate to the importance of the work.

The Report of the Select Committee on the Petition of E. Parent, Esquire, has been carefully considered by your Committee; they find the facts of the case to be as follows: Mr. Parent was appointed by the House of Assembly of the late Province of Lower Canada, as Law Clerk to that body, on the 13th November, 1835, at a salary of £200 per annum; but, owing to some misunderstanding on the part of the Executive Government, he has never received any portion of his salary, though he has performed the duties of his office. Your Committee therefore recommend that a Resolution do pass, granting him his full salary, at the rate of £200 per annum, till the suspension of the constitution of Lower Canada, on 30th March, 1838; and one moiety of his salary (the proportion allowed during that time to the other officers of the Legislature) being at the rate of £100 per annum, from that period to the day of his election as a member of your Honourable House, with such further remuneration on account of his salary having been so long withheld from him, as to your Honourable House may seem meet.

With regard to the Petitions of Robert Defries, and others, and Michael McCarthy, Messengers to the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, praying to be allowed the sum of £20 each on account of their having been no Session of Parliament last year, your Committee cannot consider them as entitled to that amount, but in consideration of the circumstances of the case, recommend that they be allowed the sum of £10 each to satisfy all demands, of every description, up to the commencement of the present Session.

3rd Report of Contingent Committee.

Your Committee have also examined the following accounts, owing by the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, and finding them to be correct and just, therefore recommend them for immediate payment, and have prepared a Resolution to include them, viz:—

R. Brewer , his account for extra binding 5th Session, 13th Parliament .....	£28	6	8
Librarian to the Assembly of Upper Canada , his Salary from 7th November, 1840, to 14th June, 1841, ditto, £75 per annum .....	45	0	0
Deputy Librarian, do. his Salary from do. to do. £25 .....	15	0	0
King Barton , his Salary as Chamber Messenger, from do. to do. at £30 .....	18	0	0
Hugh Scobie , advertising missing Books from the Library .....		12	6
Henry Hamilton , 12 Cords of Wood .....	7	10	0
Simon Wiggins .....	5	14	0
	£120	3	8

Your Committee believe that these accounts are all that now remain due, on account of the Houses of Assembly of either of the late Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada.

Report referred to
Com. of whole
to-morrow.

Ordered — That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

Amendments of Leg.
Council to Larceny
Bill considered.

On motion of Mr. Black, seconded by Mr. Cartwright, Ordered — That the amendments made by the Legislative Council to the Bill intituled "An Act for consolidating and amending the Laws in this Province relative to Larceny, and other offences connected therewith," be now taken into consideration.

The House proceeded accordingly to take the said amendments into consideration.

His Excellency.

ding payment of Assembly.

In reply to their Address of the 26th July, the Governor General acquaints the House of Assembly, that he will have much pleasure in affording the recommendation of the Crown for a provision to be made by Law for the Sessional payment of members, and for their travelling expenses; and His Excellency has directed a measure to be prepared for that purpose, and submitted to the consideration of the House.

Government House, 10th September, 1841.

Hear, hear, hear !<sup>4</sup>

It was proposed to go, immediately, into a Committee of the whole, to settle the details....<sup>5</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought it would have a better appearance to delay, at least, a day before they did so....<sup>6</sup>

On Motion of the Honourable Mr. Harrison, seconded by Mr. Solicitor General Day, House to go into Committee to-morrow, on above Message.

Bank note duty Bill.

Resolved — That this House will, on to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, on the message of His Excellency, the Governor General, recommending provision to be made for the payment of remuneration to Members of the Legislative Assembly.

Ordered — That 150 copies of the Report of the Honourable the Vice Chancellor, one of the Commissioners appointed for the Temporary Asylum of Lunatics at Toronto; and of the Report of William Chisholm, Esquire, and Mr. McDonald, Surveyor, upon Owen's Sound settlement, with the observations of the Honourable R. B. Sullivan, upon the said Report, be printed for the use of the Members of this House.

A Bill for the imposing duties on Agricultural and other produce, and stock, imported into this Country from the United States of America, was, according to order, read a second time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

A Bill to explain and amend an Act of the Legislature of Upper Canada, relative to District Turnpike Trusts, was, according to order, read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Price, seconded by Mr. Baldwin.

Ordered — That the second clause of the said Bill be struck out.

Ordered — That the said Bill, as amended, be engrossed.

A Bill to authorise a certain change in the place of a Turnpike Road, in the Township of West Gwillimbury, was, according to order, read a second time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill for levying a certain rate or duty on Bank notes, issued and in circulation in this Province, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn, took the chair of the Committee,

Mr. Merritt submitted an amendment to one of the clauses, to the effect, that when the tolls or duties to be raised by the public works which the house had sanctioned, realized a sufficient sum to pay off the debt, contracted the present session, such tools or duties should cease. — <sup>7</sup>

Mr. Parke ((observed))... that if we meant to borrow on our consolidated revenue, it was absolutely necessary that it should be clear and unencumbered, otherwise all attempts to succeed in contracting the proposed loan in the money market would be futile, British capitalists having too much discrimination not to distinguish between a revenue that was secured, and one that was based on speculation. In his opinion, if the bill was embarrassed by clauses or amendments of this nature, it would be useless to pass it, for there would be little probability by this means, of obtaining the loan that was anticipated.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said the amendment involved two principles equally fatal, one of not paying the existing debt, another of defeating the plan in toto.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Harrison remarked, that the whole of our surplus revenue 40,000 being appropriated to common schools, and our only reliance now being upon the ways and means we could devise, such an amendment, if it prevailed, would defeat the object upon which so much time had been spent hitherto, apparently with every hope of success. Why such a course was now to be adopted creating a distinction in the public securities, he was totally at a loss to discover.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Neilson supported the amendment, which he said intended only to provide, that when the debt, which we were about to incur, was liquidated, the tolls were to be abolished. His desire was that taxes of this kind should be limited, not perpetual. With respect to British capitalists being deterred from entering into contract with us, on this account, he thought they had gained too much experience from their dealings with our neighbours, the Yankees, not to be able to distinguish between that which held out a security to them for money loaned, and that which was founded merely upon probability.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Merritt contended that his amendment would have quite a contrary effect, to that which had been imputed to it, by those who were of Mr. Harrison's opinion. The Erie Canal, he said, had paid off the principal in ten years, and our debentures would be at a premium, if a judicious system was adopted.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Dunn expressed his dissent from the hon. member for North Lincoln, affirming that such would be the embarrassment occasioned, if he succeeded in his views — that all the time and trouble that had been expended in maturing the present scheme would be completely thrown away.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Hincks said that the member for North Lincoln might find a precedent for his arguments in America, but none of a similar nature in Great Britain.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Cartwright was of opinion that it was not advisable to reduce our credit lower than it was, advices specifying, that our debentures in August were at 20 per cent discount.<sup>15</sup>

Upon a division the amendment was negated.<sup>16</sup>

The clauses were then severally disposed of....<sup>17</sup>

(563)

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended.

And Mr. Thorburn, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

House in Com. on Distilleries duty Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to impose a duty upon Distilleries in that part of the Province heretofore Lower Canada, being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. De Salaberry, took the chair of the Committee,<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb, whose observations appeared to have relation to foreign spirits, was desirous of having the duty fixed at 2s. 6d. per gallon.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Harrison replied, that as the object was to raise revenue, of course if the article would admit of it, he could have no objection to fixing the sum at 2s. 6d., but as he was of a different opinion, he thought that 1s. 6d. per gallon would be quite high enough.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Hincks would rather that it should be 1d. or 2d. per gallon upon all manufactured spirits, in preference to 1s. 6d. for the same quantity, in the ratio of what the stills were capable of containing. Notwithstanding the difficulty of getting a correct account, he was of opinion that this would be the better plan.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Johnston affirmed that the proposed rate would not increase the price to the consumer above one farthing per glass, yielding at the same time a valuable addition to the revenue, by means of a tax that was perfectly consistent.<sup>22</sup>

Mr. Holmes was so impressed with the demoralization that ensued from excessive drinking, that if it would admit of it, he would much rather that the duty should be doubled, than that it should be fixed so low as 1s. 6d.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Cameron said, that although all were agreed in the propriety of assimilating the duty in both sections of the province, such was the misery that was visible in the neighbourhood of distilleries, that he would willingly vote that they should be taxed in the highest amount possible.<sup>24</sup>

The bill then passed through committee, the blanks being filled up as follows: the duty 1s. 6d. per gallon, according to the quantity that the respective stills or vessels shall be able to contain. — The act to be in force from the 1st of January next — £10 penalty for obstructing the district inspector in the discharge of his duty — £20 for working a still without a license, and £10 for refusing to give evidence before a justice of the peace for an evasion of the act. The inspector to be remunerated by deducting 5 per cent, out of his receipts on all small sums collected.<sup>25</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Bill reported
amended.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. De Salaberry, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

House in Com. on Loan Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to facilitate the negotiation of a loan in England, and for other purposes therein mentioned, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Gilchrist, took the chair of the Committee.

Mr. Draper, considering that the bill had been already sufficiently discussed, submitted it to the committee on its own merits. It was accordingly disposed of in a short time — the blanks relative to the sum to be raised, being filled up with £1,500,000.<sup>26</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Bill reported
amended.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Gilchrist, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

House in Com. on Auction duty Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to make certain alterations in the Laws relative to duty upon sales of property by Auction, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Watts took the chair of the Committee.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Holmes remarked, that in the city of Montreal, a tax upon auction sales already existed, to the amount of 2 per cent, imposed by the corporation ; which, with the duty now proposed, would have the effect of preventing any sales at all, unless the ordinance was repealed.<sup>28</sup>

In this he ((Mr. Holmes)) was supported by Mr. Dunscomb.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Harrison was of opinion that it was the merchant who had a right to complain, who paid the tax, and not the inhabitants of Montreal ; the amount levied there by this means hitherto, having been expended on local improvements. He considered it only just that as a revenue was now to be derived from this source, that Montreal should equally contribute to it, as well as every other part of the province.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Day said, with respect to the house interfering with the powers now exercised by the corporation, he was not exactly prepared to give an answer, — works of a public nature having been undertaken on the faith of the existence and continuance of such authority ; he thought, however, that under the provisions of this act, it could only be considered as an application of funds for local purposes that ought to be thrown into the general revenue.<sup>31</sup>

Mr. Quesnel observed, that up to this period there had been no proper method of enforcing the duty, otherwise than having a bailiff to follow the purchaser, and in this uncertain way obtain a something in the way of a tax.<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Harrison was of opinion, that taking all circum(s)tances into consideration, the only course for the house to adopt was, to carry this bill into effect; and then sufficient cause would exist, to repeal the ordinance next session, it being left to the corporation to find out some other means of supplying the place of this duty.<sup>23</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended.

And Mr. Watts, reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

(564)

House in Com. on Bill to regulate Customs Duties.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to repeal certain Acts therein mentioned, and to consolidate the Laws relating to the Provincial duties to be levied on Goods, Wares, and Merchandize, imported into this Province, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Quesnel, took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Progress reported.

And Mr. Quesnel, reported that the Committee had made some progress, and had directed him to move for leave to sit again.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again to-morrow.

Date of the Resignation of Office of the said late Collector at Coteau du Lac : — "4th March, 1841."

At 5 o'clock, Mr. Speaker declared the House adjourned until 7 o'clock, P. M.

Supply Bill read
2nd time.

A Bill to grant certain sums, therein mentioned, to Her Majesty, towards defraying the expenditure of the Civil Government, for the year ending on the 31st day of December, 1841, was, according to order, read a second time.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

House in Com. on Commercial Bank
stock increase Bill, & final report on Currency and Banking.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to increase the Capital Stock of the Commercial Bank of the Midland District, and on the final report of the Select Committee on Currency and Banking, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Burnet took the chair of the Committee.<sup>34</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab strongly opposed it.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Thorburn said it would never do — and several other Members also condemned it....<sup>36</sup>

Mr. Hincks became its champion — it was a plan adopted invariably in the Old Country — and it was in vain to expect that a respectable individual would be found to give up all his other avocations, and disengage himself from business — which he most certainly ought to do, even to become a President of a Bank for one year.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Merritt considered the proposition an innovation.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Williams thought it would amount to the prevention of the Stockholders having a voice in the election of their President.<sup>39</sup>

Mr. Dunscomb strongly and ably advocated the measure, and insisted on it, that it was not an innovation, but that, on the contrary, it would be a very great improvement.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Cartwright moved for the re-consideration of the suspension clause.<sup>41</sup>

After some discussion it was admitted with a limitation, and in a modified sense.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Holmes condemned the interference of the Home Government with the local affairs of the Colony, and said they knew nothing of the wants and wishes of the people in regard to Banks, and were incapable of judging correctly — there was no analogy between England and Canada — what was good there was pernicious here.<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Merritt was also averse to such restrictions and interference. He pronounced them as disgraceful, uncalled for, and calculated to do great injury, but he supposed we must submit.<sup>44</sup>

Mr. Johnston introduced as an amendment to the Bank Act, that no protests should be made by a notary, and that the Banks should not be allowed to make any charges for protesting of bills, but collect their debts like other people.<sup>45</sup>

The learned Attorney General west (Mr. Draper) entered into a long argument on the law...<sup>46</sup>

Finally Mr. Johnston's amendment was withdrawn.<sup>47</sup>

Mr. Hincks then moved that a clause should be introduced, providing for further limitation with right of issuing bank notes, and referred to the several original charters granted to the Banks in Lower Canada, in all of which it was provided that in the event of a Provincial Bank being established, the several corporations should cease to issue Bank Notes.<sup>48</sup>

"And be it &c, That each and every office of Discount and Deposit established, or hereafter to be established by the said corporation and under the management or direction of a local Board of Directors, should be considered and held to be a branch Bank and subject to the instructions as to the issuing and redemption of notes provided in this Act."

"And be it &c, That nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed to prevent the Legislature of this Province at any time hereafter from making such provisions as to the issuing of notes or the amount or description of notes which may be issued, or as to any other provisions or restrictions respecting the transactions of business by the said Bank, as may from time to time be deemed necessary or proper to be applied generally to other Banks in this Province."<sup>49</sup>

A warm discussion took place on this amendment, which was carried, its insertion will consequently be made in all the Bank charters.<sup>50</sup>

Mr. Thompson recommended that no Bank should be allowed more than £500,000 capital.<sup>51</sup>

Mr. Simpson deprecated any such limitation.<sup>52</sup>

Mr. Hincks said the Royal Charter of the Bank of British North America gave that institution a million, and the right to increase it, with unlimited power of issuing notes, and was it not ridiculous in members to get up and propose limitations in this House to well conducted local institutions — he was astonished.<sup>53</sup>

Mr. Black, Mr. Dunscomb, and Mr. Cameron took part in the discussion.<sup>54</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Bill reported
amended.

And Mr. Burnet reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the report be received to-morrow.

House to have an evening sitting to-morrow.

On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Buchanan,

Ordered — That when this House doth adjourn to-morrow, at 5 o'clock, it will adjourn until 7 o'clock, P. M.

Remaining orders
postponed.

On motion of Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. Cartwright.

Ordered — That the Orders of the day that have not been disposed of, be postponed until to-morrow; and that the Committees of the whole House on Banks be the first Orders of the day in the evening sitting.

Then, on motion of Mr. Small, seconded by Mr. Holmes,
The House adjourned.

Appendix, 10 September 1841.

((Comments Upon Judicature Bill.))

Mr. Attorney General Ogden brought up his Court of Judicature Bill.<sup>55</sup>

Mr. Black thought that it was now too late in the Session, to give the Bill the necessary consideration which so important a subject demanded.<sup>56</sup>

Mr. Ogden admitted it was late — and that the provisions in the Bill were most important, but said that the measure which had been introduced to the Legislature had been so new and producing such changes in our institutions, that till these were determined on, it was impossible to have brought up the present Bill.<sup>57</sup>

Mr. Black was exceedingly sorry, at any time, to differ from his learned friend — a circumstance which, indeed, seldom occurred — and he would, on this occasion, yield to his superior judgment.<sup>58</sup>

2. The MONTREAL GAZETTE, 13 September 1841, and the KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 11 September 1841, contain this comment on the 59th Resolution: "Several items were objected to by Messrs. Baldwin, Price & Co., who, in all cases, except one, voted with the French party.... Mr. Aylwin and Mr. Neilson insisted on a division of the House, with the yeas and nays — when there were 36 for the payment, and 2 against it — the two being Messrs. Aylwin and Neilson." The BRITISH COLONIST, 15 September 1841, referred to all opposition to the Resolutions as "trifling".

3. The MONTREAL GAZETTE, 13 September 1841, and the KINGSTON CHRONICLE, 11 September 1841, contains this comment on a vote on one of the Resolutions: "On one vote which was given by Mr. Baldwin ((he)) said he wished to be understood, that he voted as he had done, not because he disapproved of the item, but to shew his want of confidence in the Ministry — for which Mr. Harrison bowed, with an accompanying laugh."

"And be it enacted, that if in any case where lands shall, before the passing of the Act first above cited, have been taken by the Commissioners or Trustees of any road placed by the said Act under the control of the Commissioners of the District Turnpike Trust, for the purpose of such road, or any other damage shall have been done to any person by such Commissioner or Trustees, in carrying into effect the powers in them vested by Law ; and no compensation shall, before the passing of this Act, have been paid or tendered to the party whose land was so taken, or who sustained such damage as aforesaid — it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the District Turnpike Trust, to assess and tender such compensation ; and if such compensation shall not be so assessed and tendered within six months after the passing of this Act, or if the party to whom it shall be tendered be not satisfied therewith, the amount of such compensation shall be decided by a Jury of the District at the Court of Quarter Sessions, to be empanelled and sworn for that purpose, at the request of the party entitled to compensation; and if no compensation shall have been offered, and a verdict for compensation shall be given, or if the verdict shall be for a greater sum than that tendered as aforesaid, the Commissioners shall pay the costs of the proceeding, otherwise they shall be paid by the party claiming compensation; and the amount of the compensation assessed, tendered, or awarded, by verdict, under the provisions of this Section, shall and may be paid by the Commissioners of the District Turnpike Trust, out of any monies in their hands, applicable to the purposes of the Act first above cited."

The said Clause being thrice read, and the question being put thereon, it was agreed to by the House.

Bill passed.

Resolved — That the Bill do pass.

Ordered — That Mr. Small do carry the said Bill to the Legislative Council, and desire their concurrence.

Petition of Masters of British Ships, and Pilots on St. Lawrence, referred to Com. of whole on Trinity House Bill.

Ordered — That the Petition of the Masters and Owners of British Ships trading to the Port of Quebec, and of the Pilots of the River St. Lawrence, presented to the House on the 25th of June last, be referred to the Committee of the whole House, on the Bill to repeal and amend, in part, certain Acts, and a certain Ordinance therein mentioned, and to extend the powers, and increase the funds of the Corporation of the Trinity House of Quebec.

Com. on Petition of P. E. Taschereau and others, report.

Mr. Taschereau, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of P. E. Taschereau, and others, inhabitants of the District of Chaudière, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

For the said Report, see Appendix (S.S.)

Rep. referred to Com. of whole, Tuesday.

Ordered — That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Tuesday next.

Com. on Petition of R. F. Gourlay, report.

Mr. Dunlop, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of R. F. Gourlay, Esquire, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

For the said Report, see Appendix (T.T.)<sup>1</sup>

Dr. Dunlop brought up the Report of the Committee appointed to examine the Petition of Robert Gourly (sic), Esq. The Report confirmed the prayer of the Petition, and spoke of the persecutions that the Petitioner had endured, in strong language.<sup>2</sup>

Several members of the House gave testimony in favor of Mr. Gourlay.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Cartwright thought the Petition and Report out of order, and that they could not be sustained by the House.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Simpson said Mr. Gourlay had been treated and persecuted as an Alien, though every body knew he was a Scotsman — such a thing was unheard of.<sup>5</sup>

Capt. Steele thought the persecution of Mr. Gourlay had been most unjust, and if he had done nothing else to entitle him to the gratitude of this country — his letter in his reply to McKenzie — and his conduct during the Navy Island affair, entitled him to the consideration he laid claim to.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Hincks thought that Her Majesty's Ministers might very well spare a portion of the pension list of £5,000 which had been granted.<sup>7</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought the whole proceeding irregular and unconstitutional; he had heard of the sufferings of Mr. G., which he regretted as much as any man, he thought however, that the Report should be brought up before a Committee of the whole House.<sup>8</sup>

The Report was adopted.<sup>9</sup>

Rep. referred to
Com. of whole,
Monday.

(567)

Ordered — That the said Report be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Small, seconded by Mr. Baldwin.

Address to His Exc'y for Statement (next Sess.) of sums collected for Lunatic Asylum in U. C.

Resolved — That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before the Assembly, at the next Session of the Provincial Parliament, a statement of the amount levied and collected in the late Province of Upper Canada, for the purpose of erecting a Lunatic Asylum, shewing what amount has been collected in each District of the said Province.

Ordered — That the said address be presented to His Excellency by such Members of this House as are of the Honourable the Executive Council of this Province.

Mr. Thorburn, moved, seconded by Mr. Cameron, Motion for Sel. Com. on Brock's monument.

That a Select Committee, composed of Sir Allan MacNab, Mr. Merritt, Mr. Cartwright, Mr. Attorney General Draper, and Mr. Thompson, be appointed to enquire into the state and condition of Brock's Monument, and what amount of moneys, if any, has been contributed by the public for its re-erection; and also whether certain Gold, and Silver Medals, struck for Militia Men, have been distributed, and if so, to whom; to report thereon with all convenient speed, with power to send for persons, papers, and records.<sup>10</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab stated what sums had been subscribed for the former — and as to the medals, as a kind of Gourlay case they were voted as a reward for the Militia Officers — and the Toronto Gentlemen sent for a Blacksmith to deface them and sold them for old gold and silver and gave the proceeds to the Hospital.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Neilson deprecated the wasting the time of the House upon such matters.<sup>12</sup>

House in Com. of Supply on Messages on Hamilton, & P.
Dover Road, and L'Original Road.

Resolved — That this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of supply for Public improvements, to take into consideration the two several Messages of His Excellency, the Governor General, upon the subject of the Port Dover and Hamilton Road, and the Military Road in the Eastern District.

Mr. Harrison ... read a Message from his Excellency recommending the application of a sum of £30,000 for a Plank Road between Hamilton and Port Dover — and a sum of 1,500 for a military Road from Cornwall to the Ottawa.<sup>13</sup> ((He)) said that so much had already been observed connected with these works that it would be only a waste of time to discuss them any more....<sup>14</sup>

(568)

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
Mr. Durand took the chair of the Committee.<sup>15</sup>

Mr. Harrison stated the great importance of both these roads, and said Sir John Colborne had included the latter in a military Report as of great importance, and moved that the sum of £1,500 be appropriated for the latter and £30,000 for the former.<sup>16</sup>

Mr. Merritt called it a bye road, — that other roads of importance which had been begun could not be finished for want of means....<sup>17</sup> ((He)) objected to the attention of the House being called to such subjects. — We were told that such measures were to be left to the District Councils, and are we again to have our attention drawn to this Parish business. It was an act of gross injustice, and brought forward because it was somebody's favorite measure. — It was no military road and would not be used for that purpose. — And as to the other road to Hamilton from Port Dover, it was a much nearer line to Grimsby, which offered one of the best harbors on Lake Ontario. He had been applied to by the inhabitants of that place, and he had told them it was of no use to apply, because it must be the act of the District Council. He deprecated in very strong terms the mode of proceeding in the case of these two roads.<sup>18</sup>

Mr. Cartwright defended the measure, and said any man who would look at the map, would immediately see the expediency and utility of the roads.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Johnston said the whole was a job, a trick, and was most disgraceful — there was no more necessity for the road to the Ottawa, than for a fifth wheel to a wagon.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Thompson said he had every confidence in the Board of Works, and they had recommended these roads.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. J. S. Macdonald ... also bore ample testimony to the value of this road to the Eastern District....<sup>22</sup> ((He)) explained the necessity of the road and the serious inconvenience which had been sustained for the want of it during the Rebellion.<sup>23</sup>

Mr. Cameron disapproved of the measure, and would not vote for it. — When there were 15,000 inhabitants applying for a road in the County of Leeds — and no message had been sent down, and he was told it could not be done.<sup>24</sup>

Mr. Viger strongly objected to these proceedings — they would not be worthy of a seat in that House, if they did not protest against them. — A message had come down to say that the House would be prorogued on Wednesday next, and were now wasting the time about a road, it was monstrous to do so in a house already overwhelmed with business — why was not the Bill brought up 3 months ago. Any man who would thus vote away the money of the country was unworthy of a seat in that House.<sup>25</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab. — The Hon. gentleman who has just taken his snuff says any man who votes for these roads was unworthy of a seat in that House — well sir, then I am unworthy, for I shall vote for them, and so will a large majority vote for them, and therefore they are unworthy. But, said Sir Allan, I am not to be deterred from doing my duty, because of the sentence pronounced by that hon. gentleman. He was perfectly astonished to hear such a sentence passed by a gentleman who has long been in Parliament — “a lawyer” — and he was equally surprized at the member for Lanark opposing an improvement so near his own section of the country. An hon. member (Mr. Merritt,) too ascribes motives to members; if he alludes to any member who has, as he says been making bargains, let him be named, and shewn up; but that hon. gentleman would do well to qualify such assertions, which he cannot and will not attempt to substantiate. The roads are both of great consequence; the hon. member talks of Dunnville — I know where Dunnville is, and I know that a large property belonging to that gentleman is to be found there; (a laugh!!) and then he quotes Lord Durham's Report, I do believe, (said the gallant Knight) that that gentleman carries the Report in his pocket, yes, and places it under his pillow. The hon. gentleman did not talk in this way when he wanted to carry his object in the Welland Canal. — Why gentlemen will it be believed that this very route was the line recommended for the Welland Canal, which my hon. friend managed to get where it is instead of it — he should vote for both roads.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Johnston said that all the hon. member said about his wild schemes flew in at one window and out at the other, and notwithstanding the length of time he had been in Parliament, he was no Solomon yet.<sup>27</sup>

Captain Steele remarked that in a military point of view this road was of great importance, as in the event of war, we should be obliged in the absence of it to drag our munitions through swamps and places almost impassable.<sup>28</sup>

Dr. Dunlop. — It had been asserted that the proposed road was only travelled by lawyers going the circuit — he (thank God) was no lawyer, yet he had travelled that road repeatedly, and if being up to his middle in a road could make a private gentleman acquainted with it, he had scraped a most intimate acquaintance with the road from Cornwall to L'Original (sic). The roads in that section of the country were in a very bad state, owing to the uselessness of the Highlanders who resided on the sides of them. The road from Matice's which was cut during the war, was worse now than when it was first cut, and though the nearest by much; to Coteau du Lac, yet it was, when he visited it in 1827 worse than when first opened in 1815. And the only reason that the mail coach did not go by that route was, that travellers could find no accomodation along it. The road in contemplation was one of the first importance to the Province — being a line between the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa. — He hoped the supply would be granted.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Cook objected to the measure, but we could not hear his words.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. McLean said he was quite astonished at so much being said about a small sum of £1,500. Any person who would take the trouble to look at the map must be convinced of its utility.<sup>31</sup> ((He)) drew the attention of the house, to the position of the inhabitants of the Ottawa District and on the banks of the St. Lawrence during the rebellion. Owing to the state of this road he said, they were at a time when they were daily in dread of invasion from the Lower Province, completely isolated from every other part of the country, the militia being without arms or ammunition, or any hope of getting any; at the same time that all retreat was cut off either north or south.<sup>32</sup> People were afraid to go to bed at night, lest their house should be burned before morning. At the time we were invaded in Lower Canada....<sup>33</sup>

Mr. Neilson, we did not invade you at all (a laugh),....<sup>34</sup>

((Mr. McLean)) ... no but we had good reason to fear it.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Viger. — Why does His Excellency not tell us as a reason for these roads being made — we shall have war in three months; and we are here wasting the time of the House, talking about a grant of £1,500, and (taking a pinch of snuff) he would repeat his determination not to vote for these measures in spite of what members say till an absolute necessity can be shown for them, and one of the most pressing nature.<sup>36</sup>

There was some sharp shouting between Sir Allan MacNab and Mr. Baldwin.<sup>37</sup>

Mr. Baldwin said his reason for refusing his assent to the completion of the main road was, that he would not go the length of endorsing the immense debt which the Province was contracting.<sup>38</sup> ((Mr. Baldwin)) in opposing the resolutions put it to the members how they could with any face after rejecting the grant for the Home District and other roads, take up the Port Dover road.<sup>39</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab was astonished, perfectly astonished, that the hon. member for Hastings should have hesitated to have thrown in all his "powerful influence" for the benefit of the District with which he was so intimately connected; he, (Sir Allan) was sorry he did not, for it was unquestionably his influence with his friends, which had destroyed and defeated those improvements — he repeated he was sorry for it — and he hoped the hon. member now felt some compunction for what he had done — and with a view to palliate that vote, he would now vote against those improvements also.<sup>40</sup>

Mr. Baldwin would assure the Gallant Knight that he felt no compunction — he would do the same again — his reason was, because he would not go further into debt, he disclaimed having any influence over other members, and that the House knew perfectly well.<sup>41</sup>

Sir Allan ((MacNab)) resumed. — If the hon. gentleman had lost his influence, it was because he had sacrificed the interests of his friends in the Home District, who are deeply impressed with the conduct of the hon. gentleman, and will not easily forget it.<sup>42</sup>

Mr. Neilson said it had been remarked in the House of Commons that it was one of the most difficult things in the world, honorably, fairly and satisfactorily to distribute the public money for local purposes, and the noisy want of decency and decorum which had displayed itself on this subject, — showed the want of proper restraint in that House. His hon friend from Hastings had been accused of acting in contradiction to the views and interests of his constituents: and that he had exercised undue influence, (no, no,) — well if not undue influence, his influence against the public welfare; he had no influence but what he had a right to use, and would use no other. On this occasion, I differ from my friend the member for Hastings, and shall vote for the measures proposed, I do so, because they appear to me to be desirable, and because they have been introduced into the House in a proper manner by the Head of the Government, who are responsible for them. (Hear, hear, from all sides of the House.) My former vote was given against the appropriations because they were not included in the Report; and because I preferred supporting the great public communication to the Sea. He would say as the Parson said when he and his Parishioners were going to the shipwreck "let us start fair."<sup>43</sup>

Mr. Merritt was surprized at the conduct of the member for Quebec (Mr. Neilson,) there was the same obnoxious system in operation; a measure got up, and effected by the influence of individuals, it was a continuance of the same system so condemned by Lord Durham. If the hon. member for Huron had any charges to make against him (Mr. Merritt) let him come out boldly and state them; he felt contempt for such insinuations, they were unfounded and contemptible, let him make his charges, and he was not afraid of the ordeal — he should come out of it as he had always done; and will defy any one to prove a single act of his public life which was chargeable with anything wrong, such conduct was really contemptible. (Hear.) The hon. gentleman spoke with great warmth and animation.<sup>44</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said he had been most scandalously used by the hon. member for Lincoln. Words had been put into his mouth which he had never uttered; therefore, as Canning said of Lord Brougham, the hon. member for Lincoln had "thrown away a great deal of exceedingly good indignation." The accusations against the hon. member (Mr. Merritt) were made by Sir Allan MacNab, but though he (Dr. D.) had not made them, now that he was called upon, he was bound to say that he most cordially concurred in every word that had fallen from the hon. Knight.<sup>45</sup>

Mr. Parke should vote for the improvement of these roads which would open up the country — he cared not where they were made; such roads as these, would, by the tolls pay the interest of the money necessary to construct them, and add to the domestic comfort of the inhabitants, as well as to the value of property.<sup>46</sup>

Some members near the hon. member shewed great impatience and cried question.<sup>47</sup>

Mr. Parke said he hoped hon. gentlemen would, if not for his sake, out of regard to the country and the House, allow him to proceed — he seldom troubled them, and never with long speeches. (Hear.) He hoped a large majority of the House would concur in the motion now before the House.<sup>48</sup>

Mr. Macdonald said the proposed improvement had been promised for many years.<sup>49</sup>

Mr. Johnston asserted that as to its being a military road, no soldier would ever put a foot on it.<sup>50</sup>

Mr. Cook pronounced both the roads now proposed a job.<sup>51</sup>

Mr. Harrison denied that there was anything in the proposition that was not perfectly right and proper, both roads had been omitted in the Report by a mere oversight.<sup>52</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said the hon. member for Dundas (Mr. Cooke) would not like to have said upon the Hustings, what he had said in that House on the subject of the local improvements of the country. He had never heard that hon. gentleman vote for any improvement, except one he believed which was to cost £200 — and that was for the improvement of a Creek called the Petit Nationne (sic), close to that gentleman's own residence; he is an excellent guardian of the public purse, and if on that gentleman's votes the improvement of the country depended we should have but little of it. The roads under consideration would prove to be of more than ten times the value of any road which could be brought before the notice of the House, and would make a large return to the country.<sup>53</sup>

Mr. Merritt again denied that the road from Cornwall to the Ottawa was a public road, and to say so was a gross misrepresentation. He said £12,000 only were required to complete the Grand River navigation, and that sum could not be obtained for so important a work — that had been refused and this recommended.<sup>54</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said the road from Port Dover to Hamilton was as much a public road as the Welland Canal.<sup>55</sup>

Mr. Merritt admitted that he believed the tolls would pay the interest of the money.<sup>56</sup>

Mr. Neilson said he would vote for both roads. Now that we had got Responsible Government and the roads had been brought properly forward by the Government, he should consider them responsible so long as they remained in office (which he hoped would not be very long) — (a laugh, in which all the ministers joined) — seriously, however, he had examined the Map and he could not but believe that a road which joined the two Lakes, and that too independent of the frontier must be desirable; he supposed we must have war one day or another. He wished to ask the hon. member for Kingston, how long a plank road was estimated by the Chairman of the Board of Works to last.<sup>57</sup>

Mr. Harrison said eight years; it was, however contemplated to have either a Plank or Macadamized road as might be most desirable.<sup>58</sup>

The question was put, when only 7 Members voted against it, 38 being in its favor.<sup>59</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

House in Com. on Niagara Dist. Bank
stock increase Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in to Committee on the Bill to incorporate sundry persons under the style and title of the President, Directors, and Company, of the Bank of the Niagara District, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thorburn reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, without making any amendment thereto, and the report was again read at the Clerk's table.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

House in Com. on U. C. Bank stock
increase Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to increase the capital stock of the Bank of Upper Canada, being read.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn took the chair of the Committee.<sup>62</sup>

Mr. Buchanan, in taking up the next Bill in citation (the Upper Canada Bank Bill) said he was not prepared to state that if the Bill passed that the Bank would accept it, its charter had still a long time to run — still he would insist upon having an extension of capital, and had insured £550,000 as the additional sum; in other requests he was willing to introduce all the clauses insisted upon by the House in the Commercial Bank Bill previously passed — and the Bill proceeded.<sup>63</sup>

Objections were raised by several hon. members to an increase beyond £250,000.<sup>64</sup>

Mr. Johnston gave notice that he would insist upon his amendment to compel the Banks to do their own protesting, if protest they would, and without any notarial charges allowed them. He insisted also that the extension of time granted in the charters, 21 years, was unfair — some Banks had 16 years of their charters to run, and they were entitled to 21 years beyond that, whereas some Bank charters were about to expire. What right had they to the same consideration? They had no right, and he was astonished at the hon. member for Montreal, who had stated that he sought no privileges for the Bank of Montreal beyond what was conceded to others, when that gentleman now had got into his bill an increase of capital, making his bank £750,000, while the other bank capitals would amount to only $500,000, (sic) with the increase, and he did not understand such conduct.<sup>65</sup>

Mr. Holmes hereupon rose, and said it was not his intention to occupy the time of the House at that late hour, and at that hurried period of the session, but he would not allow the member for Carleton, or any one else, to impute motives to him which he repelled with indignation. His conduct on the Banking committee, and in that House, he was willing should be judged of by the House, and he felt satisfied, not only that the opinions expressed by the hon. member for Carleton would not be entertained by that House, but that the very reverse would be expressed: — he could only attribute that gentleman's remarks to his ignorance of the question.<sup>66</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thorburn reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, without making any amendment thereto; and the report was again read at the Clerk's table.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

(577)

House in Com. on Gore Bank stock
increase Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to amend the charter, and increase the capital stock of the Gore Bank, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn took the chair of the Committee,<sup>67</sup>

Mr. Thompson brought forward the claims of the Gore Bank, and similar clauses were introduced in that Bank Charter, and an extension allowed of capital amounting to £400,000.<sup>68</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab said he thought Mr. Thompson was wrong, as the Gore Bank would never get the Stock taken up.<sup>69</sup>

Mr. Thompson said he did not know about that, but he was determined to have as much as any one else....<sup>70</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thorburn reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill without making any amendment thereto; and the report was again read at the Clerk's table.

Bill to be engrossed.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

House in Com. on Montreal Bank stock
increase Bill.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to extend the charter of the Bank of Montreal, and to increase its capital stock, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn took the chair of the Committee,<sup>71</sup>

((Mr. Thompson)) objected, ... to the Bank of Montreal getting any additional capital, it was wrong to allow it, it might be injurious to the other Banks.<sup>72</sup>

In this Mr. Morris, of the Commercial Bank coincided....<sup>73</sup>

((So)) did other persons interested in the Banks of the Upper Province.<sup>74</sup>

Mr. Holmes again appealed to the House, and asked, is it just, is it fair, that the several Banks in this section of the Province should be allowed to extend their capitals 125 per cent, in the last instance 100 per cent, and that the Montreal Bank should be refused to extend theirs 50 per cent, and the city of Montreal receive no more consideration, as the commercial emporium of the Canadas, than the village of Hamilton, or the town of Kingston. — He was astonished at the friends of those banks who had preceded him; it had been understood that all the Banks were to increase their capitals, and now he found opposition raised at every step against his; but he feared not that such motions would prevail, (no, no,) — he had too high a sense of the justice of the honorable members, and on that justice he would rest his appeal, bowing to the decision of the House should it decide against him, but he felt satisfied that such would not be the case, because what he asked in this instance and in every other instance since he had the honour of a seat in that House, was right. (Hear, hear.)<sup>75</sup>

Mr. Baldwin could not understand hon. members' opposition to the Bank of Montreal; that institution stood favorably before the public, and the hon. gentleman who conducted its affairs in that House merited the favourable consideration of the House. He had shown himself to be actuated by honorable and honest motives throughout, and he considered it a somewhat strange mode of dispensing equal justice, when hon. members proposed to limit the banking institutions of the city of Montreal to those of the great commercial town of Hamilton (a laugh).<sup>76</sup>

Mr. Johnston again said he should oppose the bill at its third reading, and propose a rider.<sup>77</sup>

Mr. Morris brought forward another amendment — after the question was carried by a majority of 36 to 5 — to the effect that the Bank of Montreal should not be allowed to increase its capital beyond £100,000, which amendment was negatived by the same majority....<sup>78</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thorburn reported that the Committee had gone through the Bill, without making any amendment thereto; and the report was again read at the Clerk's table.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

Mr. Thompson moved that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor General for a detailed statement of the affairs of the Indian Nations, on the Grand River.<sup>82</sup>

Mr. Harrison said the Indian Lands had always been under the especial protection of the Crown and that hitherto no interference had been allowed on the part of the popular branch of the Legislature.<sup>83</sup>

Mr. Dunn said that he had been in the capacity of Trustee, in the habit of receiving all monies due to the Indians, which were regularly and legally accounted for.<sup>84</sup> He considered it quite apropos to remark, that he had never heard of any reason existing that could induce them to make complaints.<sup>85</sup>

Mr. Chesley observed that knowing their disposition he was not in the least surprised, if discontent prevailed amongst them; but he was of opinion that it was without the slightest foundation, they having been uniformly treated with every kindness.<sup>86</sup>

Mr. Parke confirmed Mr. Harrison's view of the case, and thought it highly injudicious to open up the question.<sup>87</sup>

Mr. Neilson said this was a matter of some importance; the Indians were in one view of the case subjects, and in others an independent people. He felt assured that the affairs of the Indians had been better managed — though it might be said under a defective Government — far better than by the Government of the United States; and he (Mr. N.) would be sorry to see the affairs of Aboriginies managed in any other way....<sup>88</sup> Contrasting the treatment they had received with what had been experienced by the Indians in the United States, the hon. member remarked that it reflected the highest credit on the mother country.<sup>89</sup> If they get into the hands of the Colonial Government it would lead to dissatisfaction and difficulty.<sup>90</sup>

Mr. Thompson explained that his only motive for bringing the subject to the notice of the house was, to obtain such statements as he knew would effectually remove any erroneous impressions that had been created amongst them.<sup>91</sup>

Mr. Merritt's object in the motion was not to interfere with the management of the Indian affairs but to obtain information.<sup>92</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought no good would arise out of the enquiry.<sup>93</sup>

Mr. Baldwin. — The Indians were a kind of independent people — though out of the way subjects of the Crown; and he would recommend that the motion should be withdrawn....<sup>94</sup>

At the suggestion of the House... the hon. member ((Mr. Thompson)) withdrew his motion —<sup>95</sup>

((Notice of Address Re: Prorogation.))

M. Johnston a donné avis d'une adresse à Son Excellence le Gouverneur Général demandant que la Chambre soit dissoute au lieu d'être prorogée à la fin de la présente session.<sup>96</sup>

On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Morin.

House in Com. on addressing Her Majesty on admitting Canadian products into Great Britain
free of duty.

Resolved — That this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to consider the draft of an Address to Her Majesty, founded on a Resolution of this House of the 5th of August last, on the subject of the free admission of the products of this Province into the Ports of Great Britain.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Roblin took the chair of the Committee.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Merritt brought up his proposed address to Her Majesty, on the subject of admitting our grain into England, duty free.<sup>2</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab thought an address, so important, should be referred to a Select Committee — he would have preferred that it should contain some expression of the views of the House on the subject, and that some of the many substantial reasons which exist why the prayer of the petition should be granted, should be stated.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Hincks quite agreed with Sir Allan; he thought the petition contained in the address, might have been more forcibly stated — and that it ought to be accompanied with some statistical statement, by which it would be made apparent, that it would not interfere, as was generally believed, to the prejudice of the British agriculturist, and he thought that the prospect of high prices at home rendered this a moment peculiarly auspicious for such a statement.<sup>4</sup>

Mr. Merritt had no objection to a Select Committee; the truth was, that the British Government had been addressed over and over again, and the Journals of the House would shew that it has been so since 1834.<sup>5</sup>

Captain Steele said that, however often it had been repeated, it would do no harm to repeat it again.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Williams thought it was a half measure. The protection which the English farmer had against any injury we could do him, was the cost of transportation — and the only real advantage which could be given to us, was that the duty now paid in England should be paid here.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Durand spoke, but the House was so impatient that he could not be heard.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Neilson would vote for the address at (sic) it stands, the shorter it was the better, and the more likely to be attended to.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Baldwin made an observation, but he could not be heard.<sup>10</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Roblin reported, that the Committee had passed an humble Address to Her Majesty, which Address was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth : —

“TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

We, Your Majesty's dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, in Parliament assembled, humbly beg leave to represent to Your Majesty, that we fully concur in the several Addresses to Your Majesty, by the late House of Assembly of that part of this Province formerly Upper Canada, praying for the admission of the products of Canada into the Ports of Great Britain free from duty, thus placing Your Majesty's Subjects in this Province on equal terms with other portions of Your Majesty's Empire, and establishing a fixed and certain policy, which will promote the mutual prosperity of both this and the Mother Country, and assure our happy connexion for all time to come ; we do therefore most humbly beseech Your Majesty to take again this subject into Your Royal consideration, and recommend to Your Imperial Parliament that this, our humble request, may be complied with.”

Ordered — That the said Address be engrossed.

On motion of Mr. Cartwright, seconded by Mr. Morris,

Ordered — That the engrossed Bill from the Legislative Council, intitled “An Act to regulate the taking of securities in all offices in respect of which security ought to be given, and for avoiding the grant of all such offices, in the event of such security not being given within a limited time after the grant of such office,” be now read a second time.

The said Bill was accordingly read a second time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read for the third time to-morrow.

(582)

An engrossed Bill to amend the Charter and increase the Capital Stock of the Gore Bank, was read for the third time.

Sir Allan MacNab moved, seconded by Mr. Solicitor General Day,

That the following engrossed Clause, marked A, be added to the said Bill, by way of Ryder, and make part thereof : —

(A.)

“And be it enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any stock-holder in the said Bank to transfer any share or shares therein to any person, for the purpose of enabling such person to vote at any election of Directors of the said Bank, or to become a Director thereof, without having bona fide transferred such share or shares to such person to and for his absolute use, and subject to no promise, engagement, or undertaking, on the part of such person or persons, to transfer such share or shares, or to hold the same for the benefit of the transferor, or to pay to him directly or indirectly any part of the dividends, profits or proceeds, of such share or shares, or for any person to accept and vote upon any such unlawful transfer, or to act as if he were qualified to be a Director by any such transfer, under a penalty of one hundred pounds, currency, to be recovered from any party making such unlawful transfer, or from the party accepting the same and voting thereon, either in person or by proxy, or acting as a Director as aforesaid, by Civil Action in any Court of competent jurisdiction, by any Stockholder in the said Bank who shall sue for the same : Provided always, that in any such action, either of the parties to such unlawful transfer (not being the Defendant) shall be a competent witness, and compellable to attend in Address to Her Majesty reported, and agreed to.

Address.

Bill to regulate taking of securities (L. C'l). read 2nd time.

Gore Bank stock increase Bill read 3rd time.

Ryder moved.

Court as such, but shall, if examined as a witness, be thereafter discharged from all liability to any penalty for or by reason of such unlawful transfer, unless a verdict or judgment shall have been previously rendered against him for such penalty : and one moiety of any such penalty shall belong to Her Majesty, for the Public uses of the Province, and the other moiety shall belong to the persons suing for the same."

Carried.

The said Clause being thrice read, and the question of concurrence being put thereon, a division ensued, and it was carried in the affirmative.

Add'l Ryder moved.

Mr. Johnston moved, seconded by Mr. Dunlop,

That the following engrossed clause, marked (B.) be added to the said Bill by way of Ryder, and make part thereof : —

(B.)

"And be it enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to authorize or empower any Bank, Branch Bank, or Agency, to sue for, recover, demand, receive, or take, any sum or sums of money for or on account of any protest from any drawer, acceptor, or indorser, of any inland Bill of exchange, or from any maker or endorser of any promissory note made and payable within this Province."

Lost.

The question being put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and it passed in the Negative.

Bill passed.

Resolved — That the Bill do pass.

Ordered — That Mr. Thompson do carry the said Bill to the Legislative Council, and desire their concurrence.

Further leave to
Com. on Election for 2nd Riding York to adjourn.

On motion of Mr. Roblin, seconded by Mr. Hincks, Ordered — That the Committee appointed to try the merits of the Petitions of divers electors of the 2nd Riding of the County of York, and of Connell James Baldwin, Esquire, complaining of the undue election and return of George Duggan, Esquire, the sitting Member for the said 2nd Riding of the County of York, have leave to adjourn until Saturday, the 18th instant.

Further leave to
Com. on Niagara
Election to adjourn.

On motion of Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Gilchrist, Ordered — That the select Committee appointed to try the merits of the Petition, of Robert Melville and John McBride, electors of the Town of Niagara, complaining of the undue election and return of Edward Clarke Campbell, Esquire, as member to represent the said Town of Niagara, in the present Parliament, have leave to adjourn until Saturday the 18th instant.

Sir Allan MacNab's Bill for the preventing injustice regarding certain Lower Canada Elections, was the next subject. Sir Allan ((MacNab)) brought up the Report upon this subject, which went to convey an expression of the committee of the injustice done to the Members of Lower Canada, who had lost their elections by violence, &c., and pledging the House to take up the subject in the next Session of Parliament, and also reflecting upon the other branch of the Legislature, for having thrown out the Bill.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Harrison said he never opposed enquiry — nor should he ever do so ; he wished for any and every investigation into the circumstances alluded to, either now or at any other time. All he objected to, was the illegality of the attempt to unseat Members who had legally and constitutionally taken their seats. He thought the House would, however, best consult its own dignity by omitting that part of the Report which reflected on the other Branch of the Legislature ; if that was erased, he (Mr. Harrison) would not oppose the adoption of the Report ; if that was allowed to remain, he should feel it to be his duty to oppose it.<sup>12</sup>

Sir Allan ((MacNab)) consented to alter the Report in conformity with Mr. Harrison's suggestions....<sup>13</sup>

Resolution declaring that inquiry shall be made, next session, into the late Elections for Canada East.

On motion of Sir Allan MacNab, seconded by Mr. Buchanan.

Resolved — Nemine Contradicente — That the Special Committee of this House, appointed to search the Journals of the Legislative Council, on the subject of the Bill passed by this House intituled "An Act for preventing any failure of Justice in respect of complaints of undue elections or Returns of Members of the Legislative Assembly of this Province at the last General election," have reported, that the said Bill has been lost in the Legislative Council.

That the petitions referred to in the said Bill contain allegations of the occurrence of outrages of the most aggravated character, and which, if true, are most injurious to the peace of the Country, and in a high degree destructive of the principles of the constitution, and of the freedom of Election, upon which rests the character of this House as being a true Representative of the people.

That this House hold it to be their bounden duty, as the grand Inquest of the Country, and as guardians of the liberties of the people, to institute a public enquiry into the said allegations, in order that, if true, the said occurrences may not in any way take place hereafter, and that remedy be applied in the premises by the authority of this House and of the Legislature.

That this House will proceed to the said enquiry early in the next Session, according to the laws, privileges, and customs, of Parliament.

House in Com.
on the Bill.

So it was carried in the Affirmative.

And the House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee. Mr. Aylwin took the chair of the Committee.<sup>35</sup>

Mr. Harrison brought up the measure of Ways and Means, and proposed making an alteration in the duties on tea and sugar. He had been induced to propose those alterations, in consequence of having found, on reflection, that the votes of the House, the last time this subject was under consideration, would reduce the amount of the revenue so much as to be very inconvenient — and he had, therefore, turned his attention to the consideration of what articles would be best enabled to bear an additional tax with the least inconvenience — and he had proposed adding the half-penny on the pound on raw sugar, for, though it would fall upon the lower classes, yet, on comparing the cost of that article in Britain, compared with the price of labour, it was so much higher, that they still would enjoy a great advantage.<sup>10</sup>

Dr. Dunlop would prefer adding to the duty on silk and sattins (sic).<sup>17</sup>

Mr. Holmes said he was very much averse to throwing any obstacle in the way of the Hon. Secretary's schedule of Ways and Means; but he could not, without doing violence to his own feelings, allow any additional burdens to be imposed upon the poorer classes of society, without raising his voice against it. He admitted the necessity for raising a revenue — indeed he had suggested, as the means of undertaking and completing the improvements in the country, an augmentation of duties; but that augmentation should be imposed, exclusively, on luxuries, not on the necessities of life. We should remember that the poor had few luxuries — the poor were almost (sic) exclusive consumers of raw sugar, therefore, however productive the tax might be, he must resist it. Put the tax on refined sugar — double it — the rich only use that, and the rich could and should be made to pay for their enjoyments. The revenue in contemplation to be raised by this additional half-penny on brown sugar would amount, it was said, to £12,000 or £15,000; a heavy draft on the poorer classes. Why not impose £20,000, if required, upon those who could afford it. Put it in madeira, sherry, and port wines. The rich only need those high priced articles. The thin French, and other low priced wines, are consumed by the poor also — they can afford no higher rates — but the others could : champagne, for instance, why not put 5s. or 10s. duty per dozen on that, and 2s. 6d. on madeira and port. A tax on articles of luxury, of any and every description, he should support, for the purpose of raising the requisite funds to go on with our Public Works ; those works give employment to the poor, but a tax on that class, come from what quarter it would, he must oppose.<sup>15</sup>

Com. on Petition of J. E. Turcotte, Esq. report.

Mr. Morin, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of Joseph Edouard Turcotte, Esquire, Representative of the County of St. Maurice, presented to the House the Report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee, after having taken into consideration the Petition of J. E. Turcotte, Esquire, the Member representing the County of St. Maurice, the evidence given on the contestation of his Election, and all the circumstances under which the contestation was begun, continued, and ended, are unanimously of opinion that the allegations of the Petition are true, and more especially the following : —

That there are manifest contradictions in the evidence given by the Returning Officer, which justified the Petitioner in thinking that this evidence would be utterly rejected, more especially as it had been contradicted by a witness worthy of credit : —

That if the Petitioner brought forward only one witness, he was induced to refrain from bringing others forward solely by the evident and distinctly expressed wishes of the great number of the Members of your Honourable House.

Your Committee have also every reason to believe, that, but for the respect and deference shewn by the Petitioner to the wish expressed as aforesaid by a great number of the Members of your Honourable House, it would have been in his power, not only to contradict by his witnesses (as he had already done by one of them) the evidence of the Returning Officer, but that he could also have established, that far from having sought to withdraw himself from the presence or observance of the Returning Officer, in order to make the declaration of qualification, he requested that Officer to come with him to the Hustings to bear witness to his taking it, and that this Officer, alleging that he did not understand English, directed the Clerk to attend the Petitioner, which he actually did, and that when the declaration was thus made, under the very eyes of the Clerk, who perfectly understood English, the Returning Officer asked him whether every thing had been properly done, to which the Clerk answered, all was correct.

Your Committee are also of opinion that the said Returning Officer has himself proved that he was incapable of discharging the important duties which the law imposed on him during the election in question, and that if, as your Honorable House has decided, the Petition of the electors of the County of St. Maurice, was not frivolous or vexatious, as far as they were concerned, it was certainly so as regarded the Member representing the said County, and your Committee have every reason to believe that the Petition could never have been made if the Returning Officer had been competent to the discharge of his duty.

Your Committee have also to declare, that the Petitioner offered to adduce evidence to prove the truth of the allegations of his Petition, but that your Committee considering, in the first place, that there was no reason for doubting the truth of the said allegations, and then that the expenses to be incurred in bringing witnesses forward, would be as heavy as those already incurred, did not deem it advisable to accept the said offer; your Committee are therefore unanimously of opinion, that your Honourable House will only do an act of justice in granting the prayer of the Petitioner; and considering that your Honourable House has constitutionally the right of paying witnesses summoned to appear at the bar, as well as the costs of summoning them, and that the exercise of this right, supported as it is, by several Precedents, even in cases of contested elections, in the late Province of Lower Canada, would, in the present case, be no more than an act of justice, your Committee have therefore unanimously agreed to the following resolution.

Resolved — That the accounts of the witnesses summoned by this House to appear at the Bar, and who did, in consequence of being so summoned, appear thereat, on the part of J. E. Turcotte, Esquire, on the contestation of his election for the County of St. Maurice, and also the expenses incurred in summoning such witnesses, and on the return to such summons, be taxed by the Clerk of this House, and paid by him out of the monies in his hands for defraying contingencies of this House, as soon as such taxation shall have been approved by the Speaker."

Ordered — That the said report be referred to a Committee of the whole House at the evening sitting of this day.

On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Morris,

Ordered — That the Order of the day for the House in Committee on the report of the Special Committee to which was referred the report of the Commissioners of the Provincial Steam Dredging Machine, and other references, be discharged.<sup>1</sup>

Report referred to
Com. of whole this evening.

Order for House in
Com. on Report on Steam Dredge discharged.

Mr. Thorburn brought up the Report of the celebrated Steam Dredge, that purchased by Mr. Duncombe, requesting payment of a sum of £446, the amount for which the unfortunate Dredge was in debt, after about five years of operation.<sup>2</sup>

Mr. Merritt remarked that the only portion of the latter item which would go into the pocket of the member for South Lincoln, was £25 per annum for the trouble he had taken on account of the dredge.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Williams said he was one of the Committee. The Dredge had cost between £4,000 and £5,000; and it was reported by the Engineer, who was consulted, that it would pay for itself in three or four years —<sup>4</sup> and that it would produce yearly an income of £1200 out of which would go to liquidate the debt incurred by the purchase of, and £500 to the contingent fund.<sup>5</sup> Whereas it had never paid a shilling, and was now £500 in debt, and, he feared, a great deal more; besides that, from the wear and tear, it was reduced in value to almost nothing. He pronounced the whole to have been, like all other public undertakings in the Province, a job, and one of the worst kind.<sup>6</sup> The machine instead of yielding a profit ((had))... been a heavy expense in addition to costing double the sum which it had been estimated at.<sup>7</sup> He did not mean to insinuate that Mr. Thorburn had lent himself to it, or that he was in any way culpable, but he felt it to be his duty to expose to view the transactions connected with the steam dredge, and he was glad that it now became the property of the Board of Works, under whose management, he had no doubt, it would be more useful and profitable.<sup>8</sup>

Mr. Johnston proposed that it should be put up at auction and got rid of.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Thorburn explained — the machine he said notwithstanding the exaggerated statements that had been made, after all only cost £3,400 and had proved of the greatest utility.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Small confirmed the statement of Mr. Williams, objected to some of the items, and said he should feel it to be his duty to vote against their being paid. He said the dredge had been hired by Mr. Brown, to deepen the harbour of Port Hope, a harbour belonging to a private Company — and that it had been allowed to sink — and here was a charge of £39 for raising it. He also alluded to several other charges of a like nature.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Thorburn very indignantly repudiated the charge brought up, said Mr. Brown was a very public spirited man, and an example to some of those who had taken part in the discussion. Mr. Thorburn said the dredge had been submerged by the act of an incendiary. — (A laugh.)<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Neilson said the House was scandalized by such transactions.<sup>13</sup> However creditable the statements might be the country after all would have to pay the expense....<sup>14</sup>

(590)

And Report referred to Com. of supply.

Ordered — That the report of the Special Committee to which was referred the report of the Commissioners of the Provincial Steam Dredging Machine, be referred to the Committee of the whole on supply, and other references.

Chairman of Com. on Niagara Election reports absence of certain Members.

Mr. Williams, chairman of the Committee appointed to try the merits of the Petition of Robert Melville and John McBride, electors of the Town of Niagara, complaining of the undue election and return of Edward Clarke Campbell, Esquire, sitting Member for the said Town of Niagara, reported to the House that the said Committee met this morning at 10 o'clock, A. M. pursuant to adjournment, and were unable to proceed to business in consequence of the absence of Messieurs Hale and Chesley.

Motion for Address to His Excellency to dissolve Parliament.

Mr. Johnston moved, seconded by Mr. Sherwood,

That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to dissolve the present Parliament, instead of proroguing the same, for the purpose of ascertaining the well known wishes of the electors of the Province of Canada, under the new Election Law of the Province.

for the erection of certain Light Houses on the River St. Lawrence, to be repaid out of dues on shipping, to be imposed and collected by the Trinity House of Montreal.

At 5 o'clock, Mr. Speaker declared the House adjourned until 7 o'clock, P.M.

7 o'clock, P. M.

House in Com. on appropriation for Light Houses on
St. Lawrence.

On motion of Mr. Solicitor General Day, seconded by Mr. Parke.

Resolved — That this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to take into consideration the expediency of making provision for advancing the sum of £925 for the erection of certain Light Houses on the River St. Lawrence, to be repaid out of dues on Shipping.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Parent took the chair of the Committee, and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Resolution reported.

And Mr. Parent reported, that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which he was directed to submit to the House whenever it would be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

House in Com. on Message on salaries of the two Speakers.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the subject of the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to the salaries of the Honourable the Speaker of the Legislative Council, and the Honourable the Speaker of this House, and the salaries of the Officers of both Houses, and other references, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Thorburn took the chair of the Committee.<sup>28</sup>

On Mr. Harrison bringing forward the Supply Bill, the first item was the salary of the Speaker of the Legislative Council, which he proposed should be the same as the Speaker of the House of Assembly. He said he had voted for a lower sum than £1000 per annum, but the House had overruled him and he bowed of course to its decision. They having voted £1000 for the Speaker of one House, he did not see how they could with propriety give less to the Speaker of the Upper House ; he therefore moved that the Speaker's salary should be £1000 per annum.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Aylwin spoke for one hour and forty minutes ; he deprecated, in strong language, the idea of any man in the country holding offices which brought him an income of £2250 — (the salary of the Chancellor being £1250 per annum.) He also objected to the duties of the Vice Chancellor and the Speaker being performed by the same person.<sup>30</sup>

Mr. Aylwin was followed by several other Members who took the same view of the question with himself, and many who usually vote with Ministers, also opposed the vote.<sup>31</sup>

((Sir Allan)) MacNab ... indulged in the most violent personal abuse, directed against the "members on the Treasury Benches."<sup>32</sup>

Mr. Christie moved in amendment — “provided the said Speaker hold no other office of emolument under the Crown” — <sup>33</sup>

((This)) was further amended by Mr. Baldwin — “and that the salary of said Speaker shall not exceed £1000.” <sup>34</sup>

This ... was carried — yeas 31, nays 14. — As the yeas and nays were not taken we are unable to give all the names of the majority, but as the House remained divided for some time, we jotted down the minority... Messrs. Cartwright, Cameron, Campbell, Day, Daly, Dunlop, Foster, Harrison, Hincks, Killaly, Parke, Simpson, Steele, and Henry Smith. Amongst those who voted for the amendment were Messrs. Buchanan, Small, Hopkins, Thompson, Cook, Dr. Smith, Roblin, Johnston, Baldwin, MacNab, Merritt, &c. <sup>35</sup>

Messrs. Small, Sir A. MacNab, and others supported the amendment on the grounds of economy. They thought that by giving the Hon. Vice Chancellor his present salary of £1200, and some other person £1000 as Speaker of the Council, would be a greater saving to the country than if the two offices were combined in one person, and he received both salaries!!! <sup>36</sup>

This was the view taken by Mr. Small and some of his Upper Canada friends. <sup>37</sup>

On the other hand, Messrs. Christie, Quesnel and others from Lower Canada, supported the amendment because it would have the effect as they said, of preventing any judicial Officer of the land from filling the Hon. Office of Speaker of the Legislative Council. <sup>38</sup>

Mr. Henry Smith proposed an amendment to the effect that the Speaker of the Legislative Council should receive the sum of £500 in addition to his salary as Vice Chancellor — <sup>39</sup>

This view was supported by Mr. Hincks.... <sup>40</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said he supported the original motion and voted against the amendment, because he thought the sum of £1000 each, should be given to the Offices of Speaker of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly, no matter who filled them; and that with the public or private salaries of the Gentlemen who filled those Offices, that House had nothing to do. <sup>41</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Resolution reported.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

And Mr. Thorburn reported, that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which he was directed to report to the House, whenever it shall be pleased to receive the same; and, also, that he was directed by the Committee to move for leave to sit again.

Com. to sit again to-morrow.

Ordered — That the Report be received to-morrow.

Ordered — That the said Committee have leave to sit again to-morrow.

Remaining orders postponed.

On motion of Mr. Thompson, seconded by Mr. Cameron,

Ordered — That the Orders of the day that have not been disposed of, be postponed until to-morrow, and that they be then the first orders of the day.

Then, on motion of the Honourable Mr. Viger, seconded by Mr. Baldwin,

The House adjourned.

Appendix, 14 September 1841.

((Proposed Government Maps.))

Mr. McLean proposed that maps of the whole Province, showing roads, bridges, canals, &c. should be made, by order of Government. <sup>42</sup>

Mr. Harrison said there was now, he believed, in the room, a new map of the Home District, of a very superior order, by Mr. Rankin, a Deputy Surveyor — who had expressed his intention of making maps of all the Districts, should this map be approved of. <sup>43</sup> Petition of R. McGill and others brought up.

Mr. Campbell brought up the Petition of Robert McGill, and others of the Town of Niagara, in the District of Niagara, which was laid on the table.

Com. on Petition of A. M. Farewell and others present report and Bill.

Mr. Small, from the Special Committee, to which was referred the Petition of A. M. Farewell, Abram Butterfield, and others, of the Townships of Whitby and Darlington, and other references, with power to report by Bill or otherwise, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee have attentively examined the claims of both Petitions, which are for acts of incorporation for constructing Harbors at the mouths of Black's and Annis's Creeks, respectively, as also the report of the Engineer ordered by the Executive Government to survey each site, and are of opinion that it is inexpedient, at present, to incorporate both Companies, from the contiguity of each Harbor, being not much over a quarter of a mile distant from each other. From the report of the Engineer above referred to, it appears to your Committee that it would be most advisable to grant the prayer of the Petition of John B. Warren, and others — they have therefore prepared a Bill to incorporate a Company to construct a Harbor at the mouth of Annis's Creek, which they report herewith."

Sydenham Harbor Bill brought in.

Mr. Small, then presented a Bill to incorporate certain persons, therein named, under the style and title of the Sydenham Harbour Company, which was received, and read for the first time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be read a second time to-morrow.

Com. on Petition of A. McDonell report.

Mr. Simpson, from the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of Allan McDonell, of St. Andrew's, in the Township of Cornwall, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee have considered the said Petition, and recommend a compliance with the prayer thereof, viz : the opening of a road from Coteau du Lac, to the road called Dundas street, leading through the sixth Concession of Lancaster, in the Eastern District, where the River Beaudette crosses the line formerly dividing the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada; but the great accumulation of business before your Honourable House, at this late period of the Session, presents too many obstacles, rendering it impossible to give effect to the measure, by Bill, this Session.

They therefore beg leave to recommend that all action in the matter be suspended, but that a Bill be admitted at the next Session of the Legislature, to carry the object desired into effect."

Com. on Petition of S. McKenzie and others report.

Mr. Durand, from the Special Committee, to which was referred the Petition of Simon McKenzie, Thomas G. Chapman, and others, of the District of Gore, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee have carefully considered the prayer of the said Petitioners, and after an attentive perusal of various Official documents, and from evidence heard before them, find that the case is not yet decided upon by the Executive Government; but from the evidence given by several Members of the Government, your Committee are led to expect that the case will be brought to a speedy issue.

Your Committee under the circumstances, can, at the present, make no further report in the case; but leave the matter in the hands of the Executive, fully trusting that ample justice will be done to the Petitioners, whose case is evidently one of great hardship, and one that requires that no delay may be suffered to take place in bringing it to a speedy conclusion."

House in Committee.

Mr. Thorburn, from the Committee of the whole House to take into consideration the subject of the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to the salaries of the Honourable the Speaker of the Legislative Council, and the Honourable the Speaker of this House, and the salaries of the officers of both Houses, and other references, reported, according to order, the Resolution of the said Committee, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Resolved — That a sum not exceeding one thousand pounds, currency, be granted to Her Majesty, to defray the salary of the Speaker of the Legislative Council, for one year, provided he hold no other place of profit or emolument under the crown ; or if he hold any such office, the salary of which shall be less than one thousand pounds per annum, then, such sum of money as shall, with the salary of such other office, together amount to one thousand pounds.

The Honourable Mr. Harrison moved, seconded by Mr. Parke, That the report be not now concurred in, but that the same be now recommitteed, for the purpose of voting an indemnity to the Speaker of the Legislative Council for the present session.

Mr. Aylwin moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Buchanan,

That all the words after "That" in the said motion be struck out, and the following substituted, — "this House doth concur with the Committee in the said resolution."

The question having been put upon the motion of amendment, it was agreed to unanimously.

The question being then put upon the main motion, as amended, it was also agreed to, and —

Resolved — Accordingly.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill to provide, by law, for a sessional payment to members of the Legislative Assembly, being read,

Ordered — That the said Order of the day be discharged.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee to take into consideration the subject of the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General, relative to the salaries of the Honourable the Speaker of the Legislative Council and the Honourable the Speaker of this House, and the salaries of the officers of both Houses, and other references, being read,

On motion of the Honourable Mr. Harrison, seconded by Mr. Solicitor General Day,

Ordered — That it be an instruction to the said Committee to consider of a sessional sum, as an indemnity to members of the Legislative Assembly for their services during the present session, as recommended by the Message of His Excellency, the Governor General on that subject.

The House then resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Gilchrist took the chair of the Committee.<sup>4</sup>

It was again broadly stated, that unless the expression of the previous evening was repeated, the country would, on a change of Government, see either the Chief Justice, or one of the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, in the office of Speaker of the Legislative Council, an appointment at variance with what the House seemed fully to agree was incompatible with the well-being of the country....<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Harrison gave way, and said he would submit a mode of procedure, which he thought might be acceptable to all parties. He would propose that the question of the indemnity to the Speaker should go amongst the appropriations for the present year, with that of the Indemnity to Members, when the House might vote whatever sum they pleased as a compensation to the Speaker.<sup>6</sup>

This announcement was received with great cordiality, and Mr. Aylwin complimented Mr. Harrison on the occasion.<sup>7</sup>

The House proceeded with great harmony, and allowed the Speaker, as an indemnity for this session, £500, with a distinct understanding, that should the office be held another session by any person whose salary should be £1,000 per annum, he should derive no remuneration for the performance of duty as Speaker.<sup>8</sup>

Sir Allan MacNab ... opposed the plan proposed by Mr. Harrison.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Aylwin in the course of his observation, said that as now it was impossible that any change could be made in the Government arrangements during the session ... that it was desirable they should all unite and finish the business which remained to be done, with as much celerity as possible...<sup>10</sup>

((These remarks)) were loudly cheered by all parties.<sup>11</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Mr. J. S. Macdonald observed, that there were many he was sure, who would make a good speculation out of this indemnity, and he did not think it right that the country should pay members twenty-one dollars per week, when their expenses might be included in fourteen.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Aylwin remarked that he could not agree with the estimate of the hon. member for Glengarry — his (Mr. Aylwin's) amounting to four times that sum.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Cameron put his down at a very low figure....<sup>15</sup>

House in Com. on taxing imported produce.

The Order of the day for the House in Committee on the Bill for imposing duties on agricultural and other produce, and stock, imported into this country from the United States of America, being read,
The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.
Mr. Cook took the chair of the Committee,

The three first clauses ((were)) ... put and negatived — <sup>23</sup>

Mr. Roblin moved that the Committee rise — thereby quashing this measure for the present Session. Mr. Roblin spoke warmly in favor of the bill — pointing out the evils experienced by the Canadian Farmer in consequence of the competition allowed to the U. States Agriculturist — that instead of the wheat merchant taking a tour through the Bay of Quinto (sic) — he started for the Western States and there made all his purchases — glutting this market — monopolizing the forwarding &c. Mr. Roblin mentioned an instance in which a person on the Bay, had sent down some two hundred bbls. of flour to a Kingston Forwarder when prices were high to be forwarded with despatch to Montreal, but instead of that it had been piled up in the open air, and from long exposure to the weather had been destroyed — all this happened on account of the great influx of American produce about that time monopolizing all the means of transport. He said everything the farmer had to buy was taxed and highly taxed — but there was no protection afforded him on the articles of his production.<sup>24</sup>

Capt. Steele in rising to support the Bill for imposing a Protection Duty on stock and agricultural produce from the United States for home consumption, begged to assure hon. gentlemen that if he saw in the measure anything calculated to injure the interests of the Lower section of the Province, he would not vote in its favor. Representing as he did a great Agricultural County, he felt it an imperative duty to raise his voice in favor of the principle so ably advocated by the hon. member for Essex (Col. Prince). — No one would deny that it became the bounden duty of the Government and Legislature to shield the Farmer against the pressure of foreign competition — this has been the paramount duty of every government. Capt. S. felt confident that every hon. gentleman who heard him would agree with him that the Canadian Farmer has no desire while asking protection for his labour and capital, to injure the Miller, and Merchant, or to divert from the St. Lawrence the transit of foreign produce from which the Forwarder obtains a profit. — But the Foreign Corn Factor should not be permitted to undersell and thus exclude him (the Farmer) from the Market altogether. This would be encouraging Emigration with a vengeance. Every other interest is based upon Agriculture and no Emigrant in his senses would leave the Mother Country, but with the prospect of bettering his circumstances by investing his capital here. — It could not be denied that the Corn Factor of Ohio and Michigan has every facility offered him by the Welland Canal, to carry on a profitable business with the Canadian Merchant, and our Millers have a right to a serious consideration of their interests in this House — but not at the expense of their fellow subject, the farmer who ought to be protected from ruinous foreign competition, labouring as he does under every disadvantage of bad roads and distant location.<sup>25</sup>

Mr. Cartwright said that the Mills and Capital employed by Millers in Manufacturing U. States Wheat were of great importance to us — that the products of Canada would not keep them half time employed, and consequently the Canadian farmer would be deprived of the great advantages he now possessed of having so many Mills and those of so good a description. The increased facilities which were afforded the Canadian Farmer in forwarding his produce was another great consideration. The freight on the U. States flour through Canada alone leaves 5s. per bbl. in this country — and he was of opinion that the proposed duty would only have the effect of bringing trade to a stand — that besides all our Lake and River craft being out of employment, there would be 150 vessels which navigate the Atlantic with these products absolutely idle, — and consequently this great school for British seamen destroyed. Would this not injure the Canadian Farmer — would he be able to export his produce on the same terms as he now does. No. It was a very popular cry, Protecting Duty — but it was all a fallacy, which he could prove by statistical facts did the time of the House permit.<sup>26</sup>

Mr. Small made some remarks to the effect that all wheat ground in this country of U.S. growth should be taxed with the 6d per bushel.<sup>27</sup>

Mr. Simpson on the part of Lower Canada said that in that Province they did not raise enough wheat for their own consumption. — That U.C. had saddled Lower Canada with her debt — taken her revenue and now she was going to starve them. A tax of 6d per bbl. on flour, and 1½d per bushel on wheat was sufficient to turn the trade from our door. — U.C. had the duty levied two or three years, and the consequence was that the trade vanished like snow off the mountain. He (Mr. S.) asked what enabled Holland to hoist the broom at the mast head, as a token that she swept the seas? — it was her carrying trade. — And what was it that had raisep (sic) England to the exalted position which she now obtains in the scale of nations? — her commerce — the carrying trade. He (Mr. S.) maintained further, that the free introduction of U. States wheat into this country was a benefit to the Canadian Farmer; for he would be enabled to export more of his own growth of a high rate and purchase American for his own use at a low rate. He was decidedly opposed to having Corn Laws in Canada.<sup>28</sup>

Mr. Small was prepared to meet the hon. gentleman half way when he found it would operate against the interest of Lower Canadians, but he was not altogether prepared to sacrifice the main stay of the U.C. farmer to them.<sup>29</sup>

Dr. Dunlop said he was a farmer, and that which was beneficial for the farmer must tend to advance his own interest; he hoped the speeches of some hon. gentlemen delivered on that occasion, would not go to the world, for the people of Europe and the United States would think the Legislators of Canada the greatest barbarians on the face of the earth. Commerce like water would find its own level — there was no possibility of stopping commerce: Custom House Officers and Coast Guards might be established but they would be of no avail. He contended that the English Agriculturist was not protected by the Corn Laws. — If those Laws imposed a fixed duty of 12s. per quarter, on Corn they might have the desired effect — but they had a sliding scale which was raised or lowered, according to the price of Corn. — When the scale comes down the bonded Corn is thrown into the market and gluts it. He was opposed to any restrictions on Commerce. — The more corn we could bring into the market the better, no matter where it came from — there would be more buyers and consequently higher prices. The Millers take the raw material and make an article fit for importing out of it, and if we should impose a tax on the raw material the law would be evaded, which he would exemplify, if the Exciseman should happen to find in his hay loft some forty or fifty chests of Tea, he (Dr. D.) might not be able to give a very satisfactory account of how it came there, — but if the Custom House Officer should notice some 4 or 500 bushels of wheat in a bin in his granary, he could easily account for that by pointing to a wheat stubble on his farm, and say "I got it there." The wheat he could smuggle, but the Tea he could not without detection. Instead of printing 1000 copies of this Bill in English and French for the use of members, he thought that it would have been far better for that House to have made a liberal grant, for Printing an edition of Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations — as many hon. gentlemen were much in need of it.<sup>30</sup>

Report.

"Your Committee find that at the commencement of this Session a Petition, signed by said Rourke, and others, complaining of the return of Henry Smith, Esquire, member for the County of Frontenac, and laid before your Honourable House.

That Your Honourable House did not appoint any day for striking a Committee on said Petition.

That on the last day allowed by law for fixing a day to strike a Committee, another Petition was laid before Your Honourable House, by James Mathewson, Esquire, in substance the same as the one above referred to, and the twenty second day of July fixed for striking the Committee to try the merits of said Petition.

That it appears to Your Committee that Mr. Smith allowed the Petition of Rourke, and others, to remain unnoticed until the 20th day of July, when he moved that said Petition of Rourke, and others, should be referred to the Committee to be struck for the trial of the Petition of James Mathewson, which was ordered by Your Honourable House.

That it appears to your Committee that Mr. Smith was, about the (616)

That it appears to your Committee that no notice of the reference of the Petition of Mathew Rourke, and others, aforementioned, was given to the Petitioners or their Counsel or agent.

That when the Committee appointed for the trial of the Petition of Mr. Mathewson met, the Counsel for the Petitioner informed the Committee, and in the presence of Mr. Smith, that it was not intended to take any action upon the Petition of Rourke, and others, nor was any thing done upon the same.

That the Committee on reporting upon both said Petitions, declared that of Rourke, and others, vexations, with a full understanding, that there could not be any costs incurred in defending the same."

Com. on Petition of Directors of Toronto and Huron R. Road
Co. report.

Mr. Buchanan, from the select Committee to which were referred the Petition of the Directors of the Toronto and Lake Huron Rail Road Company, and other references, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee find that the Petition prays that an amendment may be made in the Act incorporating the Toronto and Lake Huron Rail Road Company, so as to confer on the said Company the Right of forming a planked or macadamized Road upon the same conditions, and on the same terms, on which they are now authorized by law to construct a Rail Road from the one Lake to the other.

The object of the Company is, by establishing a direct and easy communication between Lakes Ontario and Huron, to open up an immense Country, at present deprived of access to Market, and to secure to Toronto, and the other Ports on Lake Ontario, a portion of the great and increasing Trade of the West, and a participation in the Lake Huron Fisheries, an inexhaustible source of wealth, at present monopolized by the People of the United States, who last year sent off not less than eighty thousand barrels of fish to the Markets of Ohio and Illinois. Your Committee concur with the Petitioners, that "the advantages which would result from such an improvement would be greater, in a Commercial and agricultural point of view than could be derived from almost any other work," — and they could have no hesitation in reporting in favor of the prayer being granted, but for their opinion, that deferring the alteration till next Session may be the means of having adopted a much more eligible Western terminus than could now be fixed on.

Your Committee are of opinion, that in stead of running the Road Northward to Lake Huron, it should take a Westerly direction and be terminated on Lake Huron about 50 or 60 miles North of Goderich.

The last or most westerley 60 miles of such a line of communication would be through the centre of a tract of upwards of a million of acres of the most desirable lands in Canada, which are public property, but which, without this Road, must remain for the next half century as valueless as so many acres of Lake Huron.

Your Committee are satisfied that the greatest improvement to the resources of the Province would be attained by a planked road being made, at the expense of the Province, through the said Territory; and in such view, all the objects of the Toronto and Lake Huron Road Company would be attained by their Road having a Western terminus at an inland point, at or near the North Western corner of the Township of Mono, where it would be met by the above proposed Road, through the (at present) unsettled Townships of public lands.

The Petitioners anticipate the following advantage to the public, which your Committee see no reason to doubt, and which would be a guarantee for the work being a profitable one — "Travellers from the Western portion of the United States of America, desiring to reach New York, would, in the event of such a Road being made, take this "route in preference to any other now used, as both time and expense "would be saved, and the dangers of the navigation of Lake Erie "avoided: — a person leaving Michilimackinac on Lake Huron, the "point at which all the Steamers navigating Lakes Huron and Michigan rendezvous in their upward and downward passages, could "then reach Toronto in 24 hours; whereas by the routes now used, "the same point cannot be reached in less than four days; in the event, "also, of a war, additional security and facilities would be afforded to "the inhabitants of the Province."

Your Committee beg, therefore, to recommend to your Honourable House to address His Excellency, the Governor General, for a report to be laid before your Honourable House, at its next Session, by the Board of Works, after a full investigation into the above matter, as to whether the Government, looking to the increased value to be put on so large an amount of public lands, and for the general benefit of the Province, would be prepared to recommend to be made (at the public expense, or by means of the lands through which it will pass,) that part of the road which would be through an unsettled country, and the tolls on which, apart from the expected travel from the United States, could not at first be expected to be sufficient to pay the interest on the outlay, and the repairs which might be needed."

Report concurred in.

Resolved — That this House doth concur with the Committee in the said report.

On motion of Mr. Buchanan, seconded by Mr. Dunlop.

Address to His Excellency communicating report, ordered.

Resolved — That an humble address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, communicating to His Excellency a copy of the said report, and praying that His Excellency will be pleased to take the same into his favourable consideration.

Ordered — That the said address be presented to His Excellency, by such Members of this House as are of the Honourable the Executive Council of this Province.

Com. on state of Brock's Monument
report.

Mr. Thorburn, from the Select Committee appointed to enquire into the state and condition of Brock's Monument, and what amount of moneys, if any, has been contributed by the public for its re-erection; and also, whether certain Gold and Silver Medals, struck for Militiamen, have been distributed, and if so, to whom, presented to the House the report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee beg leave to draw the attention of your Honourable House to the present state of the Monument erected to the memory of the late Major General Sir Isaac Brock. On the morning of the 17th April, 1840, a malicious attempt was made by some unknown miscreant, to destroy the Monument by means of gunpowder, which was so far successful as to render it necessary to pull it down.

In consequence of this diabolical act, a meeting was held on the Queenston Heights, on the 30th of July following, at which His Excellency, Sir George Arthur, presided, and which was attended by Officers in the Militia, and others, from all parts of the Province, when, after expression of indignation at the outrage, it was resolved that funds for rebuilding the Monument should be endeavoured to be raised by subscription ; and a Committee was appointed to ascertain the amount required, and devise ways and means for raising a sum, by voluntary donations, for that purpose ; and to adopt such measures as they might deem necessary for the re-erection of the Monument. It appears by their returns that these subscriptions, up to the present time, are equal to about £2,800, which is invested in Government Debentures, bearing interest ; but this sum being deemed insufficient to rebuild the Monument in a suitable manner, no steps have yet been taken towards a commencement of the work, and from the lateness of the season, it is more than probable that nothing will be done during the present year. The materials of which the Monument is composed having been materially loosened by the explosion, portions thereof are frequently detaching themselves. The Commissioners appointed by the 55 GEO. 4, Chap. 15, having deceased, there is no one legally authorized to take charge of these materials, and they are liable to be taken away by any one who may think it worth while to remove them.

Your Committee therefore beg leave to recommend that two or three Gentlemen residing near the Monument should be placed in temporary charge thereof until the rebuilding of the same shall be proceeded with."

Commissioners appointed to take charge of Brock's Monument.

Resolved — That David Thorburn, Samuel Street and Joseph Hamilton, Esquires, be appointed Commissioners to take charge of the monument erected to the memory of the late Major General Sir Isaac Brock, until steps be taken for its re-erection.

Mr. Aylwin moved, seconded by Mr. Taché,

That this House, in passing the Bill intituled "An Act to facilitate the negotiation of a loan in England, and for other purposes therein mentioned," only agreed to the said Bill in the firm reliance that the executive Government of this Province will appoint no person to be an agent to carry the said Bill into effect, if passed into a law, unless the person so appointed be a person permanently residing in this Province, and enabled to give good and sufficient security for the faithful performance of his duty under the said Act.

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued, and the names being called for, they were taken down, as followeth : —

Com. on Contingencies present
4th Report.

Mr. Thorburn, from the special Committee on the contingent accounts, and other expenses of the present session, presented to the House the fourth report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"Your Committee in compliance with the instructions of your Honourable House — "to take into consideration the amount of salary, "allowances, and perquisites, enjoyed by the Clerk of the House when "in office in the late Province of Lower Canada, as Clerk to the "House of Assembly, and Clerk to the Special Council of that Province" — have inquired into the same accordingly, and find that in addition to his salary of £500 per annum, that officer was allowed

4th Report of Committee on Contingencies.

£100 per annum for house rent, £100 per annum for superintending the printing of the Ordinances, and one per cent on the monies paid out by him, in addition to which, while attending the Special Council at Montreal, he received 15s. per diem to cover the extra expenses incurred by him while absent from home. Your Committee therefore submit a resolution to allow this officer, in addition to his salary the sum of £100, for house rent and fuel, and one per cent on all disbursements made by him on account of the contingent expenses of the House.

Your Committee have had an application from the Assistant Clerk of your Honourable House, stating that when he held the same office in Lower Canada, he received a salary of £400 per annum, in addition to which it was his duty to translate the Journal of the House into the French language, which produced him annually a sum averaging from £65 to £84, but that in his present situation, though his salary remains the same, the translation of the Journals is performed by officers appointed for the purpose, in consequence of which he is deprived of a portion of his income. From the long standing of the applicant as an Officer of the Legislature, Your Committee cannot refuse to submit, for the consideration of Your Honourable House, a blank Resolution, to be filled up with such sum as may be considered sufficient to compensate him for the same.

With reference to the Petition of Maria McCrea, Your Committee have ascertained that she was placed in the Parliament Buildings to take charge thereof, by the Clerk to the Honourable the Legislative Council, before the commencement of the present session, with the expectation of being appointed to the situation of House-keeper, the duties of which, she has since continued to perform; but it having been decided that that appointment shall be given to the Chief Messenger, your Committee recommend that such sum be allowed her as to your Honourable House may seem meet, for her services during the present session, and to compensate her for the expenses necessarily incurred under the circumstances, and the disappointment she has experienced.

Your Committee have had an application from the Sergeant-at-Arms, stating that his present salary of £100 per annum is totally inadequate to his support, and praying for an addition thereto out of the contingencies of the House. Your Committee find that the Serjeant-at-Arms of the late House of Assembly of Upper Canada, received £50, per annum, by warrant from the Executive Government, and £100 additional, by annual vote of the House; they conceive that the salary of this Officer is not, at present, adequate to his services and station, and therefore report a blank resolution, for such additional allowance as to your Honourable House may appear proper.

An order having been passed by your Honourable House, that upon persons being summoned to give evidence before any Committee of the House, an account of the expenses of such witnesses should be laid before this Committee, that they may report thereupon; they therefore beg to state, that they have examined, in accordance thereto, the following accounts of the expenses of certain witnesses called before the Committee to which were referred the Petitions of Peter Lepard, W. W. Baldwin, and others, and of Joseph Milburn, relative to certain riots on Yonge street in the Home District, and also at the City of Toronto, which accounts (the said witnesses having been called on public business) your Committee report accordingly, viz. : —

For which a Resolution is provided.

The Parliament Building in Toronto having been left in charge of Aeneas Bell, late chief messenger of the Assembly of Upper Canada, your Committee have prepared a Resolution to allow him for the same at the rate of 3s. 9d. per diem from the commencement of the present Session (when his salary ceased) until the end of the present month, at which time the charge will be delivered over to the President of the Board of Works.

Your Committee beg leave also to report a Resolution in favor of King Barton, the House Page, allowing him the sum of £10 in addition to his salary for the present Session.

Your Committee beg leave to recommend that an allowance be made to the chief messenger, to enable him to secure the services of a boy to assist him in attending the House during the ensuing Session — and have therefore prepared a blank Resolution for that purpose.

Your Committee, finding some difficulty to have arisen respecting the amount to be paid to the door-keeper by warrant from the Executive Government, beg leave to recommend that he be allowed the sum of £20, in addition to the salary settled upon him by your Honourable House, thus settling his salary for the present year at £80, to include all allowances, from whatever source.

Ordered — That the said Bill be now read a second time.

The said Bill was accordingly read a second time.

Ordered — That the said Bill be engrossed.

On motion of the Honourable Mr. Harrison, seconded by Mr. Parke,

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair,

Address to Her
Majesty reported.

And Mr. Merritt, reported that the Committee had agreed to an humble address to Her Majesty, which address was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY :

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN :

Address to Her Majesty respecting the seat of Government

We, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Legislative Assembly, of Canada, in Parliament assembled, humbly beg leave to approach Your Majesty with renewed expressions of our devoted attachment to Your Royal Person and Government.

We would, most respectfully, beg leave to represent to Your Majesty, that the Inhabitants of the, now, Province of Canada, having never been expressly called upon to offer an opinion upon the Union of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, do not presume, on the present occasion, to obtrude upon Your Majesty our views and opinions on that measure ; but content ourselves, now that it has taken place, with expressing our fervent wishes that every advantage, contemplated by its promoters, may be fully realized.

That the Inhabitants of these Provinces did not anticipate, from the adoption of the union, that the vital interests of any portion were likely to be jeopardized, as recent events seem to threaten, because there is no principle in Legislation more fully established than that when a Law, though necessary for the good of the Community, bears severely on particular Sections, and causes serious loss and inconvenience, such loss and inconvenience should be as fully remunerated as possible, at the expense of the public, for whose benefit it is sustained.

That, in considering the union of the Provinces, the Inhabitants of the Cities of Quebec and Toronto did not conceal from themselves the possibility of being called upon to make greater sacrifices than the Inhabitants of any other part of the Province; but they did not anticipate any greater disadvantage than what might arise from holding the Provincial Parliament alternately at Toronto and Quebec; for they assured themselves that their Most Gracious Sovereign, the Queen, in the ex-

Address to Her Majesty respecting the seat of Government.

ercise of Her just prerogative, would be entirely directed, in selecting the place for convening the Legislature, by a due regard to existing claims, and interests, as well as the general convenience of the Province.

That, while the question of the Union was under discussion, only two places seemed to offer any just Claims to become the seat of Government — Quebec and Toronto — both had been the Capitals of their respective Provinces, from the very first; they possessed all the necessary convenience, and the great interests which had grown up in each respectively, from the fact of their being the seat of Government, required favourable consideration.

That the vast extent of the United Province, (sufficient, in the practice of our neighbours, to constitute six or seven Sovereign States) seems to render any position, however near the centre, undesirable as the permanent place for the meeting of Parliament for the following, among other reasons :

The great object of the Union is to amalgamate, as soon as possible, into one people, the population of both Provinces; gradually but gently to assimilate their laws and customs, their hopes and interests. We respectfully beg leave to express our sincere conviction that no measure can, with equal facility, quicken such happy results as causing the Legislature to meet four years in the midst of one population, and four years in the midst of the other.

The Representatives of Eastern and Western Canada would thus become acquainted with the respective Inhabitants; their habits and views; their wants and expectations, and become able to meet their just desires; and to adopt such measures as will, without violence to any feelings, or even prejudices, transform them, in a reasonable time, into one people.

That the measure of alternate Parliaments, in like circumstances, is not without many precedents, and in the present case will be attended with many essential and paramount advantages. The only objection that can be raised must be confined to a small matter of expense which will bear no proportion to the interest of the very large sums required for erecting such buildings to accommodate the Legislature, and the several Public Departments, as already exist at Toronto and Quebec.

That although these may be deemed among the leading points in favour of alternate Parliaments at Quebec and Toronto, there are other reasons, to which, though some what of a local nature, we would respectfully pray Your Majesty's consideration. Toronto from the change of the seat of Government is threatened with even greater loss than Quebec, from the removal of the Superior Courts. Now such removal would be of great and serious disadvantages to Western Canada. Toronto is very nearly in its centre, being about 280 miles from the Point au Baudet, the Eastern extremity, and 270 miles from Amherstburg, the Western ; and therefore convenient, beyond all other places, for transacting the public business of the Province.

It has all the public buildings required, and as the Laws, Customs, and habits, of the two Provinces, differ essentially, at present, many years may elapse before they can be assimilated so as to unite the Judiciary.

Add to all this the fact that seven-tenths of the population of Western Canada must always be found west of the Bay of Quinté, and to them the loss and inconvenience of managing their business will be greatly increased should the Courts be removed from Toronto ; and all this without the slightest equivalent.

That many of the inhabitants of the late Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, relying on the emphatic language of His late Majesty

Address to Her Majesty respecting the seat of Government.

King WILLIAM the fourth, "that a Union of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada was not a measure fit to be recommended to Parliament" and therefore not anticipating any such enactment did, under the conviction that Toronto and Quebec would continue the seat of Government in their respective Provinces, expend the greater part of their means on fixed property, and will therefore, be impoverished, and many of them exposed to the greatest sacrifices should the seat of Government be wholly removed.

Indeed the loss to merchants and tradesmen begins already to be felt, and to some it will prove utter ruin, all must suffer should there be no remedy ; for the depreciation of real property cannot, under such a disastrous event, be less than several hundred thousand pounds.

Wherefore we most earnestly entreat that Your Majesty, in the exercise of Your Royal prerogative, will be pleased to order that the Parliament of Canada, hereafter, assemble alternately at Quebec and Toronto, the respective capitals of the late Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, or should such prayer be thought unadvisable, and any other measure be adopted, that adequate and just remuneration be granted for the loss sustained by the inhabitants of Toronto and Quebec.

(Attest,)

W. B. LINDSAY,
Clerk Assembly.

16th September, 1841.

Sir Allan MacNab moved, seconded by Mr. Buchanan,

That the said Address be engrossed.

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued,

Yeas, 26.

Noes, 21.

And the names being called for, were taken down as in the last preceding division.

So it was carried in the Affirmative, and —

Ordered — Accordingly.

Address to His Excellency to transmit above
Address ordered.

Mr. Small moved, seconded by Sir Allan MacNab,

That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency, the Governor General, informing His Excellency, that this House hath voted an humble Address to Her Majesty, upon the subject of the Seat of Government, and praying that His Excellency would be pleased to transmit the said Address to Her Majesty's Government in England, to be laid at the foot of the Throne.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Cartwright moved an amendment, that the committee do rise.<sup>2</sup>

Sir A. MacNab opposed the amendment. The people, he said, had never been consulted on the expediency or utility of the change, it having emanated from the Representative of the Sovereign. In his opinion an indemnity ought to be given to the inhabitants of Toronto and Quebec, for the losses sustained by them, owing to its removal. The expenses incurred by the desertion of the strong hold of the Family Compact, (his own words) he said, had been kept in the dark, and that the outlay at least amounted to about £30,000.<sup>3</sup>

Mr. Johnston was of opinion that Bytown ought to be selected, being a central position and easily fortified. —<sup>4</sup>

Dr. Dunlop remarked that the petitioner Mr. Baldwin, was a gentleman from whom Sir Allan had received many kindnesses, and upon whom he had probably conferred as many, — the interest that he Sir Allan took in the business might therefore be estimated without difficulty. With respect to having two seats of government, he said, they would then have only half a library left at one place, and as two removes were as good as fire, he thought the library might as well be burnt altogether.<sup>5</sup>

Some insinuations ((were)) thrown out upon Mr. Hincks remissness, when the interests of Toronto were concerned....<sup>6</sup>

((Mr. Hincks)) repudiated them, remarking, that his vote on the present occasion would prove whether they were justifiable or not.<sup>7</sup>

Mr. Buchanan said, the Hon. member must remember that we already have two libraries. He (Mr. Buchanan) could not see in the question of the seat of Government any thing to make sport of, and could consider attempts of that nature only as a cloak to cover the total want of any good reason for the removal of the seat of Government, beyond that there did exist in Toronto what was called the Family Compact! Hon. members might affect to make light of it, but the decision as to the seat of Government was one that deeply affected his constituents, the citizens of Toronto, as well as the whole of the inhabitants of the Home District. It could not be denied that the removal had injured the prospects of the most enterprising and finest agricultural neighborhood in the Province, nor, that where the Government was for the present located there was literally no country to benefit, but that nearly all the Government money paid out at Kingston would go to the United States. It were absurd to suppose the Assembly having no opinion on this vital subject, and having a decided opinion, their not expressing it was only to have the matter in the hands of others much less interested in its proper settlement. It is allowed that great benefit has already accrued through bringing the Lower Canadian members to Kingston, — much more would have been obtained by their being brought to Toronto, and our being hereafter taken to Quebec. — Unless the Executive can give better reasons for the Government being retained at Kingston, the address before the House will pass with a large majority, and could not fail to have a great effect in the final decision of the Home Ministry, regarding the Seat of Government.<sup>8</sup>

Capt. Steele supported the address, prognosticating that Toronto would become the Queen of the West.<sup>9</sup>

Mr. Harrison remarked, that Sir Allan's scheme was not cunningly devised, he having to gain a party enlisted the French Canadians on his side. The plan proposed, he said, would amount to having a peripatetic government. As to which was or was not the best place for it, — he thought if it was not for its position, the selection ought to be given in favour of Quebec.<sup>10</sup>

Mr. Dunn supported the address. One reason of the hon. member's was, because too much of our money fell into the hands of the Yankees, from the inability of the country around Kingston to supply it. He had advocated the union, he said, and in his opinion no measure would be so likely to render it beneficial, as the carrying out of the prayer of the address.<sup>11</sup>

Mr. Viger was of opinion that having the government alternately at Toronto and Quebec, as proposed, would do much to remove prejudices, and make known to the inhabitants of each section of the province mutually the habits and opinions of each other.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Neilson observed, that having two sets of government officers, it must be evident they were kept for that purpose. (Laughter.) If the provinces were to remain one, he would cheerfully submit to the exercise of the royal prerogative, although at the same time, there could be no harm in expressing an opinion relative to it. The member for Hamilton, remarked that there was a division of opinion on the subject among the government officers, and that now was the time to strike. An objection, he said, had been made to Kingston because it had no soil, — he contended it had; the misfortune however was, that there was not enough of it.<sup>13</sup>

Mr. Henry Smith denominated Toronto a "swampy mud hole," where during the last rebellion the greatest risk had been run of losing all the public records. He would, however, vote either for Toronto or Quebec — but not for both.<sup>14</sup>

Mr. Cartwright's amendment was then negatived....<sup>15</sup>

(628)

The question having been put upon the said motion, a division ensued,

The Legislative Council have passed the following Bills, without any amendment.

L'Assomption

(632)

"An Act to incorporate the Quebec Board of Trade."

"An Act to extend the provisions of An Ordinance of the Legislature of the late Province of Lower Canada, intituled 'An Ordinance for making a Rail Road from the City of Montreal to the Province line, 'at or near Pointe au Beaudet'."

Bill for erection of certain Light Houses.

"An Act to provide for the construction of certain Light Houses within the Port of Montreal."

Public Improvements
Bill.

"An Act to appropriate certain sums of money for public Improvements in this Province, and for other purposes therein mentioned."

Bill to defray certain dredge.

"An Act to appropriate a certain sum of money to defray certain expenses relative to the Provincial Steam Dredge of Upper Canada, and for other purposes relative to the said Steam Dredge."

Bill to make a grant to Victoria College.

"An Act to grant a certain sum of money as an aid to the Victoria College."

Quebec Trinity House Bill.

"An Act to repeal and amend, in part, certain Acts, and a certain Ordinance, therein mentioned, and to extend the power, and increase the funds, of the Corporation of the Trinity House of Quebec."

And also —

Bill granting salaries to Officers of the Legislature sent down amended.

The Legislative Council have passed the Bill intituled "An Act to make provision for the payment of the salaries and allowances of certain Officers of the Legislature for a limited period, and other purposes," with an amendment, to which they desire the concurrence of the Assembly.

And then he withdrew.<sup>16</sup>

The Bill having been laid on the table ... the Usher of the Black Rod ((was)) in the act of making the last of his three graceful bows, when Mr. Johnston seized the obnoxious parchment, exclaiming — "Misther Spaiker (sic) — I won't insult you, nor this Honourable House, by supposing, for a moment, you would ever take this Bill into consideration"; and suiting the action to the word, he tossed it nearly to the ceiling, and, as it descended to the floor, bestowed on it a kick, so vigorous, as to send it within a few feet of the Bar....<sup>17</sup>

Messrs. Parent, Barthe, and Christie, then jostling each other, fairly kicked it out of the House.<sup>18</sup>

Sir A. MacNab moved that strangers withdraw — which being complied with, he inveighed, in good set terms, against this outrage, but finding the House were agreed on the matter of fact, though there might be some discrepancies of opinion as to matter of form, he gave in with the best possible grace.<sup>19</sup>

Mr. Harrison rose, so soon as order could be restored, and stated that the Legislative Council had thought it proper to strike out a money clause from a Bill, which was, he must admit, unconstitutional and irregular — a breach of their privileges, and one which left him but one course to pursue — and, painful as it was, he should not shrink from the duty imposed upon him; that duty was to send back the Bill, in its original state, to that body — and he hoped they would see the propriety of retracing their steps.<sup>20</sup>

Mr. Harrison's announcement was heard with great satisfaction by the House, and was loudly cheered from all parts of it.<sup>21</sup>

Mr. Aylwin thought it might be a better plan to address His Excellency the Governor General, to order the money to be paid, and pledging the House to repay it.<sup>22</sup>

This, however, was over-ruled — at least till another effort had been made with the other Branch of the Legislature.<sup>23</sup>

The Bill was accordingly, carried back, and, after a warm discussion, the clause was allowed to stand, and the difficulty removed.<sup>24</sup>

House in Com. on Report on Petition of R. F. Gourlay.

The order of the day for the House in Committee on the report of the Select Committee to which was referred the Petition of Robert F. Gourlay, of Kingston, being read,

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said Committee.

Mr. Gilchrist took the Chair of the Committee,

Dr. Dunlop brought up the case of Mr. Gourlay. He said that having gone so fully into the facts of Mr. Gourlay's case on a former occasion, he should not now go over the same ground. He would only briefly recapitulate what he had before stated at length. He then went over the facts as stated in the same report before the House in a condensed form — it was now necessary to answer some of the objections that on a former occasion had been urged against his arguments. It had been stated that the banishment of Mr. Gourlay was legal, inasmuch as a law existed under which he was prosecuted. He denied the legality upon two distinct and separate grounds: in the first place, he denied the power of any body on the face of the earth, whether King, Lords, Commons of Great Britain, or the Governor, Council, and Assembly of Canada, to enact a law by which a British subject unconvicted or uncharged with any crime, could be debarred from going or residing in any portion of the British dominions, but supposing such a law could be made, in Mr. Gourlay's case it was most illegally exercised. The law referred to, an Act of 1804, of the Provincial Parliament of Upper Canada, provided that a British subject who had not been an inhabitant of the Province for six months might be expelled as Mr. Gourlay was, but it was in evidence before the Committee, and indeed notorious to the whole Province, that Mr. Gourlay was an inhabitant more than two years of the Province. How was the objection to be got over? Why by a most lawyer-like and quibbling construction as to the meaning of habitancy; the judge informed the astonished jury that to constitute habitancy a man must possess a dwelling of his own — living in the house of another could not make a man an inhabitant. Now let us consider the effect of this beautiful legal subtlety. A child is born in Canada. He lives for a certain number of years in his father's house — he then goes into service, or at any rate he lives in the house of another, where he may live till the age of three-score and ten, and die at a good old age, without ever having been an inhabitant of Canada, or of any other country, or of this world itself. He (Dr. D.) had been accused of having made use of strong language in the report of the committee. He acknowledged having drawn up that report, and had he to draw it over again he would not soften a word of it. What language, he would wish to know, was too strong to denounce tyranny and oppression; what language too strong to stigmatize cruelty and injustice? None, thank God, that a Briton knew. — He now came forward to call upon the sense of honour of that House to do as far as they could do justice to a much injured individual, compensation he did not ask for, for the very simple reason that the House had it not in its power to bestow compensation. What could compensate a man for 22 years of complicated misery, for imprisonment, for legal infamy, for ruined health, and for a shattered constitution. Had this House voted to Mr. Gourlay the enormous sums which they had voted away within the last fortnight, it would be no compensation to him for what he has suffered, for who would endure his sufferings for any thing that the world has to bestow. He hoped that the House would not lose a moment in wiping away as far as they could the foul stain that had been put on the name of a British Colony, as far as their reprobation of all the acts of unparalleled injustice under which he (Mr. Gourlay) had suffered. Till that was done Mr. Gourlay only held his life until further orders. He sat now at the bar of the House, and according to the dicta of the defenders of the Government — the Governor General might legally, and he hoped the defenders of the measure would add constitutionally, order the sheriff of Kingston to drag him from his seat, and hang him on the lamp-post at yon gate, without form or process. He would not insult the House by supposing for a moment that they collectively, or any individual of them, would oppose the motion he was now about to put.<sup>23</sup>

and after some time spent therein,

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair,

Resolution reported.

And Mr. Gilchrist reported that the Committee had come to a Resolution, which Resolution was again read at the Clerk's table, and agreed to by the House, and is as followeth: —

Excellency
communicating

Com. on Petition of
P. Leppard present
2nd Report, also on Petition of
J. Milburn.

Mr. Small, from the Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of Peter Leppard of East Gwillimbury, Home District, and other references, presented to the House the second report of the said Committee, which was again read at the Clerk's table, and is as followeth : —

Report.

"It appears to your Committee that pursuant to public notice, a large assemblage of the principal Inhabitants and yeomanry residing within a circuit of from 20 to 30 miles round Toronto, took place on the 15th October, 1839, on Yonge street, near that City, with a view to take into consideration the state of the Province, the Union of the Canadas, and Lord Durham's report ; the meeting was called by persons advocating responsible Government, and of a political class of Her Majesty's subjects in Upper Canada, denominating themselves " REFORMERS."

A requisition had previously been made to the Sheriff of the Home District (Mr. Jarvis.) residing at Toronto, to convoke the meeting, but he declined, stating as his reason for not complying with the request, that he did not deem the Petitioners sufficiently numerous, observing also that he had received a counter Petition from the Mayor, Aldermen, and upwards of two hundred citizens of Toronto, and that in the excited state of the public mind, he was apprehensive of a disturbance.

The Resolutions intended to have been proposed to the Inhabitants assembled at the meeting, together with the draft of an address to Her Majesty, and other papers and proceedings relative to the business of the day, have been submitted to your Committee : they appear to be of a constitutional and loyal character ; nor does it appear that the discussion of any matter of a contrary description was contemplated thereat. The meeting consisted, according to the concurring testimony of all the witnesses who have been examined on the subject, of unarmed persons, whose demeanor was quiet and orderly, and in all respects such as became a body of freeholders lawfully assembled to consult upon public matters of interest to their Country.

It appears that the Sheriff attended at this meeting, followed by a large body of inhabitants of Toronto and its neighbourhood, including the Mayor of the city, several Aldermen, Magistrates, and other public functionaries, wearing badges — and assumed the lead in the business of the day, with a view to defeat the purpose of those at whose instance the meeting had been convoked, and generally of the Reformers ; and that it is principally to those who followed him, calling themselves "Conservatives," that the riot which took place on the occasion is to be attributed.

The proceedings of the meeting, as well as the choice of the gentleman, who, in the opinion of those calling the meeting, was the fittest person to fill the chair during the business of the day, were all previously determined upon ; but the arrival of the Sheriff, and those attending him, disconcerted those arrangements, and led to the disturbance ; this officer, upon his arrival on the ground, took possession of the hustings or platform erected for the occasion, and after addressing the multitude in a speech of some length, concluded by calling upon them to nominate a chairman, proposing a gentleman he named to them, and, at the same time, calling upon them to divide. The division, perfect or imperfect, which took place in pursuance of the call, was the occasion of the riot that occurred. It was objected, that the Sheriff, without affording time for a fair division of the meeting, and allowing others to address it, as was desired by some of those present, on the choice of a chairman, declared the gentleman proposed by him to be the choice of the meeting, and installed him as chairman.

Several of those examined, state, however, that a fair division did take place, and that the decision of the Sheriff was fairly approved by a majority of the meeting; others deny it, positively asserting, that time was not afforded for a division, and that none such, in fact, took place. Be this as it may, much dissatisfaction arose out of the circumstance, and the Reformers, in a body, moved from the spot which had thus been previously prepared for their meeting, to a distance of about 150 yards from it, with the intention of holding their meeting apart from those who had come from Toronto. This gave umbrage to the latter party, who (although the testimony is contradictory and not conclusive on this point) considered themselves the majority, and that their voice ought therefore to prevail, as that of the meeting, which they thought ought not to be permitted to split, least the Resolutions of the smaller number should go abroad, and be imposed upon the world as expressing the sense of the majority of a public meeting of the Home District.

The party who had separated were collected round a wagon, from which one of their chiefs was addressing them, when a rush was made upon them by the other party, who, in passing a board fence on their way to attack the former, broke a part of it into weapons, with the help of which they made a furious onset upon the unarmed and defenceless multitude, whom they dispersed, cruelly beating and wounding several of them. Immediately after this occurrence, and during the acts of violence which followed it, a life was lost, the son of the Petitioner, Mr. Leppard.

The part which the Sheriff, and other public officers present, took on the occasion, does not very satisfactorily appear. They, however, came from Toronto with those who commenced the riot — headed them to the ground — were identified with their party — and wore badges. It does appear, nevertheless, that the Sheriff personally did endeavour to succour some of the individuals assailed by his party, but an observation that fell from him, as stated by one of the witnesses, was not such as is expected from an officer so particularly charged with the preservation of the public peace as the Sheriff.

Your Committee cannot but deeply regret that a large and respectable body of yeomanry, peaceably and lawfully assembled, to discuss, in a deliberate manner, matters of great moment to themselves and to the Province of Upper Canada at large, as British subjects, should have been assaulted, dispersed, and maltreated, by their fellow subjects, in

Report of Com. on Petition of P. Leppard and Joseph Milburn.

(637)

the manner in which it appears those assembled on Yonge Street the 15th Oct. 1839 were, and prevented from expressing their views, whatever they might have been, on the public affairs of the Country; and more particularly do they regret, that the violence complained of should have proceeded, as it appears to them, principally from persons resident in the Capital of Upper Canada, and with whom were mixed up several of the City authorities, and others holding Office under the Crown, upon whom it is especially incumbent to preserve the public peace, and maintain order, and to avoid taking an active part as political partizans.

But the culpability of the rioters, is, in the opinion of Your Committee, lost, in the still higher guilt of the Law Officers of the Crown, and of the Executive Government, for the time being, who could not have been ignorant, but on the contrary it appears to Your Committee, were well informed, of those lawless occurrences, yet took no notice of them. The Assizes, which immediately followed the riot, were allowed to pass over without any steps on the part of the public authorities towards an investigation, and from that day to this, no judicial enquiry or proceedings whatever have taken place in reference to the subject; comment on this omission is unnecessary — the time for such enquiry has now gone by, and your Committee fear that at this late period no practical good would result from further investigation of the subject.

With respect to the Petition of Joseph Milburn, whose house was attacked by a mob at the time of the last election for the first Riding of York and much damage done it: Your Committee cannot recommend any indemnity from the funds of the Province, but they are nevertheless of opinion that the injury and damage he has sustained would constitute a fair claim upon the District where it was committed, and should, as such, deserve the attention of the Municipal Council of that District."

In consequence of the severe indisposition of the Governor General, I have been deputed by Him to signify to you Her Majesty's pleasure in the several Bills which you have passed during this Session, and to relieve you from further attendance in Parliament. In performing this duty, I beg to congratulate you on the many important measures which you have been enabled to perfect, and on the general harmony which, notwithstanding the difficulties incident to the first meeting of a new Legislature, has marked your proceedings.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly :

I thank you, in the name of Her Majesty, for the readiness with which you have voted the Supplies necessary for the public Service, and for maintaining the credit of the Province.

Honourable Gentlemen and Gentlemen :

I am confident that you will sympathize with me in the deep sorrow which I feel for the illness of the Governor General, and in my hope that the sufferings with which it has pleased Almighty God to afflict Him, may be but temporary. In the mean time, I would urge on you the propriety on your return to your homes, of endeavouring to carry out the great improvements now in progress ; and of inculcating on those by whom you will be surrounded, as well an oblivion of past differences as a hopeful spirit of enterprize and contentment for the future. In so doing, you will best promote the permanent interests of your Country, and entitle yourselves to the gratitude of your fellow subjects, — and may that Providence which has heretofore so signally protected this land prosper your endeavours.

After which, the Honourable Speaker of the Legislative Council said,

Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and —

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly :

Parliament prorogued to 25th October.

It is the will and pleasure of the Deputy Governor that this Provincial Parliament be prorogued until Monday, the twenty-fifth day of October next ; and this Provincial Parliament is accordingly prorogued until Monday, the twenty-fifth day of October next, to be then and here holden.

INDEX

INTRODUCTION

The Index to this Volume is divided into two sections : proper names and subjects. The proper name index is limited to the names of the men who sat in the Canadian Assembly in 1841. This Index therefore excludes the names of all other persons, such as people mentioned in debates, witnesses testifying before the House in Committee of the Whole, or messengers such as John Godfrey Spragge, Master of Chancery, who at one time or another addressed the House from within the Bar. It also excludes the names of people merely mentioned in the House, such as those whose testimony before Select Committees was reported or referred to in the JOURNALS, and signatories to petitions presented whose names are noted in connection with various kinds of legislation.

The decision to limit this section of the Index to members of the Assembly was made necessary by the fact that the other names number literally in the thousands, so that their sheer bulk makes it impossible to include them. For example, pages 190 to 194 contain more than five hundred and fifty-five names. In addition, every piece of legislation or testimony with which these names are associated is always indexed under subject references. To summarize : the proper name Index refers to every occasion when a member proposed or seconded a motion or Resolution, it refers to every speech he delivered during debates, and to every other time he addressed the House or took the chair of the House in Committee of the Whole. Only individual votes are excluded because divisions rightfully belong with the legislation they pertain to, and all legislation is included in the subject Index.

The subject Index is based on the Index to the JOURNALS. However, it has been modified, corrected and expanded to render it more useful and complete. In particular, the subjects of all the legislative events reported in the daily Appendices are included in the Index. This Index provides more than a subject analysis of parliamentary events. It also indicates the passage of each particular item through the various stages of the legislative process. It is thus a parliamentary subject Index.

The entries in this Index contain double sets of numbers whenever this is appropriate. One set is contained within parentheses, the other is not. All numbers within parentheses refer to pages in the JOURNALS. All other numbers refer to pages in this Volume. When something is mentioned in the JOURNALS it will be indexed with a double reference. Subjects mentioned only in reconstructed material will be indicated by a single page number. An additional distinction must be made within the category of numbers in parentheses. This category includes italicized numbers which always refer to official communications made in the House, usually Addresses or Messages to or from the Governor-General or the Legislative Council. All words expressed in italics refer to primary subject headings.

The unusual length of this volume made it necessary for the printer to print by sections rather than doing the entire volume at one time. Only in this way could he avoid the problems involved in storing so much typescript on the premises for any length of time. However, as a result of this procedure, no corrections could be made when errors were discovered that even intensive preliminary proof-reading had failed to eliminate. The pages containing the errors had already been printed ; therefore these errors are identified in an errata sheet.

The tabular form in which the errata sheet is presented indicates clearly the precise location of each error, whether it is part of a reconstructed debate, a footnote, the text of the official JOURNALS, or a marginal reference, and it lists the appropriate correction. Certain inconsistencies, such as the interchangeability of the letters "i" and "e", and the more minor errors of punctuation, have not been included in the following list.
